INTRODUCTION

§ 1. THE following pieces are selected, as being the most important, from among the very numerous ones which have been appended to Chaucer's works in various editions.

I use the word 'appended' advisedly. It is not true that these works were all attributed to Chaucer in the black-letter editions. The Praise of Peace was marked as Gower's in Thynne's first edition of 1532. Another piece in that edition is attributed to Scogan. The Letter of Cupid is expressly dated 1402, though Chaucer died in 1400. The Flower of Curtesye contains the words 'Chaucer is dede'; and The Testament of Cresseid contains a remark which, in modern English, would run thus—'Who knows if all that Chaucer wrote is true?'

Those who, through ignorance or negligence, regard Thynne's edition of Chaucer as containing 'Works attributed to Chaucer' make a great mistake; and even if the mistake be excused on the ground that it has been very generally and very frequently made, this does not lessen its magnitude. The title of Thynne's book is very instructive, and really runs thus:—'The Workes of Geffray Chaucer newly printed, with dyuers workes which were neuer in print before, &c.' This is strictly and literally true; for it contains such works of Chaucer's as had previously been printed by Caxton, Wynkyn de Worde, and Julian Notary (see vol. i. p. 28), together with 'dyuers workes [of various authors] which were neuer in print before.' Which is the simple solution of the whole matter, as far as this edition is concerned. The same remarks apply to the second edition in 1542, and the third, printed about 1550. But Stowe, in 1561, altered the title so as to give it a new meaning. The title-page of his edition runs thus:—'The Woorkes of Geffrey Chaucer, newly printed with diuers

Additions which were neuer in printe before.' Here the authorship of Chaucer was, for the first time, practically claimed for the whole of Thynne's volume. At the same time, Stowe did not really mean what he seems to say, for it was he who first added the words—'made by Ihon lidgate'—to the title of 'The Flower of Curtesie,' and who first assigned a title (ascribing the poem to dan Ihon lidgat) to the poem beginning 'Consider wel'; see no. 40 (vol. i. p. 33).

§ 2. It is clear that Thynne's intention was to print a collection of poems, including all he could find of Chaucer and anything else of a similar character that he could lay his hands on¹. In other words, the collection was, from the beginning, a collection of the Works of Chaucer and other writers; and this fact was in no way modified by the adoption by Stowe and Speght of misleading titles that actually assigned to Chaucer all the poems in the volume! See further, as to this subject, in the discussion of The Court of Love below.

The number of pieces appended, at various times, to Chaucer's Works are so numerous that I have been obliged to restrict myself to giving a selection of them only.

Of the non-Chaucerian pieces printed by Thynne in 1532, I have included all but three. The rejected pieces are those numbered 18, 21, and 22 in the list given at p. 32 of vol. i. They are all poor and uninteresting, but I add a few words of description.

18. A Praise of Women. Noticed in vol. i. p. 37. Though decisively rejected by Tyrwhitt, and excluded from Moxon's reprint, it was revived (for no good reason) by Bell, and consequently appeared in the Aldine edition, which was founded on Bell's. It enumerates the merits of womankind, and condemns the slanders of men concerning them. We ought to worship all women out of reverence for the Queen of heaven, and we shall do well to pray to Our Lady to bring us to the heaven in which she and all good women will be found. Thynne is not the sole authority for this poem, as it occurs also (in a Scottish dress) in the Bannatyne MS., fol. 275. The whole of this MS. (written in 1568) was printed for the Hunterian Club in 1873-9; see p. 799 of that edition.

21. The Lamentation of Mary Magdalen. Noticed in vol. i. p. 37. This lugubrious piece was probably the wail of a nun, who had no book but a Vulgate version of the Bible, from which all her quotations are taken. It bears no resemblance to any work by Chaucer, nor to any of the pieces in the present volume. It consists of 102 seven-line stanzas. The metre resembles Lydgate's, but the final -e is hardly ever used. Bell's text is not taken from Thynne, but from some later and inferior reprint of it. For this poem, Thynne's first edition is the sole authority.

22. The Remedy of Love. Noticed in vol. i. p. 38. It appears that the 'remedy of love' is to be found in a consideration of the wicked ways of women. Twelve whole stanzas are taken up with a metrical translation of one of the chapters in the book of Proverbs. The author refers us to 'the fifth chapter,' but he is wrong. He means chapter vii, verses 6-27. He also quotes from Ecclesiasticus, ix. 9, and xxv. 25.

Nos. 28, 29, 30 (vol. i. p. 32) are not found in Thynne, but were first printed by Stowe. I give them below, at p. 297. The first two stanzas are Lydgate's; and probably the third is his also. It is no great matter.

No. 41 (vol. i. p. 33) was also first printed by Stowe. To save words, I have printed it below, at p. 450, from the original MS.

§ 3. I now consider the non-Chaucerian pieces in Part II. of Stowe's Edition (see vol. i. p. 33). Of these, nos. 45, 50, 56, and 59 are here reprinted.

Nos. 46, 47, 48, 49, 51, 52, 53, 54, and 55 were all taken by Stowe from MS. Trin. R. 3. 19. Perhaps they are sufficiently noticed in vol. i. p. 41, as they present few points of interest. However, I enumerate them, adding a few remarks.

No. 46. The Craft of Lovers. In 23 seven-line stanzas; 161 lines. Besides the copy in the Trin. MS., there are copies (almost duplicates) in MSS. Addit. 34360, fol. 73, back (p. 142), and Harl. 2251, fol. 53 (now called 52). Dated 1448 in the Trin. MS., but 1459 in the other two. The first line ought to run:—‘To moralise, who list these ballets sewe’; but it is clear that some one added the words ‘A similitude’ in the margin, and that this remark was afterwards incorporated in the text. Hence the first line, in the latter MSS., stands:—‘To moralise a similitude who list these balettis sewe’; which is more than enough for a line of five accents. After two introductory stanzas, the poem becomes a dialogue, in alternate stanzas, between a wooer, named Cupido, and a lass, named *Diana*¹; the result of which is successful. This may be compared with La Belle Dame sans Merci, and with the Nut-brown Maid. The twenty-third stanza forms the author’s Conclusio, which is followed by an Envoy in the Addit. MS. and in the Harl. MS. only. The same MSS. seem to superadd two more stanzas; but they really belong to another piece.

No. 47. Taken by Stowe from MS. Trin. R. 3. 19, fol. 156, back. A Balade. In 4 seven-line stanzas; 28 lines. Begins—‘Of their nature they greatly them delite’; i.e. Women are by nature hypocrites; they like kissing live images rather than shrines. So I advise young men to take warning: ‘Beware alwaye, the blind eateth many [a] flye’; a line which is quoted from Lydgate’s ballad printed at p. 295. The author then prays God to keep the fly out of his dish; and ends by congratulating himself on being anonymous, because women would else blame him.

No. 48. The Ten Commandments of Love; from Trin. MS., fol. 109. Also in MS. Fairfax 16. Begins:—‘Certes, ferre extendeth yet my reason.’ In 14 stanzas of seven-lines; the last two form the Envoy. After two introductory stanzas, the author gives the ladies their ten commandments. They are, it appears, to exhibit Faith, Entencion, Discrecion, Patience, Secretenesse, Prudence, Perseverance, Pity, Measure [Moderation], and Mercy. In the Envoy, the author says, truly enough, that he is devoid of cunning, experience, manner of enditing, reason, and eloquence; and that he is ‘a man unknown.’

No. 49. The Nine Ladies Worthy. In 9 seven-line stanzas, one stanza for each lady. Begins: ‘Profulgent in preciousnes,

O Sinope the quene.' Only remarkable for the curious selection made. The Nine Ladies are : (1) Sinope, daughter of Marsepia, queen of the Amazons ; see Orosius, Hist. i. 10 ; (2) Hippolyta, the Amazon, wife of Theseus ; (3) Deipyle, daughter of Adrastus, wife of Tydeus ; (4) Teuta, queen of the Illyrians ; see note to C. T., F 1453 (vol. v. p. 398) ; (5) Penthesilea the Amazon, slain by Achilles before Troy ; (6) queen Tomyris, who slew Cyrus in battle, B. C. 529 ; (7) Lampeto the Amazon, sister of Marsepia, and aunt of Sinope ; (8) Semiramis of Babylon ; (9) Menalippe or Melanippe, sister of Antiope, queen of the Amazons, taken captive by Hercules, according to Justinus, ii. 4. 23. Most of these queens are mentioned by Orosius, i. 10, ii. 1, ii. 4 ; see also Higden's Polychronicon, bk. ii. chapters 9, 21, 24, and bk. iii. c. 7. From the Trin. MS., fol. 113, back.

No. 51. A Ballade. Begins :—' In the season of Feuerere when it was full colde.' In 7 seven-line stanzas. In praise of the daisy. Very poor. From the Trin. MS., fol. 160.

No. 52. A Ballade. Begins—' O Mercifull and o merciabile.' In 12 seven-line stanzas. The Trin. MS. has 13 stanzas ; but Stowe omitted the tenth, because it coincides with st. 19 of the Craft of Lovers. It is made up of scraps from other poems. Stanzas 1-4 form part of a poem on the fall of man, from Lydgate's Court of Sapience (see vol. i. p. 57). In st. 8 occurs the assonance of hote (hot) and stroke ; and in st. 9, that of cureth and renueth. From the Trin. MS., fol. 161.

No. 53. The Judgement of Paris. In 4 seven-line stanzas ; the first is allotted to Pallas, who tells Paris to take the apple, and give it to the fairest of the three goddesses. After this, he is addressed in succession by Juno, Venus, and Minerva (as she is now called). Then the poem ends. Trin. MS., fol. 161, back.

No. 54. A Balade pleasaunte. Begins—' I haue a Ladie where so she bee.' In 7 seven-line stanzas. Meant to be facetious ; e.g. ' Her skin is smothe as any oxes tong.' The author says that when he was fifteen years old, he saw the wedding of queen Jane ; and that was so long ago that there cannot be many such alive. As Joan of Navarre was married to Henry IV in 1403, he was born in 1388, and would have been sixty-two in 1450. It is an imitation of Lydgate's poem entitled A Satirical

Description of his Lady ; see Minor Poems, ed. Halliwell, p. 199. Trin. MS., fol. 205.

No. 55. Another Balade. Begins—‘O mossie Quince, hangyng by your stalke.’ In 4 seven-line stanzas, of which Stowe omits the second. A scurrilous performance. Trin. MS., fol. 205, back.

[No. 56. A Ballad by Lydgate ; printed below, at p. 295.]

No. 58 is a Balade in 9 seven-line stanzas, of no merit, on the theme of the impossibility of restoring a woman’s chastity.

No. 59. The Court of Love. Printed below, at p. 409.

No. 60 is a genuine poem ; and no. 61 is Lydgate’s Story of Thebes. And here Stowe’s performance ceases.

§ 4. The subsequent additions made by Speght are discussed in vol. i. pp. 43–46. Of these, The Flower and the Leaf, Jack Upland, and Hoccleve’s poem to Henry V, are here reprinted ; and Chaucer’s ABC is genuine. He also reprinted the Sayings at p. 450. The pieces not reprinted here are Chaucer’s Dream and Eight Goodly Questions.

Chaucer’s Dream is a false title, assigned to it by Speght ; its proper name is The Isle of Ladies. Begins—‘Whan Flora, the quene of pleasaunce.’ The MS. at Longleat is said to have been written about 1550. A second MS. has been acquired by the British Museum, named MS. Addit. 10303 ; this is also in a hand of the sixteenth century, and presents frequent variations in the text. It is very accessible, in the texts by Moxon, Bell, and Morris ; but how Tyrwhitt ever came to dream that it could be genuine, must remain a mystery. I originally hoped to include this poem in the present selection, but its inordinate length compelled me to abandon my intention. In a prologue of seventy lines, the author truthfully states, at l. 60, that he is ‘a slepy¹ writer.’ There are many assonances, such as undertakes, scapes (337) ; named, attained (597) ; tender, remember (1115, 1415) ; rome, towne (1567). Note also such rimes as destroied, conclude (735) ; queen, kneen, pl. of knee (1779) ; nine, greene (1861) ; vertuous, use (1889). Some rimes exhibit the Northern dialect ; as paines, straines, pr. s., 909 ; wawe, overthrawe, pp., 1153 ; servand, livand, pres. pt., 1629 ; greene, eene (pl. of e, eye), 1719 ; hand, avisand, pres. pt., 1883 ; &c. Yet the writer is not particular ; if he wants a rime to wroth, he uses the Southern form goth, 785; but if he wants a rime to rose, he uses the Northern form gose (goes), 1287, 1523. But before any critic can associate this poem with Chaucer, he has first to prove that it was written before 1450. Moreover, it belongs to the cycle of metrical romances, being connected (as Tyrwhitt says) with the Eliduc of Marie de France; and, perhaps, with her Lanval.

To the Isle of Ladies Speght appended two other poems, of which the former contains a single stanza of 6 lines, and the latter is a ballad in 3 seven-line tanzas.

No. 66. Eight Goodly Questions; in Bell's Chaucer, iv. 421. In 9 seven-line stanzas. First printed in 1542. There are at least two manuscript copies; one in the Trinity MS., marked R. 3. 15; and another in the Bannatyne MS., printed at p. 123 of the print of the Bannatyne MS., issued by the Hunterian Club in 1873. In l. 19, the latter MS. corrects tree to coffour, the Scottish form of cofre. It is merely expanded from the first seven lines of a poem by Ausonius, printed in Walker's Corpus Poetarum Latinorum, with the title Forundem Septem Sapientum Sententie. This English version is quite in Lydgate's style.

§ 5. EDITIONS AND MSS. CONSULTED.

I have repeatedly explained that there were but four black-letter editions of Collected Works before Speght's; and these I call Thynne's first edition (1532), Thynne's second edition (1542¹), the undated edition (about 1550, which I call 1550 for brevity), and Stowe's edition (1561) respectively. I shall denote these editions below by the symbols 'Th.,' ed. 1542, ed. 1550, and 'S.' respectively. Of these editions, the first is the best; the second is derived from the first; the third is derived from the second; and the fourth from the third¹. In every case it is useless to consult a later edition when an earlier one can be found.

The following is the list of the pieces which depend on the editions only, or for which the editions have been collated.

Ed. 1542. And honge his harneys on a pynne; fol. cxix.

Ed. 1550. And honged his harnys on a pynne; fol. xc.

Ed. 1561. And honged his harnis on a pinne; fol. xciii.

I always cite the earliest; that the later ones also contain the piece in question must, once for all, be understood.

Caxton.—XXVIII. No. VII. was also collated with a print by Caxton.

Wynkyn de Worde.—XXIII.

Wynkyn de Worde.—VIII.

Chepman and Miller (1508).—VIII.

Th.—I. IX. XI. XXII. Also collated for IV. V. VII. VIII. X. XII. XVI. XVII. XVIII. XIX. XXI. XXIII.

Thynne had access to excellent MSS., and is always worth consulting.

Ed. 1542.—II. XXVIII. Collated for VI.

An early printed edition of Jack Upland.—III.

S. (1561).—XV. Collated for XIII. XIV. XXIV. XXV. XXIX.

A printed edition of the Testament of Cresseid (1593).—XVII.

Speght (1598).—XX. Collated for III.

The following twenty MSS. have been collated or consulted.

§ 7. I. THE TESTAMENT OF LOVE; BY THOMAS USK.

Of this piece no MS. copy has been discovered. The only authority is Thynne's edition of 1532, whence all later editions have been copied more or less incorrectly. The reprints will be found to grow steadily worse, so that the first edition is the only one worth consulting.

The present edition is printed from a transcript of Thynne (1532), made by myself; the proof-sheets being carefully read with the original. In making the transcript, I have altered the symbol u to v, when used as a consonant; and (in the few places where it occurs) the consonantal i to j. I have also substituted i for y when the vowel is short, chiefly in the case of the suffix -yng or -ynge, here printed -ing or -inge. In nearly all other cases, the original spellings are given in the footnotes. Thynne's chief errors of printing occur in places where he has persistently altered the spelling of the MS. to suit the spelling in fashion in the days of Henry VIII. His chief alterations are as follows. He prints ea for open ee, written ee or e at the beginning of the fifteenth century; thus, he has ease for ese, and please for plese. He most perversely adds a useless final e to the words howe, nowe, and some others; and he commits the anachronism of printing father, mother, together, wether, gather, in place of fader, moder, togeder, weder, gader; whereas the termination in these words invariably appears as -der till shortly before 1500. Further, he prints catche for cacche, perfection for perfeccion, and the like; and in several other ways has much impaired the spelling of his original. Many of these things I have attempted to set right; and the scholar who compares the text with the footnotes will easily see why each alteration has been made, if he happens to be at all conversant with MSS. written in the fourteenth century.

I believe that this piece is almost unparalleled as regards the shameful corruption of its text. It cannot be supposed that Thynne or any one else ever read it over with the view of seeing whether the result presented any sense. Originally written in an obscure style, every form of carelessness seems to have been employed in order to render it more obscure than before. In a great number of places, it is easy to restore the sense by the insertion of such necessary words as of, or but, or by. In other places, non-existent words can be replaced by real ones; or some correction can be made that is more or less obvious. I have marked all inserted words by placing them within square brackets, as, e.g., am in l. 46 on p. 6. Corrections of readings are marked by the use of a dagger (†); thus 'I † wot wel' in l. 78 on p. 7 is my emendation of Thynne's phrase 'I wol wel,' which is duly recorded in the footnote. But some sentences remain in which the sense is not obvious; and one is almost tempted to think that the author did not clearly know what he intended to say. That he was remarkable for a high degree of inaccuracy will appear presently.

A strange misprint occurs in Book III. ch. 4. ll. 30, 31 (p. 117), where nearly two whole lines occur twice over; but the worst confusion is due to an extraordinary dislocation of the text in Book III. (c. iv. l. 56—c. ix. l. 46), as recently discovered by the sagacity of Mr. H. Bradley, and explained more fully below.

I have also, for the first time, revised the punctuation, which in Thynne is only denoted by frequent sloping strokes and full stops, which are not always inserted in the right places. And I have broken up the chapters into convenient paragraphs.

§ 8. A very curious point about this piece is the fact which I was the first to observe, viz. that the initial letters of the various chapters were certainly intended to form an acrostic. Unfortunately, Thynne did not perceive this design, and has certainly begun some of the chapters either with the wrong letter or at a wrong place. The sense shews that the first letter of Book I. ch. viii. should be E, not O (see the note); and, with this correction, the initial letters of the First Book yield the words—MARGARETE OF.

In Book II, Thynne begins Chapters XI and XII at wrong places, viz. with the word 'Certayn' (p. 86, l. 133), and the word 'Trewly' (p. 89, l. 82). He thus produces the words—VIRTW HAVE MCTRCI. It is obvious that the last word ought to be MERCI, which can be obtained by beginning Chapter XI with the word 'Every,' which suits the sense quite as well.

For the chapters of Book III, we are again dependent on Thynne. If we accept his arrangement as it stands, the letters yielded are—ON THSKNVI; and the three books combined give us the sentence :—MARGARETE OF VIRTW, HAVE MERCI ON THSKNVI. Here 'Margarete of virtw' means 'Margaret endued with divine virtue'; and the author appeals either to the Grace of God, or to the Church. The last word ought to give us the author's name; but in that case the letters require rearrangement before the riddle can be read with certainty.

After advancing so far towards the solution of the mystery, I was here landed in a difficulty which I was unable to solve. But Mr. H. Bradley, by a happy inspiration, hit upon the idea that the text might have suffered dislocation; and was soon in a position to prove that no less than six leaves of the MS. must have been out of place, to the great detriment of the sense and confusion of the argument. He very happily restored the right order, and most obligingly communicated to me the result. I at once cancelled the latter part of the treatise (from p. 113 to the end), and reprinted this portion in the right order, according to the sense. With this correction, the unmeaning THSKNVI is resolved into the two words THIN USK, i. e. 'thine Usk'; a result the more remarkable because Mr. Bradley had previously hit upon Usk as being the probable author. For the autobiographical details exactly coincide, in every particular, with all that is known of the career of Thomas Usk, according to Walsingham, the Rolls of Parliament, and the continuation of Higden's Polychronicon by John Malverne (ed. Lumby, vol. ix. pp. 45-6, 134, 150, 169); cf. Lingard, ed. 1874, iii. 163-7.

The date of the composition of this piece can now be determined without much error. Usk was executed on March 4, 1388, and we find him referring to past events that happened towards the end of 1384 or later. The most likely date is about 1387.

I here append an exact account of the order of the text as it appears in Thynne; every break in the text being denoted, in the present volume, by a dark asterisk.

Thynne's text is in a correct order from p. 1 to p. 118, l. 56:—any mouable tyme there (Th. fol. 354, col. 2, l. 11)¹.

(1) Next comes, in Thynne, the passage beginning at p. 135, l. 94:—Fole, haue I not seyde—and ending at p. 143, l. 46:—syth god is the greatest loue and the (Th. fol. 356, back, col. 1, l. 5).

(2) Next, in Thynne, the passage beginning at p. 131, l. 97:—ne ought to loke thynges with resonnyng—and ending at p. 132, l. 161, at the end of a chapter (Th. fol. 356, back, col. 2, last line).

(3) Next, in Thynne, the passage beginning at p. 124, l. 8:—Now trewly, lady—and ending at p. 128, at the end of the chapter (Th. fol. 357, last line).

(4) Next, in Thynne, the passage beginning at p. 132, new chapter:—Uery trouth (quod she)—and ending at p. 135, l. 94:—that shal bringe out frute that (Th. fol. 358, back, col. 1, l. 25).

(5) Next, in Thynne, the passage beginning at p. 118, l. 56:—is nothyng preterit ne passed—and ending at p. 124, l. 7:—euer to onbyde (Th. fol. 360, col. 1, l. 24).

(6) Next, in Thynne, the passage beginning at p. 128, new chapter:—Nowe, lady (quod I) that tree to set—and ending at p. 131, l. 97:—vse ye (Th. fol. 360, back, col. 2, l. 9).

(7) Lastly, the text reverts to the true order, at p. 143, l. 46, with the words:—greatest wisdom (Th. fol. 360, back, col. 2, l. 9. as before). See The Athenæum, no. 3615, Feb. 6, 1897.

It is not difficult to account for this somewhat confusing dislocation. It is clear that the original MS. was written on quires of the usual size, containing 8 folios apiece. The first 10 quires, which we may call a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, and k, were in the right order. The rest of the MS. occupied quire l (of 8 folios), and quire m (of only 2); the last page being blank. The seventh folio of l was torn up the back, so that the two leaves parted company; and the same happened to both the folios in quire m, leaving six leaves loose. What then happened was this:—first of all, folios *l*₁—*l*₄ were reversed and turned inside out; then came the former halves of m_1 , and m_2 , and the latter half of l_7 ; next l_5 and l_6 (undetached), with the former half of l_7 thrust in the middle; so that the order in this extraordinary quire was as follows: l_4 , l_3 , l_2 , l_1 , all inside out, half of m_1 , half of m_2 , the latter half of l_7 , l_5 , l_6 , and the former half of l_7 , followed by the six undetached leaves. The last quire simply consisted of l_8 (entire), followed by the latter halves of m_2 and m_1 , which were kept in the right order by the fact that the last page was blank.

It has thus become possible for us to make some progress towards the right understanding of the work, which has hitherto been much misunderstood. Warton (Hist. E. Poetry, 1840, ii. 218) dismisses it in two lines:—‘It is a lover’s parody of Boethius’s book De Consolatione mentioned above’; whereas the author was not a lover at all, except in a spiritual sense. Even the fuller account in Morley’s English Writers (1890), v. 261, is not wholly correct. The statement is there made, that ‘it professes to be written, and probably was written, by a prisoner in danger of his life’; but the prison¹ may have been at first metaphorical, as he could hardly have written the whole work in two or three months. In Book iii. ch. 9, ll. 131, 132, he prays that ‘God’s hand, which has scourged him in mercy, may hereafter mercifully keep and defend him in good plight.’ The whole tone of the treatise shews that he is writing to justify himself, and thinks that he has succeeded. But a stern doom was close at hand.

§ 9. The truth is that the attempts of Godwin and others to make the autobiographical statements of the author fit into the life of Chaucer, have quite led the critics out of the right track. That the author was not Chaucer is perfectly obvious to every one who reads the passage in the lower half of p. 140 with moderate attention; for the author there refers to Chaucer as Love’s ‘noble philosophical poet in English,’ who wrote a treatise of Love’s servant Troilus, and who ‘passeth all other makers in wit and in good reason of sentence’; praise which, however true it may be of Chaucer, the writer was certainly not entitled to claim for himself. The sole point in which the circumstances of the author agree with those of Chaucer is this—that they were both born in London; which is, obviously, too slight a coincidence to build upon. Now that we know the author's name to have been Thomas Usk, the matter assumes quite another complexion. Usk was much inclined, in his early days, to a belief in Lollard opinions; but when he found that persistence in such belief was likely to lead to trouble and danger, he deemed it prudent to recant as completely as he could¹, and contemplates his consequent security with some complacency.

In just the same way, it appears that he had changed sides in politics. We first find him in the position of confidential clerk to John of Northampton, mayor of London in 1381-2 and 1382-3. In July, 1384, Usk was arrested and imprisoned in order to induce him to reveal certain secrets implicating Northampton. This he consented to do, and accused Northampton before the king at Reading, on the 18th of August. Northampton strenuously denied the charges against him, but was condemned as guilty, and sent to Corfe castle². After this, Usk joined the party of Sir Nicholas Brembre, mayor of London in 1383-4, 1384-5, and 1385-6, and Collector of Customs in 1381-3, when Chaucer was Comptroller of the same. Brembre had been active in procuring the condemnation of Northampton, and was, at the close of 1386, one of the few personal adherents who remained faithful to the king. In 1387, Richard was busily devising means for the overthrow of the duke of Gloucester's regency, Brembre and Usk being on the king's side; but his attempts were unsuccessful, and, in November of the same year, the duke of Gloucester and his partisans, who were called the 'appellants,' became masters of the situation; they accused the king's councillors of treason, and imprisoned or banished their opponents. On Feb. 3, 1388, the appellants produced their charges against their victims, Brembre and Usk being among the number. Both were condemned and executed, Brembre on Feb. 20, and Usk on the 4th of March. Usk's offence was that he had been appointed sub-sheriff of Middlesex by Brembre's influence³, with a view to the arrest of the duke of Gloucester and others of his party. His defence was that all that he had done was by the king's orders, a defence on which he doubtless relied. Unfortunately for him, it was an aggravation of his crime. It was declared that he ought to have known that the king was not at the time his own master, but was acting according to the counsel of false advisers ; and this sealed his fate. He was sentenced to be drawn, hung, and beheaded, and that his head should be set up over Newgate. The sentence was barbarously carried out ; he was hung but immediately cut down, and clumsily beheaded by nearly thirty strokes of a sword. ‘Post triginta mucronis ictus fere decapitatus semper usque ad mortem nunquam fatebatur se deliquisse contra Johannem Northampton, sed erant omnia vera quae de eo praedicaverat coram rege in quodam consilio habito apud Radyngum anno elapso.’—Higden, App. 169. John of Malverne speaks as if he had some personal recollection of Usk, of whom he says—‘Satagebat namque astu et arte illorum amicitiam sibi attrahere quos procul dubio ante capitales hostes sibi fuisse cognovit.’—Ib. p. 45.

³ Rolls of Parliament, iii. 234a.

We can now readily understand that Usk’s praise of Chaucer must have been more embarrassing than acceptable ; and perhaps it was not altogether without design that the poet, in his House of Fame, took occasion to let the world know how he devoted his leisure time to other than political subjects.

He further tells us how he endeavoured to make his peace with the Church. Taking his cue from the parable of the merchantman seeking goodly pearls (p. 16, l. 84), he likens the visible Church of Christ to the pearl of great price (p. 145, l. 103 ; p. 94, l. 121), and piteously implores her mercy (p. 8, l. 135) ; and the whole tone of the piece shews his confidence that he is reasonably safe (p. 144, l. 120). He sees clearly that lollardy is unacceptable, and indulges in the usual spiteful fling against the cockle (lolia) which the Lollards were reproached with sowing (p. 48, l. 93). He had once been a heretic (p. 99, l. 29), and in danger of ‘never returning’ to the true Church (p. 99, l. 38) ; but he secured his safety by a full submission (p. 105, l. 133).

At the same time, there is much about the piece that is vague, shifty, and unsatisfactory. He is too full of excuses, and too plausible; in a word, too selfish. Hence he has no real message for others, but only wishes to display his skill, which he does by help of the most barefaced and deliberate plagiarism. It was not from the Consolatio Philosophiae of Boethius, but from the English translation of that work by Chaucer, that he really drew his materials; and he often takes occasion to lift lines or ideas from the poem of Troilus whenever he can find any that come in handy. In one place he turns a long passage from the House of Fame into very inferior prose. There are one or two passages that remind us of the Legend of Good Women (i. pr. 100, ii. 3. 38, iii. 7. 38); but they are remarkably few. But he keeps a copy of Chaucer's Boethius always open before him, and takes from it passage after passage, usually with many alterations, abbreviations, expansions, and other disfigurements; but sometimes without any alteration at all. A few examples will suffice, as a large number of parallel passages are duly pointed out in the Notes.

§ 11. In Chaucer's Boethius (bk. i. pr. 3. 10), when Philosophy, the heavenly visitant, comes to comfort the writer, her first words are:—'O my norry, sholde I forsaken thee now?' In the Testament (p. 10, l. 37), Heavenly Love commences her consolations with the same exclamation:—'O my nory, wenest thou that my maner be, to foryete my frendes or my servaunts?' The Latin text—'An te, alumne, desererem?'—does not suggest this remarkable mode of address.

This, however, is a mere beginning; it is not till further on that plagiarisms begin to be frequent. At first, as at p. 37, the author copies the sense rather than the words; but he gradually begins to copy words and phrases also. Thus, at p. 43, l. 38, his 'chayres of domes' comes from Chaucer's 'heye chayres' in bk. i. met. 5. 27; and then, in the next line, we find 'vertue, shynende naturelly . . is hid under cloude,' where Chaucer has 'vertu, cler-shyninge naturelly is hid in derke derknesses'; bk. i. met. 5. 28. At p. 44, l. 66, we have: 'Whan nature brought thee forth, come thou not naked out of thy moders wombe? Thou haddest no richesse'; where Chaucer has: 'Whan that nature broughte thee forth out of thy moder wombe, I receyved thee naked, and nedy of alle thinges'; bk. ii. pr. 2. 10. Just a few lines below (ll. 71-76) we have the sense, but not the words, of the neighbouring passage in Chaucer (ll. 23-25). Further literal imitations are pointed out in the Notes to l. 85 in the same chapter, and elsewhere. See, for example, the Notes to Book ii. ch. iv. 4, 14, 20, 61; ch. v. 15, 57, 65, 67, 79; ch. vi. 11, 30, 74, 117, 123, 129, 132, 143; ch. vii. 8, 14, 20, 23, 30, 39, 50, 74, 95, 98, 105, 109, 114, 117, 130, 135, 139, 148; &c.

Those who require conviction on this point may take such an example as this.

‘O! a noble thing and clere is power, that is not founden mighty to kepe himselfe’; (p. 70, l. 20).

‘O! a noble thing and a cleer thing is power, that is nat founden mighty to kepen it-self’; Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 5. 5-7.

The Latin text is: ‘O praeclara potentia quae nec ad conseruationem quidem sui satis efficax inuenitur.’ I see no reason for supposing that the author anywhere troubled himself to consult the Latin original. Indeed, it is possible to correct errors in the text by help of Chaucer’s version; see the last note on p. 461.

§ 12. We get the clearest idea of the author’s method by observing his treatment of the House of Fame, 269-359. It is worth while to quote the whole passage:—

‘Lo! how a woman doth amis
To love him that unknowen is! . . .	270
Hit is not al gold that glareth; . . .
Ther may be under goodlihced
Kevered many a shrewed vyce;	275
Therefore be no wight so nyce,
To take a love only for chere,
For speche, or for frendly manere;
For this shal every woman finde
That som man, of his pure kinde,	280
Wol shewen outward the faireste
Til he have caught that what him leste;
And thanne wol he causes finde,
And swere how that she is unkinde,
Or fals, or prevy, or double was . . .	285
Therfor I wol seye a proverbe,
That “he that fully knoweth th’erbe	290
May sauflly leye hit to his yē” . . .
Allas! is every man thus trewe,
That every yere wolde have a newe, . . .

If the reader will now turn to p. 54, l. 45, and continue down to l. 81 on the next page, he will find the whole of this passage turned into prose, with numerous cunning alterations and a few insertions, yet including all such words as are printed above in italics ! That is, he will find all except the proverb in ll. 290, 291 ; but this also is not far off ; for it occurs over the leaf, on p. 56, at l. 115, and again at p. 22, ll. 44-45 ! Surely, this is nothing but book-making, and the art of it does not seem to be difficult.

§ 13. The author expressly acknowledges his admiration of Troilus (p. 140, l. 292); and it is easy to see his indebtedness to that poem. He copies Chaucer's curious mistake as to Styx being a pit (p. 3, l. 80, and the note). He adopts the words let-game (p. 18, l. 124) and wiver (p. 129, l. 27). He quotes a whole line from Troilus at p. 27, l. 78 (see note); and spoils another one at p. 34, ch. viii. l. 5, a third at p. 80, l. 116, and a fourth at p. 128, ch. vii. l. 2. We can see whence he took his allusion to 'playing raket,' and to the dock and nettle, at p. 13, ll. 166, 167; and the phrase to 'pype with an yvè-lefe' at p. 134, l. 50.

It is further observable that he had read a later text of Piers Plowman with some care, but he seems to quote it from memory, as at p. 18, l. 153, and p. 24, l. 118. A few other passages in which he seems to have taken ideas from this popular and remarkable poem are pointed out in the Notes. It is probable that he thence adopted the words legistres and skleren ; for which see the Glossary, and consult the Notes for the references which are there given.

§ 14. The author is frequently guilty of gross inaccuracies. He seems to confuse Cain with Ham (p. 52, ll. 107, 109), but Cayn, says Mr. Bradley, may be Thynne's misprint for Cam, i. e. Ham. He certainly confuses Perdiccas with Arrhidæus (p. 52, l. 116). He speaks of the eighth year, instead of the seventh, as being a sabbatical year, and actually declares that the ordinary week contains seven working-days (p. 24, ll. 102-104) ! He tells us that Sunday begins 'at the first hour after noon (!) on Saturday' (p. 82, l. 163). Hence it is not to be wondered at that some of his arguments and illustrations are quite unintelligible.

§ 15. The title of the work, viz. THE TESTAMENT OF LOVE, readily reminds us of the passage in Gower already quoted in vol. iii. p. xliii., in which the goddess Venus proposes that Chaucer should write 'his testament of love,' in order 'to sette an ende of alle his werke.' I have already explained that the real reference in this passage is to the Legend of Good Women ; but I am not prepared, at present, to discuss the connection between the expression in Gower and the treatise by Usk. The fact that our author adopted the above title may have led to the notion that Chaucer wrote the treatise here discussed ; but it is quite clear that he had nothing to do with it.

Professor Morley well says that 'the writer of this piece uses the word Testament in the old Scriptural sense of a witnessing, and means by Love the Divine Love, the Christian spirit encouraging and directing the wish for the grace of God, called Margaret, the pearl beyond all price.' To which, however, it is highly essential to add that Margaret is not used in the sense of 'grace' alone, but is also employed, in several passages, to signify 'the visible Church of Christ.' The author is, in fact, careful to warn us of the varying, the almost Protean sense of the word at p. 145, where he tells us that 'Margarite, a woman [i. e. properly a woman's name], betokeneth grace, lerning, or wisdom of god, or els holy church.' His object seems to have been to extend the meaning of the word so as to give him greater scope for ingenuity in varying his modes of reference to it. He has certainly succeeded in adding to the obscurity of his subject. That by 'holy church' he meant the visible Church of Christ of his own time, appears from the remarkable assertion that it is 'deedly,' i. e. mortal (p. 94, l. 121). Such an epithet is inapplicable to the Church in its spiritual character. It may also be observed that, however much the sense implied by Margarite may vary, it never takes the meaning which we should most readily assign to it; i. e. it never means a live woman, nor represents even an imaginary object of natural human affection. The nearest approach to such an ideal is at p. 94, l. 114, where we are told that the jewel which he hopes to attain is as precious a pearl as a woman is by nature.

§ 16. It hardly seems worth while to give a detailed analysis of the whole piece. An analysis of the First Book (which is, on the whole, the best) is given by Professor Morley; and the hints which I have already given as to the character and situation of the author will enable the reader to regard the treatise from a right point of view. But it is proper to observe that the author himself tells us how he came to divide the work into three books¹, and what are the ideas on which each book is founded. Each of the three books has an introductory chapter. That to the First Book I have called a Prologue; and perhaps it would have been strictly correct to have called the first chapters of the other books by the same name. In the introductory chapter to the Third Book, p. 101, he declares that the First Book is descriptive of Error, or Deviation (which the editions print as Demacion!); the Second, of Grace; and the Third, of Joy. In other words, the First Book is particularly devoted to recounting the errors of his youth, especially how he was led by others into a conspiracy against the state and into deviation from orthodoxy. In the Prologue, he excuses himself for writing in English, and announces the title of the work. He then assures us that he is merely going to gather up the crumbs that have fallen from the table, and to glean handfuls of corn which Boethius has dropped. 'A sly servant in his own help is often much commended'; and this being understood, he proceeds to help himself accordingly, as has already been explained.

§ 17. BOOK I: CH. I. In Chapter I, he describes his misery,

¹ Professor Morley says:—'As Boethius . . . wrote three books of the Consolation of Philosophy,' &c. But Boethius wrote five books.

and hopes that the dice will turn, and implores the help of Margaret, here used (apparently) to typify the grace of God. He represents himself as being in prison, in imitation of Boethius; but I suspect that, in the present passage, the prison was metaphorical. (He had been imprisoned in 1384, and in 1387 was imprisoned again; but that is another matter.)

CH. II. Heavenly Love suddenly appears to him, as Philosophy appeared to Boethius, and is ready to console and reclaim him. She is aware of his losses, and he tries to vindicate his constancy of character.

CH. III. He describes how he once wandered through the woods at the close of autumn, and was attacked by some animals who had suddenly turned wild. To save himself, he embarks on board a ship; but the reader is disappointed to find that the adventure is wholly unreal; the ship is the ship of Travail, peopled by Sight, Lust, Thought, and Will. He is driven on an island, where he catches a glimpse of Love, and finds a Margaret, a pearl of price. He appeals to Love to comfort him.

CH. IV. Love first reproves and then consoles him. She enquires further into his complaints.

CH. V. She advises him to condemn such as have spoken against him. He complains that he has served seven years for Rachel, and prays for comfort in his eighth year. She exhorts him to perseverance.

CH. VI. He here goes into several details as to his previous conduct. The authorities threatened to keep him in prison, unless he would reveal a certain secret or plot. He was afraid that the peace of his native place, London, would suffer; and to procure its peace, he 'declared certain points.' Being charged upon oath to reveal certain secret dealings, he at once did so; for which he incurred much odium.

CH. VII. To prove that he had only spoken the truth, he offered wager of battle; and was justified by the fact that no one accepted it. He had not perjured himself, because his oath in the law-court was superior to his former oath of secrecy. He only meant truth, but was sadly slandered. It is absurd to be 'a stinking martyr' in a false cause.

CH. VIII. Love tells him he has greatly erred, and must expect much correction. Earthly fame should be despised, whilst he looks for the fame that comes after death.

CH. IX. Love vindicates the greatness of God and the goodness of His providence.

CH. X. The author complains of his hard fortune; he has lost his goods and has been deprived of his office. Love explains that adversity teaches salutary lessons, and that the true riches may still be his own.

§ 18. BOOK II. In the first chapter (or Prologue) of the Second Book, he again discusses the object of his work. In Chapter II, Love sings him a Latin song, introducing complaints against the clergy such as frequently occur in Piers the Plowman. In Chapter III, we find a discourse on womankind, largely borrowed from Chaucer's House of Fame. The next eight chapters are chiefly devoted to a discussion of the way by which the repentant sinner may come to 'the knot' of Heavenly bliss; and it is here, in particular, that a large portion of Chaucer's Boethius is freely imitated or copied. The last three chapters recount the excellences of Margaret, which in many passages refers rather to the visible Church than to divine Grace.

§ 19. BOOK III. The first chapter is again introductory, explaining why the number of Books is three. 'The Margaret in virtue is likened to Philosophy, with her three kinds.' It is remarkable that this Third Book, which is dedicated to Joy, is the duller of the three, being largely taken up with the questions of predestination and free will, with more borrowings from Chaucer's Boethius. In Chapter V, Love explains how continuance in good will produces the fruit of Grace; and, in Chapters VI and VII, shews how such grace is to be attained. Chapter IX recurs to the subject of predestination; after which the work comes to a formal conclusion, with excuses for its various imperfections.

§ 20. II. THE PLOWMANS TALE.

This piece does not appear in Thynne's first edition of 1532, but occurs, for the first time, in the second edition of 1542, where it is added at the end of the Canterbury Tales, after the Parson's Tale. In the next (undated) edition, probably printed about 1550, it is placed before the Parson's Tale, as if it were really Chaucer's, and the same arrangement occurs in the fourth edition, that of 1561, by John Stowe. It is worth mentioning that some booksellers put forward a fable as to the true date of the undated edition being 1539, in order to enhance the value of their copies ; but the pretence is obviously false, as is shewn by collation¹ ; besides which, it is not likely that the Plowman's Tale would have been at first inserted before the Parson's Tale, then placed after it, and then again placed before it. It is best to separate the first four editions by nearly equal intervals, their dates being, respectively, 1532, 1542, about 1550, and 1561.

Comparison of the black-letter editions shews that the first is the best ; and the later ones, being mere reprints, grow gradually worse. Hence, in this case, the edition of 1542 is the sole authority, and the readings of the inferior copies may be safely neglected. It is remarkable that Mr. T. Wright, in his edition of this poem printed in his Political Poems and Songs, i. 304, should have founded his text upon a reprint of Speght in 1687, when he might have taken as his authority a text more than 140 years older. The result is, naturally, that his text is much worse than was at all necessary.

According to Speght, there was once a MS. copy of this piece in Stowe's library, but no one knows what became of it. According to Todd, in his Illustrations of Gower and Chaucer, p. xxxix, there was once a black-letter edition of it, entitled 'The Plouuman's tale compyll'd by syr Geffray Chaucer knyght.' Todd says : 'It is of the duodecimo size, in the black letter, without date, and imprinted at London in Paules church-yard at the sygne of the Hyll, by Wyllyam Hyll. I have compared with the poem as printed by Urry forty or fifty lines, and I found almost as many variations between them². The colophon of this book is, Thus endeth the boke of Chaunterburye Tales. This rarity belongs to the Rev. Mr. Conybeare, the present Professor of the Saxon language in the University of Oxford.' This edition can no longer be traced. Hazlitt mentions a black-letter edition of this piece, printed separately by Thomas Godfray (about 1535), on twenty leaves ; of which only one copy is known, viz. that at Britwell. There is also a late print of it in the Bodleian Library, dated 1606.

§ 21. It is needless to discuss the possibility that Chaucer wrote this Tale, as it is absent from all the MSS.; and it does not appear that the ascription of it to him was taken seriously. It is obvious, from the introductory Prologue (p. 147), that the author never intended his work to be taken for Chaucer's; he purposely chooses a different metre from any that occurs in the Canterbury Tales, and he introduces his Ploughman as coming under the Host's notice quite suddenly, so that the Host is constrained to ask him—'what man art thou?' The whole manner of the Tale is conspicuously and intentionally different from that of Chaucer; and almost the only expression which at all resembles Chaucer occurs in ll. 51, 52:—

'I pray you that no man me reproche
Whyl that I am my tale telling.'

Chaucer himself, before reciting his Tale of Melibeus, said much the same thing:—

'And let me tellen al my tale, I preye.'

I do not know why Mr. Wright, when reprinting this piece, omitted the Prologue. It is a pity that half of the sixth stanza is missing.

§ 22. At l. 1065 we meet with a most important statement:—

'Of freres I have told before
In a making of a Crede.'

It is generally agreed that the author here claims to have previously written the well-known piece entitled Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, which I edited for the Early English Text Society in 1867. I then took occasion to compare the language of these two pieces (which I shall shortly call the Crede and the Tale), and I found ample confirmation, from internal evidence, that the claim is certainly true. There are many similarities of expression, some of which I here lay before the reader.

The Crede is written in alliterative verse; and it will be observed that alliteration is employed in the Tale very freely. Another peculiarity in the Tale may here be noticed, viz. the use of the same rime, fall or befall, throughout Part I, with the exception of ll. 205-228. Indeed, in the first line of Part II, the author apologizes for being unable to find any more rimes for fall, and proceeds to rime upon amend throughout that Part. In Part III, he begins to rime upon grace in the first two stanzas, but soon abandons it for the sake of freedom; however, at l. 1276, he recurs to grace, and continues to rime upon it till the end. It is clear that the author possessed considerable facility of expression. We can date these pieces approximately without much error. The proceedings against Walter Brute, expressly alluded to in the Crede, l. 657, lasted from Oct. 15, 1391, to Oct. 6, 1393, when he submitted himself to the bishop of Hereford. We may well date the Crede about 1394, and the Tale (which probably soon followed it, as the author repeats some of his expressions) about 1395¹.

Both these pieces are written in a spirited style, and are of considerable interest for the light which they throw upon many of the corrupt practices of the monks, friars, and clergy. The Crede is directed against the friars in particular, and reflects many of the opinions of Wyclif, as will easily appear by comparing it with Wyclif's works. See, in particular, his Fifty Heresies and Errors of Friars (Works, ed. Arnold, iii. 366). It would have been easy to crowd the Notes with quotations from Wyclif; but it is sufficient to point out so obvious a source. I have not observed any passage in which the author copies the exact language of Langland. The dialect seems to be some form of Midland, and is somewhat archaic; many of the verbal forms are of some value to the philologist. Taken altogether, it is a piece of considerable interest and merit. Ten Brink alludes to it as 'that transparent, half-prophetic allegory of the Quarrel between the Griffin and the Pelican'; and adds—'The Griffin was the representative of the prelates and the monks, the Pelican that of real Christianity in Wyclif's sense. At a loss for arguments, the Griffin calls in at last all the birds of prey in order to destroy its rival. The Phoenix, however, comes to the help of the Pelican, and terribly destroys the robber-brood.'

Tyrwhitt observed, with great acuteness, that Spenser's allusion, in the Epilogue to his Shepherds Calender, to 'the Pilgrim that the Ploughman playde awhyle,' may well refer to the author of the Plowman's Tale rather than to Langland¹. Cf. p. 147, l. 12. It was natural that Spenser should mention him along with Chaucer, because their productions were bound up together in the same volume; a volume which was, to Spenser, a treasure-house of archaic words.

The discussion on points of religion between the Griffin and the Pelican clearly suggested to Dryden his discussion between the Hind and the Panther. His choice of quadrupeds in place of birds is certainly no improvement.

§ 23. III. JACK UPLAND.

Of this piece, no MS. copy is known. It is usually said to have been first printed by Speght, in his second edition of Chaucer's Works in 1602; but I have been so fortunate as to find a better and earlier text in the library of Caius College, Cambridge, to which my attention was drawn by a note in Hazlitt's Bibliographer's Handbook. This copy, here taken as the basis of my text, and collated with Speght, is a small book consisting of only 16 leaves. The title-page contains the following words, within a square border.

¶ Jack vp Lande | Compyled by the | famous Geoffrey | Chaucer.
 | Ezechielis. xiii. | ¶ Wo be vnto you that | dishonour me to me
 (sic) peo | ple for an handful of bar | lye & for a pece of bread. |
 Cum priuilegio | Regali.

At the end of the treatise is the colophon: ¶ Prynted for Ihon Gough. Cum Priuilegio Regali.

Hazlitt conjectures that it was printed about 1540. I think we may safely date it in 1536; for it is bound up in a volume with several other tracts, and it so happens that the tract next following it is by Myles Coverdale, and is dated 1536, being printed in just the very same type and style. We can also tell that it must have been printed after 1535, because the verse from Ezekiel xiii, as quoted on the title-page (see above), exactly corresponds with Coverdale's version of the Bible, the first edition of which appeared in that year.

The text of Jack Upland, in the Caius College copy, has the following heading, in small type:—‘¶ These bē the lewed questions of Freres rytes and obseruaunces the whych they chargen more than Goddes lawe, and therfore men shulden not gyue hem what so they beggen, tyll they hadden answered and clerely assoyled these questions.’

As this copy is, on the whole, considerably superior to Speght's both as regards sense and spelling, I have not given his inferior readings and errors. In a very few places, Speght furnishes some obvious corrections; and in such instances his readings are noted.

§ 24. A very convenient reprint of Speght's text is given in Wright's edition of Political Poems and Songs (Record Series), vol. ii. p. 16. In the same volume, p. 39, is printed a reply to Jack Upland's questions by a friar who facetiously calls himself Friar Daw Topias, though it appears (from a note printed at p. 114) that his real name was John Walsingham. Nor is this all; for Friar Daw's reply is further accompanied by Jack Upland's rejoinder, printed, for convenience, below Friar Daw's text. It is most likely, as Mr. Wright concludes, that all three pieces may be dated in the same year. It was necessary that Friar Daw (who gave himself this name in order to indicate that he is a comparatively unlearned man, yet easily able to refute his audacious questioner) should produce his reply at once; and we may be sure that Jack's rejoinder was not long delayed. Fortunately, the date can be determined with sufficient exactness; for Jack's rejoinder contains the allusion: 'and the kyng by his juges trwe [sholde] execute his lawe, as he did now late, whan he hangid you traytours,' p. 86. This clearly refers to June, 1402¹, when eight Franciscan friars were hanged at Tyburn for being concerned in a plot against the life of Henry IV. We may, accordingly, safely refer all three pieces to the year 1402; shortly after Chaucer's death.

§ 25. It is also tolerably clear that there must have been two texts of 'Jack Upland,' an earlier and a later one. The earlier one, of which we have no copy, can easily be traced by help of Friar Daw's reply, as he quotes all that is material point by point. It only extended as far as the 54th question in the present edition (p. 199); after which followed two more questions which do not here reappear. The later copy also contains a few questions, not far from the beginning, which Friar Daw ignores. It is clear that we only possess a later, and, on the whole, a fuller copy. One of the omitted questions relates to transubstantiation; and, as any discussion of it was extremely likely, at that date, to be ended by burning the disputant at the stake, it was certainly prudent to suppress it. Not perceiving this point, Mr. Wright too hastily concluded that our copy of Jack Upland is extremely corrupt, a conclusion quite unwarranted; inasmuch as Friar Daw, in spite of his affectation of alliterative verse, quotes his adversary's questions with reasonable correctness. On this unsound theory Mr. Wright has built up another, still less warranted, viz. that the original copy of Jack Upland must have been written in alliterative verse; for no other reason than because Friar Daw's reply is so written. It is obvious that alliteration is conspicuously absent, except in the case of the four lines (424-7), which are introduced, by way of flourish, at the end. My own belief is that our copy of Jack Upland is a second edition, i. e. an amended and extended copy, which has been reasonably well preserved. It is more correct than the Plowmans Tale, and very much more correct than the Testament of Love.

§ 26. Mr. Wright further imagines that Jack Upland's rejoinder to Friar Daw's reply, which he prints from 'a contemporary MS. in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, MS. Digby 41,' was also originally in alliterative verse. This supposition is almost as gratuitous as the former; for, although there are very frequent traces of alliteration as an occasional embellishment, it is otherwise written in ordinary prose. The mere chopping up of prose into bits of not very equal length, as in Mr. Wright's print, does not produce verse of any kind. Friar Daw's verses are bad enough, as he did not understand his model (obviously the Ploughman's Crede), but he usually succeeds in making a kind of jingle, with pauses, for the most part, in the right place. But there is no verse discoverable in Jack Upland; he preferred straightforward prose, for reasons that are perfectly obvious.

For further remarks, I beg leave to refer the reader to Mr. Wright's Introduction, pp. xii-xxiv, where he will find an excellent summary of the arguments adduced on both sides. There is a slight notice of Jack Upland in Morley's English Writers, vi. 234.

§ 27. IV. JOHN GOWER: THE PRAISE OF PEACE.

In Morley's English Writers, iv. 157, this poem is entitled 'De Pacis Commendatione,' on MS. authority (see p. 216). Mr. E. B. Nicholson, who has made a special study of Gower's poems, suggested 'The Praise of Peace,' which I have gladly adopted. I am much obliged to Mr. Nicholson for his assistance in various ways; and, in particular, for the generous loan of his own transcript of this poem.

§ 28. In Todd's Illustrations of Gower and Chaucer, p. 95, is a notice of a MS. 'in the present Marquis of Stafford's library at Trentham,' which had been previously described in Warton's Hist. of E. Poetry as being 'in Lord Gower's library.' Mr. Wright alludes to it as 'a contemporary MS. in the possession of his grace the duke of Sutherland.' It may be called 'the Trentham MS.' 'The Praise of Peace' was printed from it by Mr. Wright, in his Political Poems and Songs, ii. 4-15; and I have followed his text, which I denote by 'T.' At the same time, I have collated it with the text of Thynne's edition of 1532, which is a very good one. The differences are slight.

Warton describes the MS. as 'a thin oblong MS. on vellum, containing some of Gower's poems in Latin, French, and English. By an entry in the first leaf, in the handwriting and under the signature of Thomas lord Fairfax, Cromwell's general, an antiquarian, and a lover and collector of curious manuscripts, it appears that this book was presented by the poet Gower, about 1400¹, to Henry IV; and that it was given by lord Fairfax to his friend and kinsman Sir Thomas Gower, knight and baronet, in the year 1656.' He goes on to say that Fairfax had it from Charles Gedde, Esq., of St. Andrews; and that it was at one time in the possession of King Henry VII, while earl of Richmond, who wrote in it his own name in the form 'Rychemond.'

The MS. contains (1) The Praise of Peace, preceded by the seven Latin lines (386-392), which I have relegated to the end of the poem, as in Thynne. The title is given in the colophon (p. 216); after which follow the twelve Latin lines (393-404), printed on the same page. (2) Some complimentary verses in Latin, also addressed to Henry IV, printed in Wright's Political Poems, ii. 1-3. (3) Fifty Balades in French, which have been printed by Stengel (Warton prints four of them), with the colophon—Expliciunt carmina Johis Gower que Gallice composita Balades dicuntur. (4) Two short Latin poems in elegiacs; see Warton. (5) A French poem on the Dignity or Excellence of Marriage. (6) Seventeen Latin hexameters. (7) Gower's Latin verses on his blindness, beginning—

'Henrici quarti primus regni fuit annus,
Quo michi defecit visus ad acta mea,' &c.

See Todd and Warton for more minute particulars.

§ 29. The poem itself may safely be dated in the end of 1399, for reasons given in the note to l. 393. It is of some interest, as being Gower's last poem in English, and the spirit of it is excellent, though it contains no very striking lines. We have not much of Gower's work in the form of seven-line stanzas. The Confessio Amantis contains only twelve such stanzas; iii. 349-352. I draw attention to the earliest known reference (l. 295) to the game of 'tenetz'; the enumeration of the nine worthies (ll. 281-3); and the reference to a story about Constantine which, in the Confessio Amantis, is related at considerable length (l. 339).

We may compare with this poem the stanzas in praise of peace in Hoccleve's De Regimine Principum, quoted in Morley's English Writers (1890), vol. vi, pp. 131-2.

§ 30. V. THOMAS HOCCLEVE: THE LETTER OF CUPID.

This poem needs little discussion. It is known to be Hoccleve's; see Dr. Furnivall's edition of Hoccleve's Minor Poems, E. E. T. S., 1892, p. 72. As explained in the notes, it is rather closely imitated from the French poem entitled L'Epistre au Dieu d'Amours, written by Christine de Pisan. At the end of her poem, Christine gives the date of its composition, viz. 1399; and Hoccleve, in like manner, gives the date of his poem as 1402. The poem consists of sixty-eight stanzas, of which not more than eighteen are wholly independent of the original. The chief original passages are ll. 176-189, 316-329, and 374-434.

The poem is entirely occupied with a defence of women, such as a woman might well make. It takes the form of a reproof, addressed by Cupid to all male lovers; and is directed, in particular, against the sarcasms of Jean de Meun (l. 281) in the celebrated Roman de la Rose.

Of this poem there are several MS. copies; see footnotes at p. 217. The best is probably the Ashburnham MS., but it has not yet been printed. I chiefly follow MS. Fairfax 16, which Dr. Furnivall has taken as the basis of his text.

There is also a poor and late copy in the Bannatyne MS., at fol. 269; see the print of it for the Hunterian Club, 1879; p. 783.

§ 31. VI. THE SAME: TWO BALADES.

These two Balades, also by Hoccleve, were composed at the same time. The former is addressed to King Henry V, and the latter to the Knights of the Garter. They are very closely connected with a much longer poem of 512 lines, which was addressed to Sir John Oldcastle in August, 1415; and must have been written at about that date. It was natural enough that, whilst addressing his appeal to Oldcastle to renounce his heresies, the poet should briefly address the king on the same subject at the same time. I think we may safely date this piece, like the other, in August, 1415.

The remarkable likeness between the two pieces appears most in the references to Justinian and to Constantine. In fact, the reference to Justinian in l. 3 of the former of the Balades here printed would be unintelligible but for the full explanation which the companion poem affords. I have quoted, in the note to l. 3, the Latin note which is written in the margin of st. 24 of the address to Oldcastle; and I quote here the stanza itself:—

‘The Cristen emperour Justinian,
As it is writen, who-so list it see,
Made a lawe deffending every man,
Of what condicion or what degree
That he were of, nat sholde hardy be
For to despute of the feith openly;
And ther-upon sundry peynes sette he,
That peril sholde eschued be therby.’

Minor Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 14.

Compare with this the fourth stanza of Balade I.

We may regret that Hoccleve's desire to make an example of heretics was so soon fulfilled. Only three years later, in Dec. 1418, Sir John Oldcastle was captured in Wales, brought up to London, and publicly burnt.

My text follows the sole good MS. (Phillipps 8151); which I have collated with the earliest printed text, that of 1542. There is, indeed, another MS. copy of the poem in the library of Trinity College, Cambridge (R. 3. 15); but it is only a late copy made from the printed book.

§ 32. VII. HENRY SCOGAN: A MORAL BALADE.

The heading to this poem is from MS. Ashmole 59; it is, unfortunately, somewhat obscure. It is, of course, not contemporaneous with the poem, but was added, by way of note, by John Shirley, when transcribing it. In fact, the third son of Henry IV was not created duke of Bedford till 1415, after the accession of Henry V; whereas Henry V is here referred to as being still ‘my lord the Prince.’ Hence the poem was written in the reign of Henry IV (1399–1413); but we can easily come much nearer than this to the true date. We may note, first of all, that Chaucer is referred to as being dead (l. 65); so that the date is after 1400. Again, the poem does not appear to have been recited by the author; it was sent, in the author's handwriting, to the assembled guests (l. 3). Further, Scogan says that he was 'called' the 'fader,' i. e. tutor, of the young princes (l. 2); and that he sent the letter to them out of fervent regard for their welfare, in order to warn them (l. 35). He regrets that sudden age has come upon him (l. 10), and wishes to impart to them the lessons which the approach of old age suggests. All this points to a time when Scogan was getting past his regular work as tutor, though he still retained the title; which suggests a rather late date. We find, however, from the Inquisitiones post Mortem (iii. 315), that Henry Scogan died in 1407, and I have seen it noted (I forget where) that he only attained the age of forty-six. This shews that he was only relatively old, owing, probably, to infirm health; and we may safely date the poem in 1406 or 1407, the latter being the more likely. In 1407, the ages of the young princes were nineteen, eighteen, seventeen, and sixteen respectively, and it is not likely that Scogan had been their tutor for more than twelve years at most. This provisional date of 1407 sufficiently satisfies all the conditions.

The four sons of Henry IV were Henry, prince of Wales, born at Monmouth in 1388; Thomas, born in 1389, and created duke of Clarence in 1412; John, born in 1390, created duke of Bedford in 1415; and Humphrey, born in 1391, created duke of Gloucester in 1414.

§ 33. The expression at a souper of feorthe merchande is difficult, and I can only guess at the sense. Feorthe is Shirley's spelling of ferthe, i. e. fourth. Merchande is probably equivalent to O. F. marchandie or merchandise. Godefroy gives an example of the latter in the sense of 'merchant's company.' I suppose that feorthe merchande means 'fourth meeting of merchants,' or the fourth of the four quarterly meetings of a guild. Toulmin Smith, in his English Gilds, p. 32, says that quarterly meetings for business were common; though some guilds met only once, twice, or thrice in the course of a year.

The Vintry is described by Stow in his Survey of London (ed. Thoms, p. 90): 'Then next over against St. Martin's church, is a large house built of stone and timber, with vaults for the stowage of wines, and is called the Vintry. . . . In this house Henry Picard [lord mayor in 1356-7] feasted four kings in one day.'

I need not repeat here what I have already said about Scogan in vol. i. p. 83.

I may add to the note about Lewis John (vol. i. p. 84), that he was a person of some note. In 1423 (Feb. 8), 'Ludowicus Johan, armiger, constitutus est seneschall et receptor generalis ducatus Cornub.': see Ordinances of the Privy Council, iii. 24. He is further mentioned in the same, ii. 334, 342.

Chaucer's Balade on Gentilesse, quoted in full in ll. 105-125, is in seven-line stanzas; and is thus distinguished from the rest of the poem, which is written in eight-line stanzas. It may be noted that Scogan's rimes are extremely correct, if we compare them with Chaucer's as a standard.

Of this piece there are two early printed copies, one by Caxton, and one by Thynne (1532); and two MSS., Ashmole 59 and Harl. 2251. It is remarkable that the printed copies are better than the MSS. as regards readings.

§ 34. VIII. THE COMPLAINT OF THE BLACK KNIGHT.

Such is the title in Thynne's edition (1532). In MS. F. (Fairfax 16), it is entitled—'Complaynte of a Loveres Lyfe'; and there is a printed edition with the title—'The Complaynte of a Louers Lyfe. Imprynted at London in the flete strete at the sygne of the Sonne, by Wynkyn de Worde'; no date, 4to. on twelve leaves. In MS. S. (Arch. Selden, B. 24), there is an erroneous colophon—'Here endith the Maying and disporte of Chaucere'; which gives the wrong title, and assigns it to the wrong author. In accordance with the last MS., it was printed, with the erroneous title—'Here begynnys the mayng or disport of chaucer'—in a volume 'Imprentit in the south gait of Edinburgh be Walter chepman and Androw myllar the fourth day of aperile the yhere of god . m.ccccc. and viii yheris' [1508]; and this scarce copy was reprinted as piece no. 8 in The Knightly Tale of Golagrus and Gawane, &c., as reprinted by Laing in 1827.

But the fullest title is that in MS. Ad. (Addit. 16165), written out by John Shirley, who says: 'And here filowyng begynneth a Right lusty amorous balade, made in wyse of a complaynt of a Right worshipfulle Knyght that truly euer serued his lady, enduryng grete disese by fals envye and malebouche; made by Lydegate' (fol. 190, back). Some of the pages have the heading, 'The compleynte of a Knight made by Lidegate'¹.

This attribution of the poem to Lydgate, by so good a judge as Shirley, renders the authorship certain; and the ascription is fully confirmed by strong internal evidence. Much of it is in Lydgate's best manner, and his imitation of Chaucer is, in places, very close; while, at the same time, it is easy to point out non-Chaucerian rimes, such as whyte, brighte, 2; pitously, malady (Ch. maladyë), 137; felyngly, malady, 188; mente, diligent, 246; grace, alas, 529; seyn, payn (Ch. peynë), 568; diurnal, fal, (Ch. falle), 590; payn, agayn, 650; queen (Ch. quene), seen, 674. Besides which, there are two mere assonances in two consecutive stanzas, viz. forjuged, excused, 274; and wreke, clepe, 284. The occurrence of this pair of assonances is quite enough to settle the question. If we apply a more delicate test, we may observe that, in ll. 218-220, the word sōre (with long o) rimes with tore, in which the o was originally short; on this point, see vol. vi. p. xxxii.

As to this poem, Ten Brink well remarks: 'His talent was fairly qualified for a popular form of the 'Complaint'—a sort of long monologue, interwoven with allegory and mythology, and introduced by a charming picture of nature. His Complaint of the Black Knight, which contains reminiscences from the Romance of the Rose, the Book of the Duchesse, and the Parlement of Foules, was long considered a production of Chaucer's, and is still frequently included in editions of his works—although with reservations. The critic, however, will not be deceived by the excellent descriptive passages of this poem, but will easily detect the characteristic marks of the imitator in the management of verse and rhyme, and especially in the diffusiveness of the story and the monotony even of the most important parts.'

§ 35. Lydgate's reminiscences of Chaucer are often interesting. In particular, we should observe the passages suggested by the Roman de la Rose in ll. 36-112; for we are at once reminded of Chaucer's own version of it, as preserved in Fragment A of the Romaunt. After noticing that he uses costey (36) for the F. costoiant, where Chaucer has costeying (134); and attempre (57) where Chaucer has attempre (131), though one French text has atrempee, it is startling to find him reproducing (80) Chaucer's very phrase And softe as veluēt (R. R. 1420), where the French original has nothing corresponding either to soft or to velvet! This clearly shews that Lydgate was acquainted with Fragment A of the English version, and believed that version to be Chaucer's; for otherwise he would hardly have cared to imitate it at all.

The date of this poem is discussed in the Introduction to Schick's edition of the Temple of Glas, by the same author; pp. c, cxii. He dates it in Lydgate's early period, or about A. D. 1402.

The text is based upon Thynne's edition, which is quite as good as the MSS., though the spellings are often too late in form. The late excellent edition by E. Krausser (Halle, 1896) reached me after my text was printed. His text (from MS. F.) has much the same readings, and is accompanied by a full Introduction and eleven pages of useful notes.

§ 36. IX. THE FLOUR OF CURTESYE.

This piece has no author's name prefixed to it in the first three editions; but in the fourth edition by Stowe, printed in 1561, the title is: 'The Floure of Curtesie, made by Iohn lidgate.' Probably Stowe had seen it attributed to him in some MS., and made a note of it; but I know of no MS. copy now extant.

Few poems bear Lydgate's impress more clearly; there can be no doubt as to its authorship. Schick refers it to Lydgate's early period, and dates it about 1400-1402; see his edition of the Temple of Glas, p. cxii. As it was written after Chaucer's death (see l. 236), and probably when that sad loss was still recent, we cannot be far wrong if we date it about 1401; and the Black Knight, a somewhat more ambitious effort, about 1402.

The 'Flour of Curtesye' is intended as a portrait of one whom the poet honours as the best of womankind. The character is evidently founded on that of Alcestis as described in the Prologue to the Legend of Good Women; and throughout the piece we are frequently reminded of Chaucer; especially of the Legend, the Complaint of Mars, and the Parliament of Foules.

The Envoy presents a very early example of the four-line stanza, similar to that employed in Gray's famous Elegy.

§ 37. X. A BALADE IN COMMENDATION OF OUR LADY.

This piece is attributed to 'Lidegate of Bury' in the Ashmole MS. no. 59; and the ascription is obviously correct. It abounds with evident marks of his peculiar style of metre; for which see Schick's Introduction to the Temple of Glas, p. lvi. We note in it a few reminiscences of Chaucer, as pointed out in the Notes; in particular, it was probably suggested by Chaucer's A B C, which furnished hints for ll. 27, 60, and 129. It is perhaps worth while to add that we have thus an independent testimony for the genuineness of that poem.

As an illustration of Lydgate's verse, I may notice the additional syllable after the cæsura, which too often clogs his lines. Thus in l. 8 we must group the syllables thus:—

Wherefór: now pláynty: I wól: my stýlë: dréssë. Similarly, we find licour in l. 13, pité (18), líving (24), bémës (25), gínníng (31), mércy (33), gárden (36), &c., all occupying places where a monosyllable would have been more acceptable.

The poem is strongly marked by alliteration, shewing that the poet (usually in a hurry) took more than usual pains with it. In the seventh stanza (43-49) this tendency is unmistakably apparent.

It is hardly possible to assign a date to a poem of this character. I can only guess it to belong to the middle period of his career; say, the reign of Henry V. We have not yet obtained sufficient data for the arrangement of Lydgate's poems.

§ 38. Lines 121-127 are here printed for the first time. In the old editions, l. 120 is succeeded by l. 128, with the result that Sion (120) would not rime with set afere (129); but the scribe of the Ashmole MS. was equal to the emergency, for he altered l. 129 so as to make it end with fuyrless thou sette vppon, which is mere nonsense. Thynne has fyrelesse fyre set on, which is just a little better.

This addition of seven lines was due to my fortunate discovery of a new MS.; for which I was indebted to the excellent MS. 'Index of First Lines' in the British Museum. This told me that a poem (hitherto unrecognised) existed in MS. Sloane 1212, of which the first line is 'A thousand stories,' &c. On examining the MS., it turned out to be a copy, on paper, of Hoccleve's De Regimine Principum, with four leaves of vellum at the beginning, and two more at the end, covered with writing of an older character. The two vellum leaves at the end were then transposed, but have since been set right, at my suggestion. They contain a few lines of the conclusion of some other piece, followed by the unique complete copy of the present Balade. This copy turned out to be much the best, and restored several of the readings. Indeed, the Ashmole MS. is very imperfect, having in it a lacuna of eight stanzas (ll. 64-119). I am thus able to give quite a presentable text.

The correction that most interested me was one in l. 134, where the Ashmole MS. and Thynne have probatyf piscyne. On June 5, 1896, I read a paper at the Philological Society, in which (among other things) I pointed out that the right reading must certainly be probatik. The very next day I found the Sloane MS.; and behold, its reading was probatyk! It is not often that a 'conjectural emendation' is confirmed, on unimpeachable authority, within twenty-four hours.

Another remarkable correction is that of dyamaunt for dyametre in l. 87. It was all very well to compare Our Lady to a diamond; but to call her a diameter (as in all the editions) is a little too bad. Again, in l. 121 (now first printed) we have the remarkable expression punical pome for a pomegranate, which is worthy of notice; and in l. 123 we find a new word, agnelet, which is not to be found in the New English Dictionary.

All the printed editions print the next piece as if it formed a part of the present one; but they have absolutely no point in common beyond the fact of having a common authorship.

§ 39. XI. TO MY SOVERAIN LADY.

In all the old editions, this piece forms part of the preceding, though it is obviously distinct from it, when attention is once drawn to the fact. Instead of being addressed, like no. X, to the Virgin, it is addressed to a lady whose name the poet wishes to commend (l. 7); and from whom he is parted (51); whereas two lovers ought to be together, if they wish to live 'well merry' (64). Her goodly fresh face is a merry mirror (73); and he has chosen her as his Valentine (111).

It is evidently a conventional complimentary poem, written to please some lady of rank or of high renown (93), one, in fact, who is 'of women chief princesse' (70). It is prettily expressed, and does Lydgate some credit, being a favourable specimen of his more playful style; I wish we had more of the same kind. L. 68—'Let him go love, and see wher [whether] it be game'—is excellent.

I shall here submit to the reader a pure guess, for what it is worth. My impression is that this piece, being a complimentary Valentine, was suggested by queen Katherine's visit to England; the lover whose passion is here described being no other than king Henry V, who was parted from his queen for a week. The pair arrived at Dover on Feb. 2, 1421, and Henry went on to London, arriving on Feb. 14; the queen did not arrive till Feb. 21, just in time for her coronation on Feb. 23.

This hypothesis satisfies several conditions. It explains why the lover's English is not good enough to praise the lady: why so many French lines are quoted; the significant allusion to the lily, i.e. the lily of France, in l. 16; the lover's consolation found in English roundels (40); the expression 'chief princesse' in l. 70; and the very remarkable exclamation of Salve, regina, in l. 83, which doubtless made Thynne imagine that the poem was addressed to the Virgin Mary. The expression 'for your departing' in l. 105 does not necessarily mean 'on account of your departure from me'; it is equally in accordance with Middle-English usage to suppose that it means 'on account of your separation from me'; see Depart and Departing in the New English Dictionary.

It is well known that Lydgate provided the necessary poetry for the entry of Henry VI into London in Feb. 1432.

Some resemblances to Chaucer are pointed out in the Notes. The most interesting circumstance about this poem is that the author quotes, at the end of his third stanza, the first line of 'Merciles Beautè'; this is a strong point in favour of the attribution of that poem to his master.

This piece is distinguished from the preceding by the difference of its subject; by the difference in the character of the metre (there is here no alliteration); and, most significant of all, by its absence from MS. Ashmole 59 and MS. Sloane 1212, both of which contain the preceding piece. The two poems may have been brought together, in the MS. which Thynne followed, by the accident of being written about the same time.

§ 40. XII. BALLAD OF GOOD COUNSEL.

The title of this piece in Stowe's edition stands as follows: 'A balade of good counseile, translated out of Latin verses into Englishe, by dan Iohn lidgat cleped the monke of Buri.' What were the Latin verses here referred to, I have no means of ascertaining.

This Ballad is eminently characteristic of Lydgate's style, and by no means the worst of its kind. When he once gets hold of a refrain that pleases him, he canters merrily along till he has absolutely no more to say. I think he must have enjoyed writing it, and that he wrote it to please himself.

He transgresses one of Chaucer's canons in ll. 79-82; where he rimes hardy with foly and flatery. The two latter words are, in Chaucer, foly-ë and flatery-ë, and never rime with a word like hardy, which has no final -e.

Lydgate is very fond of what may be called catalogues; he begins by enumerating every kind of possibility. You may be rich, or strong, or prudent, &c.; or fair (22) or ugly (24); you may have a wife (29), or you may not (36); you may be fat (43), or you may be lean (46); or staid (57), or holy (64); your dress may be presentable (71), or poor (72), or middling (73); you may speak much (78) or little (80); and so on; for it is hard to come to an end. At l. 106, he begins all over again with womankind; and the conclusion is, that you should govern your tongue, and never listen to slander.

Thynne's text is not very good; the MSS. are somewhat better. He makes the odd mistake of printing Holynesse beautie for Eleynes beaute (115); but Helen had not much to do with holiness. Two of the stanzas (71-7 and 106-112) are now printed for the first time, as they occur in the MSS. only. Indeed, MS. H. (Harl. 2251) is the sole authority for the former of these two stanzas.

§ 41. XIII. BEWARE OF DOUBLENES.

This is a favourable example of Lydgate's better style; and is written with unusual smoothness, owing to the shortness of the lines. It was first printed in 1561. There is a better copy in the Fairfax MS., which has been taken as the basis of the text. The copy in MS. Ashmole 59 is very poor. The title—'Balade made by Lydgate'— occurs in MS. Addit. 16165. Stowe, being unacquainted with the phrase ambes as (l. 78), though it occurs in Chaucer, turned ambes into lombes, after which he wrongly inserted a comma; and lombes appears, accordingly, in all former editions, with a comma after it. What sense readers have hitherto made of this line, I am at a loss to conjecture.

§ 42. XIV. A BALADE: WARNING MEN, ETC.

First printed by Stowe in 1561, from the MS. in Trinity College Library, marked R. 3. 19, which I have used in preference to the printed edition.

There is another, and more complete copy in the same library, marked O. 9. 38, which has contributed some excellent corrections. Moreover, it gives a better arrangement of stanzas three and four, which the old editions transpose. More than this, it contains a unique stanza (36–42), which has not been printed before.

The poem also occurs in Shirley's MS. Harl. 2251, which contains a large number of poems by Lydgate; and is there followed by another poem of seven stanzas, attributed to Lydgate. That the present poem is Lydgate's, cannot well be doubted; it belongs to the same class of his poems as no. XII above. I find it attributed to him in the reprint of 'Chaucer's Poems' by Chalmers, in 1810.

The substitution of the contracted and idiomatic form et for the later form eteth is a great improvement. It is due to MS. O. 9. 38, where the scribe first wrote ette, but was afterwards so weak as to 'correct' it to etyth. But this 'correction' just ruins the refrain. Et was no doubt becoming archaic towards the middle of the fifteenth century.

Two variations upon the last stanza occur in the Bannatyne MS., fol. 258, back; see the print by the Hunterian Club, 1879, pp. 754, 755.

§ 43. XV. THREE SAYINGS.

First printed by Stowe; I know of no MS. copy. The first two Sayings are attributed to Lydgate; so we may as well credit him with the third. The second expresses the same statements as the first, but varies somewhat in form; both are founded upon a Latin line which occurs in MS. Fairfax 16 (fol. 196) and in MS. Harl.

7578 (fol. 20), and runs as follows:—‘Quatuor infatuant, honor, etas, femina, uinum.’

Note that these Three Sayings constitute the only addition made by Stowe to Thynne in ‘Part I’ of Stowe’s edition. See nos. 28, 29, 30 in vol. i. p. 32. Stowe introduced them in order to fill a blank half-column between nos. 27 and 31.

§ 44. XVI. LA BELLE DAME SANS MERCY.

First printed in Thynne’s Chaucer (1532). Tyrwhitt first pointed out that it could not possibly be his, seeing that Alan Chartier’s poem with the same name, whence the English version was made, could not have been written in Chaucer’s lifetime. Chartier was born in 1386, and was only fourteen years old at the time of Chaucer’s death. Tyrwhitt further stated that the author’s name, Sir Richard Ros, was plainly given in MS. Harl. 372, fol. 61, where the poem has this title:—‘La Belle Dame Sanz Mercy. Translatid out of Frenche by Sir Richard Ros.’ I have not been able to find the date of the French original, as there is no modern edition of Chartier’s poems; but it can hardly have been written before 1410, when the poet was only twenty-four years old; and the date of the translation must be later still. But we are not wholly left to conjecture in this matter. A short notice of Sir Richard Ros appeared in Englische Studien, X. 206, written by H. Gröhler, who refers us to his dissertation ‘Ueber Richard Ros’ mittelenglische übersetzung des gedichtes von Alain Chartier La Belle Dame sans Mercy,’ published at Breslau in 1886; of which Dr. Gröhler has most obligingly sent me a copy, whence several of my Notes have been derived. He tells us, in this article, that his dissertation was founded on the copy of the poem in MS. Harl. 372, which (in 1886) he believed to be unique; whereas he had since been informed that there are three other MSS., viz. Camb. Ff. 1. 6, Trin. Coll. Camb. R. 3. 19, and Fairfax 16; and further, that the Trinity MS. agrees with the Harleian as to misarrangement of the subject-matter¹. He also proposed to give a new edition of the poem in Englische Studien, but I am unable to find it; and Dr. Kölbing courteously informs me that it never appeared.

¹ Which is not the case; the text in the Trinity MS. is in the correct order.

Dr. Gröhler further tells us, that Mr. Joseph Hall, of Manchester, had sent him some account, extracted from the county history of Leicestershire by Nichols, of the family of Roos or Ros, who were lords of Hamlake and Belvoir in that county. According to Nichols, the Sir Richard Ros who was presumably the poet, was the second son of Sir Thomas Ros; and Sir Thomas was the second son of Sir W. Ros, who married Margaret, daughter of Sir John Arundel. If this be right, we gain the further information that Sir Richard was born in 1429¹, and is known to have been alive in 1450, when he was twenty-one years old.

The dates suit very well, as they suggest that the English poem was written, probably, between 1450 and 1460, or at the beginning of the second half of the fifteenth century; which sufficiently agrees with the language employed and with the probable age of the MSS. The date assigned in the New English Dictionary, s.v. Currish, is 1460; which cannot be far wrong. It can hardly be much later.

§ 45. The above notice also suggests that, as Sir Richard Ros was of a Leicestershire family, the dialect of the piece may, originally at least, have been North Leicestershire. Belvoir is situate in the N.E. corner of Leicestershire, not far from Grantham in Lincolnshire, and at no great distance from the birthplace of Robert of Brunne. It is well known that Robert of Brunne wrote in a variety of the Midland dialect which coincides, to a remarkable extent, with the form of the language which has become the standard literary English. Now it is easily seen that La Belle Dame has the same peculiarity, and I venture to think that, on this account, it is worth special attention. If we want to see a specimen of what the Midland literary dialect was like in the middle of the fifteenth century, it is here that we may find it. Many of the stanzas are, in fact, remarkably modern, both in grammar and expression; we have only to alter the spelling, and there is nothing left to explain. Take for example the last stanza on p. 301 (ll. 77-84):—

‘In this great thought, sore troubled in my mind,
Alone thus rode I all the morrow-tide,
Till, at the last, it happed me to find
The place wherein I cast me to abide

¹ Richard Ros, born March 8, 1428-9; Nichols, Hist. of Leicestershire, vol. ii. p. 37.

When that I had no further for to ride.
 And as I went my lodging to purvey,
 Right soon I heard, but little me beside,
 In a gardén, where minstrels gan to play.'

A large number of stanzas readily lend themselves to similar treatment; and this is quite enough to dissociate the poem from Chaucer. The great difficulty about modernising Chaucer is, as every one knows, his use of the final -e as a distinct syllable; but we may search a whole page of La Belle Dame without finding anything of the kind. When Sir Richard's words have an extra syllable, it is due to the suffix -es or the suffix -ed; and even these are not remarkably numerous; we do not arrive at cloth-ès, a plural in -es, before l. 22; and, in the course of the first four stanzas, all the words in -ed are awak-ed, nak-ed, vex-ed, tourn-ed, and bold-ed, none of which would be surprising to a student of Elizabethan poetry. That there was something of a Northern element in Sir Richard's language appears from the rime of long-es with song-es, in ll. 53-55; where longes is the third person singular of the present tense; but modern English has belongs, with the same suffix! Again, he constantly uses the Northern possessive pronoun their; but modern English does the same!

§ 46. Another remarkable point about the poem is the perfect smoothness and regularity of the metre in a large number of lines, even as judged by a modern standard. The first line—'Half in a dream, not fully well awaked'—might, from a metrical point of view, have been written yesterday. It is a pity that the poem is somewhat dull, owing to its needless prolixity; but this is not a little due to Alan Chartier. Sir Richard has only eight stanzas of his own, four at the beginning, and four at the end; and it is remarkable that these are in the seven-line stanza, while the rest of the stanzas have eight lines, like their French original, of which I here give the first stanza, from the Paris edition of 1617, p. 502. (See l. 29 of the English version.)

'N'agueres cheuauchant pensoye,
 Comme homme triste et douloureux,
 Au dueil où il faut que ie soye
 Le plus dolant des amoureux;
 Puisque par son dart rigoureux
 La mort me tolli ma Maistresse,
 Et me laissa seul langoureux
 En la conduicte de tristesse.'

I have cited in the Notes a few passages of the original text which help to explain the translation.

§ 47. The text in Thynne is a good one, and it seemed convenient to make it the basis of the edition; but it has been carefully controlled by collation with MS. Ff. 1. 6, which is, in some respects, the best MS. I am not sure that Thynne always followed his MS.; he may have collated some other one, as he professes in some cases to have done. MS. Ff. 1. 6, the Trinity MS., and Thynne's principal MS. form one group, which we may call A; whilst the Fairfax and Harleian MSS. form a second group, which we may call B: and of these, group A is the better. The MSS. in group B sadly transpose the subject-matter, and give the poem in the following order; viz. lines 1-428, 669-716, 525-572, 477-524, 621-668, 573-620, 429-476, 717-856. The cause of this dislocation is simple enough. It means that the B-group MSS. were copied from one in which three leaves, each containing six stanzas, were misarranged. The three leaves were placed one within the other, to form a sheet, and were written upon. Then the outer pair of these leaves was turned inside out, whilst the second and third pair changed places. This can easily be verified by making a little book of six leaves and numbering each page with the numbers 429-452, 453-476, 477-500, 501-524, &c. (i.e. with 24 lines on a page, ending with 716), and then misarranging the leaves in the manner indicated.

The copy in MS. Harl. 372 was printed, just as it stands, by Dr. Furnivall, in his volume entitled Political, Religious, and Love Poems, published for the E. E. T. S. in 1866; at p. 52. The text is there, accordingly, misarranged as above stated.

There is another MS. copy, as has been said above, in MS. Trin. Coll. Camb. R. 3. 19; but I have not collated it. It seems to be closely related to MS. Ff., and to present no additional information. Not only do the MSS. of the A-group contain the text in the right order, but they frequently give the better readings. Thus, in l. 47, we have the odd line—'My pen could never have knowlege what it ment'; as given in MS. Ff., the Trinity MS., and Thynne. The word pen is altered to eyen in MSS. H. and F.; nevertheless, it is perfectly right, for the French original has plume; see the Note on the line. Other examples are given in the Notes.

In l. 174, MS. Ff. alone has the right reading, apert. I had made up my mind that this was the right reading even before consulting that MS., because the old reading—‘One wyse nor other, prevy nor perte’—is so extremely harsh. There is no sense in using the clipped form of the word when the true and usual form will scan so much better. See C. T., F 531, Ho. Fame, 717. The Trinity MS. gets out of the difficulty by a material alteration of the line, so that it there becomes—‘In any wyse, nether preuy nor perte.’

§ 48. XVII. THE TESTAMENT OF CRESSEID.

I do not suppose this was ever supposed to be Chaucer's even by Thynne. Line 64—‘Quha wait gif all that Chaucer wrait was trew?’—must have settled the question from the first. No doubt Thynne added it simply as a pendant to Troilus, and he must have had a copy before him in the Northern dialect, which he modified as well as he could. Nevertheless, he gives us can for the Southern gan in l. 6, wrate for wrote in l. 64, and has many similar Northern forms.

The poem was printed at Edinburgh in 1593 with the author's name. The title is as follows—‘The Testament of CRESSEID, Compylit be M. Robert Henrysone, Sculemai-ster in Dunfermeling. Imprentit at Edin = burgh be Henrie Charteris. MD. XCIII. The text is in 4to, ten leaves, black-letter. Only one copy has been preserved, which is now in the British Museum; but it was reprinted page for page in the volume presented by Mr. Chalmers to the Bannatyne Club in 1824. The present edition is from this reprint, with very few modifications, such as sh for sch, and final -y for final -ie in immaterial cases. All other modifications are accounted for in the footnotes below. No early MS. copy is known; there was once a copy in the Asloan MS., but the leaves containing it are lost.

Thynne's print must have been a good deal altered from the original, to make it more intelligible. It is odd to find him altering quhisling (20) to whiskyng, and ringand (144) to tyukyng. I note all Thynne's variations that are of any interest. He must have been much puzzled by aneuch in (which he seems to have regarded as one word and as a past participle) before he turned it into enewed (110). But in some cases Thynne gives us real help, as I will now point out.

In l. 48, E. (the Edinburgh edition) has—‘Quhill Esperus reioisit him agane’; where Esperus gives no good sense. But Thynne prints esperous, which at once suggests esperans (hope), as opposed to wanhope in the preceding line.

In l. 155, E. has frosnit, which Laing interprets ‘frozen,’ as if the pp. of freeze could have both a strong and weak pp. suffix at the same moment! But Thynne has frounsed, evidently put for fronsit, as used elsewhere by Henryson in The Fable of the Paddock and the Mous, l. 43:—‘The Mous beheld unto her fronsit face.’ A printer’s error of sn for ns is not surprising.

In ll. 164, 178, 260, E. has gyis or gyse; but Thynne has preserved the true Chaucerian word gyte, which the printer evidently did not understand. It is true that in l. 164 he turned it into gate; but when he found it recur, he let it alone.

In l. 205, E. has upricht (!); which Thynne corrects.

In l. 290, Th. has iniure for iniurie, and I think he is right, though I have let injurie stand; iniure is Chaucer’s form (Troil. iii. 1018), and it suits the scansion better.

In l. 382, Thynne corrects Unto to To; and in l. 386, has Beuer for bawar. In l. 441, he has syder for ceder. In l. 501, he has plyte for plye, where a letter may have dropped out in E.; but see the note (p. 525). In l. 590, his reading tokenyng suggests that takning (as in E.) should be takining or takinning; the line will then scan. The contracted form taikning occurs, however, in l. 232, where the word is less emphatic.

Note further, that in l. 216 the original must have had Philogoney (see the Note). This appears in the astonishing forms Philologie (E.), and Philologiee (Th.). Laing prints Phlegonie, which will neither scan nor rime, without any hint that he is departing from his exemplar. All his corrections are made silently, so that one cannot tell where they occur without reference to the original.

For further information concerning Robert Henryson, school-master of Dunfermline, see the preface to David Laing’s edition of The Poems and Fables of Robert Henryson, Edinburgh, 1865; and Morley’s English Writers, 1890, vol. vi. p. 250. He is supposed to have been born about 1425, and to have died about 1500. On Sept. 10, 1462, the Venerable Master Robert Henrysone, Licentiate in Arts and Bachelor in Decrees, was incorporated or admitted a member of the newly founded university of Glasgow; and he is known to have been a notary public. Perhaps The Testament of Cresseid was written about 1460. It is a rather mature performance, and is his best piece. Perhaps it is the best piece in the present volume.

§ 49. XVIII. THE CUCKOO AND THE NIGHTINGALE.

Of this piece there are several MSS., which fall into two main classes: (A)—Ff. (Ff. 1. 6, in the Camb. Univ. Library); T. (Tanner 346); Th. (MS. used by Thynne, closely allied to T.); and (B)—F. (Fairfax 16), and B. (Bodley 638), which are closely allied. There is also S. (Selden, B. 24) imperfect, which has readings of its own¹. Of these groups, A is the better, and MS. Ff. is, in some respects, the most important. Nevertheless, MS. Ff. has never been collated hitherto, so that I am able to give a somewhat improved text. For example, in all former editions lines 12 and 13 are transposed. In l. 180, the reading haire (as in Bell and Morris) is somewhat comic (see the Note). In l. 203, MS. Ff. restores the true reading hit, i. e. hitteth. Bell, by some accident, omits the stanza in which this word occurs. In vol. i. p. 39, I took occasion to complain of the riming of now with rescow-e in ll. 228–9, according to Bell. The right reading, however, is not now, but avow-e, which rimes well enough. MS. Selden has allowe, which Morris follows, though it is clearly inferior and is unsupported. On the other hand, MS. Selden correctly, and alone, has leve in l. 237; but the confusion between e and o is endless, so that the false reading loue creates no surprise.

This poem is very interesting, and has deservedly been a favourite one. It is therefore a great pleasure to me to have found the author's name. This is given at the end of the poem in MS. Ff. (the best MS., but hitherto neglected), where we find, in firm distinct letters, in the same handwriting as the poem itself, the remark—Explicit Clanvowe. Remembering that the true title of the poem is 'The Book of Cupid, God of Love²,' I applied to Dr. Furnivall, asking him if he had met with the name. He at once referred me to his preface to Hoccleve's

² There is no authority, except Thynne, for the title The Cuckoo and the Nightingale. It has been repeated in all the printed editions, but does not appear in any MS.

Works, p. x, where Sir John Clanvowe and Thomas Hoccleve are both mentioned in the same document (about A.D. 1385). But Sir John Clanvowe died in 1391, and therefore could not have imitated the title of Hoccleve's poem, which was not written till 1402. Our poet was probably Sir Thomas Clanvowe, concerning whom several particulars are known, and who must have been a well-known personage at the courts of Richard II and Henry IV. We learn from Wylie's Hist. of Henry IV, vol. iii. p. 261, that he was one of twenty-five knights who accompanied John Beaufort (son of John of Gaunt) to Barbary in 1390. This Sir Thomas favoured the opinions of the Lollards, but was nevertheless a friend of 'Prince Hal,' at the time when the prince was still friendly to freethinkers. He seems to have accompanied the prince in the mountains of Wales; see Wylie, as above, iii. 333. In 1401, he is mentioned as being one of 'vi Chivalers' in the list of esquires who were summoned to a council by king Henry IV; see the Acts of the Privy Council, ed. Nicolas, temp. Henry IV, p. 162. (It may be noted that Sir John Clanvowe was a witness, in 1385, to the will of the widow of the Black Prince; see Testamenta Vetusta, ed. Nicolas.)

§ 50. It now becomes easy to explain the reference to the queen at Woodstock, which has never yet been accounted for. The poem begins with the words—'The God of Love! Ah benedicite,' quoted from Chaucer, the title of the poem being 'The Book of Cupid, God of Love,' as has been said; and this title was imitated from Hoccleve's poem of 1402. But there was no queen of England after Henry's accession till Feb. 7, 1403, when the king married Joan of Navarre; and it was she who held as a part of her dower the manor and park of Woodstock; see Wylie, as above, ii. 284. Hence the following hypothesis will suit the facts—namely, that the poem, imitating Chaucer's manner, and having a title imitated from Hoccleve's poem of 1402, was written by Sir Thomas Clanvowe, who held Lollard opinions¹ and was a friend (at one time) of Henry of Monmouth. And it was addressed to Joan of Navarre, Henry's stepmother, queen of England from 1403 to 1413, who held as a part of her dower the manor of Woodstock. If so, we should expect it to have been written before April, 1410, when Thomas Badby, the Lollard, was executed in the presence of the prince of Wales. Further, as it was probably written early rather than late in this period, I should be inclined to date it in 1403; possibly in May, as it relates so much to the time of spring.

I may add that the Clanvowes were a Herefordshire family, from the neighbourhood of Wigmore. The only remarkable non-Chaucerian word in the poem is the verb greden, to cry out (A.S. grēdan); a word found in many dialects, and used by Layamon, Robert of Gloucester, Langland, and Hoccleve.

The poem is written in a light and pleasing style, which Wordsworth has fairly reproduced. The final -e is suppressed in assay-e (l. 52). The non-Chaucerian rimes are few, viz. gren-e and sen-e as riming with been (61-5), shewing that Clanvowe cut down those dissyllables to green and seen. And further, the forms ron and mon are employed, in order to rime with upon (81-5); whereas Chaucer only has the form man; whilst of ran I remember no example at the end of a line¹.

§ 51. But there is one point about Clanvowe's verse which renders it, for the fifteenth century, quite unique. In imitating Chaucer's use of the final -e, he employs this suffix with unprecedented freedom, and rather avoids than seeks elision. This gives quite a distinctive character to his versification, and is very noticeable when attention has once been drawn to it. If, for example, we compare it with the Parliament of Foules, which it most resembles in general character, we find the following results. If, in the Cuckoo and Nightingale, we observe the first 21 lines, we shall find (even if we omit the example of hy-e in l. 4, and all the examples of final -e at the end of a line) the following clear examples of its use:—low-e, lyk-e, hard-e, sek-e, hol-e (twice), mak-e, hav-e, wys-e, proud-e, grev-e, trew-e, hert-e, i. e. 13 examples, besides the 5 examples of final -en in mak-en, bind-en, unbind-en, bound-en, destroy-en. But in the first 21 lines of the Parliament of Foules there are only 2 examples of the final -e in the middle of a line, viz. lust-e (15) and long-e (21), whilst of the final -en there is none. The difference between 18 and 2 must strike even the most inexperienced reader, when it is once brought under his notice. However, it is an extreme case.

Yet again, if the last 21 lines in the Cuckoo be compared with ll. 659–679 of the Parliament (being the last 21 lines, if we dismiss the roundel and the stanza that follows it), we find in the former 7 examples of final -e and 2 of -en, or 9 in all, whilst in Chaucer there are 7 of final -e, and 1 of -en, or 8 in all; and this also happens to be an extreme case in the other direction, owing to the occurrence in the former poem of the words egle, maple, and chambre, which I have not taken into account.

This suggests that, to make sure, we must compare much longer passages. In the whole of the Cuckoo, I make about 120 such cases of final -e, and 23 such cases of final -en, or 143 in all. In 290 lines of the Parliament of Foules, I make about 68 and 19 such cases respectively; or about 87 in all. Now the difference between 143 and 87 is surely very marked.

The cause of this result is obvious, viz. that Chaucer makes a more frequent use of elision. In the first 21 lines of the Parl. of Foules, we find elisions of men', sor', wak', oft' (twice), red' (twice), spek', fast', radd'; i. e. 10 examples; added to which, Chaucer has joy(e), love, knowe, usage, boke, at the cæsura, and suppresses the e in write (written). But in ll. 1–1, Clanvowe has (in addition to love, make, lowe, make (twice), gladde at the cæsura) only 3 examples of true elision, viz. fressk', tell', and mak' (15).

And further, we seldom find two examples of the use of the final -e in the same line in Chaucer. I do not observe any instance, in the Parl. of Foules, till we arrive at l. 94:—‘Took rest that mad-e me to slep-e faste.’ But in Clanvowe they are fairly common. Examples are: Of seke-e folk ful hol-e (7); For every trew-e gentil hert-e free (21); That any hert-e shuld-e slepy be (44); I went-e forth alon-e bold-e-ly (59); They coud-e that servyc-e al by rote (71); and the like. In l. 73, we have even three examples in one line; Some song-e loud-e, as they hadd-e playned. From all of which it appears that the critics who have assigned the Cuckoo to Chaucer have taken no pains whatever to check their opinion by any sort of analysis. They have trusted to their own mere opinion, without looking the facts in the face.

§ 52. I will point out yet one more very striking difference. We know that Chaucer sometimes employs headless lines, such as: Twenty bókes át his béddes héed. But he does so sparingly, especially in his Minor Poems. But in the Cuckoo, they are not uncommon; see, e. g. lines 16, 50, 72, 100, 116, 118, 146, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 161, 166, 205, 232, 242, 252, 261, 265, 268. It is true that, in Morris's edition, lines 72, 146, 153, 161, and 205 are slightly altered; but in no case can I find that the alteration is authorised. And even then, this does not get rid of the five consecutive examples in ll. 154-158, which cannot be explained away. Once more, I repeat, the critics have failed to use their powers of observation.

I think the poem may still be admired, even if it be allowed that Clanvowe wrote it some three years after Chaucer's death.

§ 53. At any rate, it was admired by so good a judge of poetry as John Milton, who of course possessed a copy of it in the volume which was so pleasantly called 'The Works of Chaucer.' That his famous sonnet 'To the Nightingale' owed something to Clanvowe, I cannot doubt. 'Thou with fresh hope the lover's heart dost fill' is, in part, the older poet's theme; see ll. 1-30, 149-155, 191-192. Even his first line reminds one of ll. 77, 288. If Milton writes of May, so does Clanvowe; see ll. 20, 23, 34, 55, 70, 230, 235, 242; note especially l. 230. But the real point of contact is in the lines—

'Thy liquid notes that close the eye of day,
First heard before the shallow cuckoo's bill,
Portend success in love . . .
Now timely sing, ere the rude bird of hate
Foretell my hopeless doom in some grove nigh;
As thou from year to year hast sung too late
For my relief, yet hadst no reason why:
Whether the Muse or Love call thee his mate,
Both them I serve, and of their train am I.'

With which compare:—

'That it were good to here the nightingale
Rather than the lewde cuckow singe': (49).
'A litel hast thou been to longe henne;
For here hath been the lew[e]de cuckow,
And songen songes rather than hast thou': (102).
'Ye, quod she, and be thou not amayed,
Though thou have herd the cuckow er than me.
For, if I live, it shal amended be
The nexte May, if I be not affrayed': (232).
'And I wol singe oon of my songes newe
For love of thee, as loude as I may crye': (247).
'For in this worlde is noon so good servyse
To every wight that gentil is of kinde': (149).

§ 54. XIX. ENVOY TO ALISON.

This piece has always hitherto been printed without any title, and is made to follow The Cuckoo and the Nightingale, as if there were some sort of connection between them. This is probably because it happens to follow that poem in the Fairfax and Tanner MSS., and probably did so in the MS. used by Thynne, which has a striking resemblance to the Tanner MS. However, the poem is entirely absent from the Cambridge, Selden, and Bodley MSS., proving that there is no connection with the preceding poem, from which it differs very widely in style, in language, and in metre.

I call it an Envoy to Alison. For first, it is an Envoy¹, as it refers to the author's 'lewd book,' which it recommends to a lady. What the book is, no one can say; but it may safely be conjectured that it was of no great value. And secondly, the lady's name was Alison, as shewn by the acrostic in lines 22-27; and the author has recourse to almost ludicrous efforts, in order to secure the first four letters of the name.

Briefly, it is a very poor piece; and my chief object in reprinting it is to shew how unworthy it is of Clanvowe, not to mention Chaucer. We have no right even to assign it to Lydgate. And its date may be later than 1450.

§ 55. XX. THE FLOWER AND THE LEAF.

This piece many 'critics' would assign to Chaucer, merely because they like it. This may be sentiment, but it is not criticism; and, after all, a desire to arrive at the truth should be of more weight with us than indulgence in ignorant credulity.

It is of some consequence to learn, first of all, that it is hardly possible to separate this piece from the next. The authoress of one was the authoress of the other. That The Assembly of Ladies is longer and duller, and has not held its own in popular estimation, is no sound argument to the contrary; for it is only partially true. Between the first eleven stanzas of the Assembly and the first eleven stanzas of the present poem, there is a strong general resemblance, and not much to choose. Other stanzas of the Assembly that are well up to the standard of the Flower will be found in lines 456-490, 511-539. The reason of the general inferiority of the Assembly lies chiefly in the choice of the subject ; it was meant to interest some medieval household, but it gave small scope for retaining the reader's attention, and must be held to be a failure.

The links connecting these poems are so numerous that I must begin by asking the reader to let me denote The Flower and the Leaf by the letter F (= Flower), and The Assembly of Ladies by the letter A (= Assembly).

The first point is that (with the sole exception of the Nutbrown Maid) no English poems exist, as far as I remember, written previously to 1500, and purporting to be written by a woman. In the case of F. and A., this is assumed throughout. When the author of F. salutes a certain fair lady, the lady replies—'My doughter, gramercy' ; 462. And again she says, 'My fair doughter' ; 467, 500, 547. The author of A. says she was one of five ladies ; 5-7, 407. Again, she was a woman ; 18. The author of A. and some other ladies salute Lady Countenance, who in reply says 'fair sisters' ; 370. Again, she and others salute a lady-chamberlain, who replies by calling them 'sisters' ; 450 ; &c.

The poem A. is supposed to be an account of a dream, told by the authoress to a gentleman ; with the exception of this gentleman, all the characters of the poem are ladies ; and hence its title. The poem F. is not quite so exclusive, but it comes very near it ; all the principal characters are ladies, and the chief personages are queens, viz. the queen of the Leaf and the queen of the Flower. The 'world of ladies' in l. 137 take precedence of the Nine Worthies, who were merely men. A recognition of this fact makes the whole poem much clearer.

But the most characteristic thing is the continual reference to colours, dresses, ornaments, and decorations. In F., we have descriptions of, or references to, white surcoats, velvet, seams, emeralds, purfils, colours, sleeves, trains, pearls, diamonds, a fret of gold, chaplets of leaves, chaplets of woodbine, chaplets of agnus-castus, a crown of gold, thundering trumpets, the treasury of Prester John, white cloaks, chaplets of oak, banners of Tartary-silk, more pearls, collars, escutcheons, kings-of-arms, cloaks of white cloth, crowns set with pearls, rubies, sapphires, and diamonds. Then there is a company all clad in one suit (or livery) ; heralds and poursuivants, more chaplets and escutcheons, men in armour with cloth of gold and horse-trappings, with bosses on their bridles and peitrels—it is surely needless to go on, though we have only arrived at l. 246.

In A., we have much the same sort of thing all over again, though it does not set in before l. 83. Then we meet with blue colours, an embroidered gown, and a purfil with a device. After a respite, we begin again at l. 206—‘Her gown was blue’; and the lady wore a French motto. Diligence tells the authoress that she looks well in her new blue gown (259). At l. 305, there is another blue gown, furred with gray, with a motto on the sleeve; and there are plenty more mottoes to follow. At l. 451 we come to a paved floor, and walls made of beryl and crystal, engraved with stories; next, a well-apparelled chair or throne, on five stages, wrought of ‘cassidony,’ with four pommels of gold, and set with sapphires; a cloth of estate, wrought with the needle (486); cloth of gold (521); a blue gown, with sleeves wrought tabard-wise, of which the collar and the vent (slit in front of the neck) are described as being like ermine; it was couched with great pearls, powdered with diamonds, and had sleeves and purfils; then we come to rubies, enamel, a great balas-ruby, and more of the same kind. Again, it is useless to go further. Surely these descriptions of seams, and collars, and sleeves, are due to a woman.

The likeness comes out remarkably in two parallel stanzas. One of them is from F. 148, and the other from A. 526.

‘As grete perles, round and orient,
 Diamondes fyne and rubies rede,
 And many another stoon, of which I want
 The names now; and everich on her hede
 A riche fret of gold, which, without drede,
 Was ful of statly riche stones set;
 And every lady had a chapelet,’ &c.

‘After a sort the coller and the vent,
 Lyk as ermyne is mad in purfeling;
 With grete perles, ful fyne and orient,
 They were couched, al after oon worching,
 With dyamonds in stede of powdering;
 The slevs and purfilles of assyse;
 They were y-mad [ful] lyke, in every wyse.’

I wonder which the reader prefers; for myself, I have really no choice.

For I do not see how to choose between such lines as these following :—

And on I put my gere and myn array ; F. 26.
 That ye wold help me on with myn aray ; A. 241.
or, So than I dressed me in myn aray ; A. 253.
 As grete perles, round and orient ; F. 148.
 With grete perles, ful fyne and orient ; A. 528.
 And forth they yede togider, twain and twain ; F. 295.
 See how they come togider, twain and twain ; A. 350.
 So long, alas ! and, if that it you plese
 To go with me, I shal do yow the ese ; F. 391.
 And see, what I can do you for to plese,
 I am redy, that may be to your ese ; A. 447.
 I thank you now, in my most humble wyse ; F. 567.
 We thanked her in our most humble wyse ; A. 729.

Besides these striking coincidences in whole lines, there are a large number of phrases and endings of lines that are common to the two poems ; such as—the springing of the day, F. 25, A. 218 ; Which, as me thought, F. 36, A. 50 ; wel y-wrought, F. 49, A. 165 ; by mesure, F. 58, A. 81 ; I you ensure, F. 60, 287, A. 52, 199 ; in this wyse, F. 98, A. 589 ; I sat me down, F. 118, A. 77 ; oon and oon, F. 144, A. 368, 543, 710 ; by and by, F. 59, 146, A. 87 ; withouten fail, F. 369, A. 567, 646 ; herself aloon, F. 458, A. 84 ; ful demure, F. 459, A. 82 ; to put in wryting, F. 589, A. 664 ; and others that are printed out in the Notes.

Very characteristic of female authorship is the remark that the ladies vied with each other as to which looked the best ; a remark which occurs in both poems ; see F. 188, A. 384.

A construction common to both poems is the use of very with an adjective, a construction used by Lydgate, but not by Chaucer ; examples are very rede, F. 35 ; very good, F. 10, 315 ; very round, A. 479.

It is tedious to enumerate how much these poems have in common. They open in a similar way, F. with the description of a grove, A. with the description of a garden with a maze. In the eighth stanza of F., we come to ‘ a herber that benched was ’ ; and in the seventh stanza of A. we come to a similar ‘ herber, mad with benches ’ ; both from The Legend of Good Women.

In F., the authoress has a waking vision of ‘ a world of ladies ’ (137) ; in A. she sees in a dream the ‘ assembly of ladies.’ In both, she sees an abundance of dresses, and gems, and bright colours. Both introduce several scraps of French. In both, the authoress has interviews with allegorical or visionary personages, who address her either as daughter or sister. I have little doubt that the careful reader will discover more points of resemblance for himself.

§ 56. The chief appreciable difference between the two poems is that F. was probably written considerably earlier than A. This appears from the more frequent use of the final -e, which the authoress occasionally uses as an archaic embellishment, though she frequently forgets all about it for many stanzas together. In the former poem (F.) there seem to be about 50 examples, whilst in the latter (A.) there are hardly 10¹. In almost every case, it is correctly used, owing, no doubt, to tradition or to a perusal of older poetry. The most important cases are the abundant ones in which a final e is omitted where Chaucer would inevitably have inserted it. For example, such a line as F. 195—From the same grove, where the ladyes come out—would become, in Chaucer—From the sam-ē grov-ē wher the ladyes come out—giving at least twelve syllables in the line. The examples of the omission of final -e, where such omission makes a difference to the scansion, are not very numerous, because many such come before a vowel (where they might be elided) or at the cæsure (where they might be tolerated). Still we may note such a case as green in l. 109 where Chaucer would have written gren-e, giving a fresh gren-ē laurer-tree, to the ruin of the scansion. Similar offences against Chaucer's usage are herd for herd-e, 128 (cf. 191); spek' for spek-e, 140; al for all-e, plural, 165; sight for sight-e, 174; lyf for lyv-e, 182; sam' for sam-e, 195; the tenth for the tenth-e, 203; gret for gret-e, plural, 214, 225; red for red-e, 242; the worst for the worst-e, 255; yed' for yed-e, 295, 301; fast for fast-e, 304; rejoice for rejoy-se, 313; noise for nois-e, 353; sonn' for son-ne, 355, 408; hir fresh for hir fres-she, 357; laft for laft-e, pt. t., 364; their greet for hir gret-e, 377; sick for sek-e, 410; about for about-e, 411; to soup for to soup-e, 417; without for without-e, 423, 549; the hool for the hol-e, 437; to know for to know-e, 453; past for pass-ed-e or past-e, 465; My fair for My fair-e, vocative, 467, 500; to tel for to tell-e, 495; nin(e) for nyn-e, 502; imagin'(e) for imagin-en, 525; they last for they last-e, 562; thy rud(e) for thy rud-e, 595. Those who believe that The Flower and the Leaf was written by Chaucer will have to explain away every one of these cases; and when they have done so, there is more to be said.

§ 57. For it is well known that such a word as sweetly (96) was trisyllabic, as swet-e-ly, in Chaucer; C. T., A 221. Similarly, our authoress has trewly for *trew-e-ly*¹, 130; richly for rich-e-ly, 169; woodbind for wod-e-bind-e, 485. Similar is ointments for oin-e-ments, 409. And, moreover, our authoress differs from Chaucer as to other points of grammar. Thus she has Forshronk as a strong pp., 358, which ought to be forshronk-en or forshronk-e. Still more marked is her use of rood as the plural of the past tense, 449, 454, where Chaucer has rid-en; and her use of began as a plural, 385, where Chaucer has bigounn-e. Can these things be explained away also? If so, there is more to be said.

§ 58. All the above examples have been made out, without so much as looking at the rimes. But the rimes are much harder to explain away, where they differ from Chaucer's. Here are a few specimens.

Pas-se rimes with was, 27; so it must have been cut down to pas! Similarly, hew-e has become hew; for it rimes with grew, sing., 32. Sight-e has become sight, to rime with wight, 37. Brought should rather be brought-e, but it rimes with wrought, 48. Similar difficulties occur in peyn (for peyn-e), r. w. seyn (62); *syd*¹ for syd-e, r. w. espy'd for espy-ed, 72; eet, r. w. sweet for swet-e, 90; *not*¹ for not-e, r. w. sot, 99; busily, r. w. *aspy*¹ for aspy-e, 106; trewly, r. w. *armony*¹ for armony-e, 130; orient (oriant?), r. w. want for want-e, 148; person for person-e, r. w. everichon, 167. It is tedious to go on; let the critic finish the list, if he knows how to do it. If not, let him be humble. For there is more to come.

§ 59. Besides the grammar, there is yet the pronunciation to be considered; and here comes in the greatest difficulty of all. For, in ll. 86-89, we have the unusual rime of tree and be with pretily. This so staggered Dr. Morris, that he was induced to print the last word as pretile; which raises the difficulty without explaining it. For the explanation, the reader should consult the excellent dissertation by Dr. Curtis on The Romance of Clariodus

¹ The examples of trewly in Book Duch. 1111, 1151, are doubtful. It is a slippery poem to scan. Elsewhere, we find trew-e-ly.

(Halle, 1894), p. 56, § 187. He remarks that a rime of this character gives evidence of the transition of M. E. long close e to (Italian) long i [as in the change from A. S. mē to mod. E. me], and adds: 'this change became general in the fifteenth century, but had begun in some dialects at an earlier date.' Its occurrence in the present poem is a strong indication that it is later than the year 1400, and effectually disposes of any supposed connection with Midland poems of the fourteenth century.

Both poems are remarkably free from classical allusions and from references to such medieval authors as are freely quoted by Chaucer. There is nothing to shew that the authoress was acquainted with Latin, though she knew French, especially the French of songs and mottoes.

The Flower and the Leaf is chiefly famous for having been versified by Dryden. The version is a free one, in a manner all his own, and is finer than the original, which can hardly be said of his 'versions' of Palamon and Arcite and The Cock and the Fox. It is doubtless from this version that many critics have formed exaggerated ideas of the poem's value; otherwise, it is difficult to understand for what reasons it was considered worthy of so great a master as Geoffrey Chaucer.

§ 60. It will be seen, from the Notes, that the authoress was well acquainted with the Prologue to The Legend of Good Women; and it can hardly be questioned that she took the main idea of the poem from that source, especially ll. 188-194 of the later text. At the same time she was well acquainted with Gower's lines on the same subject, in the Conf. Amantis, iii. 357, 358; see vol. iii. pp. xlii, 297. Gower has:—

'Me thoughte I sigh to-fore myn hede
Cupide with his bowe bent,
And like unto a parlement
Which were ordeined for the nones,
With him cam al the world atones¹
Of gentil folk, that whylom were

And some of grete perles were.³ . . .

 The grene leef is overthrowe² . . .

§ 61. XXI. THE ASSEMBLY OF LADIES.

This has already been discussed, in some measure, in considering the preceding poem. Both pieces were written by the same authoress; but the former is the more sprightly and probably the earlier. With the exception of the unusual rime of tree with pretily (discussed above), nearly all the peculiarities of the preceding poem occur here also. The Chaucerian final -e appears now and then, as in commaund-e (probably plural), 203; red-e, 215; countenanc-e, 295; pen-ne [or else seyd-e], 307; chayr-e, 476; tak-e, 565; trouth-e, 647; liv-e, 672; sem-e (pr. s. subj.), 696. But it is usually dropped, as in The fresh for The fres-she, 2; &c. In l. 11, Thynne prints fantasyse for fantasyes; for it obviously rimes with gyse (monosyllabic); cf. 533-535. Hew-e and new-e are cut down to hew and new, to rime with knew, 67. Bold rimes with told, clipped form of told-e, 94; and so on. So, again, trewly appears in place of Chaucer's trew-e-ly, 488. It is needless to pursue the subject.

The description of the maze and the arbour, in ll. 29-70, is good. Another pleasing passage is that contained in ll. 449-507; and the description of a lady's dress in ll. 519-539. As for the lady herself—

‘It was a world to loke on her visage.’

There is a most characteristic touch of a female writer in lines 253-254:—

‘So than I dressed me in myn aray,
 And asked her, whether it were wel or no?’

To attribute such a question as ‘how will my dress do’ to a male writer is a little too dramatic for a mere narrative poem.

The two MSS. have now been collated for the first time and afford some important corrections, of which l. 61 presents remarkable instances. MS. Addit. 34360 is of some value.

² Cf. F. and L. 358-364.

§ 62. A considerable part of The Assembly of Ladies that is now of little interest may have been much appreciated at the time, as having reference to the ordering of a large medieval household, with its chambers, parlours, bay-windows, and galleries, carefully kept in good order by the various officers and servants; such as Perseverance the usher, Countenance the porter, Discretion the chief purveyor, Acquaintance the harbinger, Largesse the steward, Bel-cheer the marshal of the hall, Remembrance the chamberlain, and the rest. The authoress must have been perfectly familiar with spectacles and pageants and all the amusements of the court; but she was too humble to aspire to wear a motto.

‘ And for my “word,” I have non; this is trew.
It is ynough that my clothing be blew
As here-before I had commaundement;
And so to do I am right wel content’; A. 312.

We must not forget that the period of the Wars of the Roses, especially from 1455 to 1471, was one during which the composition of these poems was hardly possible. It is obviously very difficult to assign a date to them; perhaps they may be referred to the last quarter of the fifteenth century. We must not put them too late, because The Assembly exists in MSS. that seem to be as old as that period.

§ 63. XXII. A GOODLY BALADE.

For this poem there is but one authority, viz. Thynne’s edition of 1532. He calls it ‘A goodly balade of Chaucer’; but it is manifestly Lydgate’s. Moreover, it is really a triple Balade, with an Envoy, on the model of Chaucer’s Fortune and Complaynt of Venus; only it has seven-line stanzas instead of stanzas of eight lines. An inspection of Thynne’s volume shews that it was inserted to fill a gap, viz. a blank page at the back of the concluding lines of The Legend of Good Women, so that the translation of Boethius might commence on a new leaf.

It is obvious that the third stanza of the second Balade was missing in Thynne’s MS. He did not leave it out for lack of space; for there is plenty of room on his page.

That it is not Chaucer’s appears from the first Balade, where the use of the monosyllables shal and smal in ll. 8 and 10 necessitates the use of the clipped forms al for al-le, cal for cal-le, apal for apal-le, and befal for befal-le. Moreover, the whole style of it suggests Lydgate, and does not suggest Chaucer.

The sixth stanza probably began with the letter D; in which case, the initial letters of the stanzas give us M, M, M; D, D, D; J, C, Q. And, as it was evidently addressed to a lady named Margaret (see the Notes), we seem to see here Margaret, Dame Jacques. The name of Robert Jacques occurs in the Writs of Parliament; Bardsley's English Surnames, 2nd ed., p. 565. Of course this is a guess which it is easy to deride; but it is very difficult to account otherwise for the introduction of the letters J, C, Q in the third Balade; yet it was evidently intentional, for much force was employed to achieve the result. To make the first stanza begin with J, recourse is had to French; and the other two stanzas both begin with inverted clauses.

§ 64. XXIII. GO FORTH, KING.

I give this from Thynne's first edition; but add the Latin lines from the copy printed in Schick's edition of The Temple of Glas, at p. 68. His text is from that printed by Wynken de Worde about 1498, collated with the second and third prints from the same press at somewhat later dates, and a still later copy printed by Berthelet.

The only difference between Thynne's text and that given by Schick is that Wynken de Worde printed ar in the last line where Thynne has printed be. Schick also notes that 'the Chaucer-Prints of 1561 and 1598 omit thou' in l. 9; and I find that it is also omitted in the third edition (undated, about 1550). But it occurs in the edition of 1532, all the same; shewing that the later reprints cannot always be relied upon.

I have already said (vol. i. p. 40)—'Surely it must be Lydgate's.' For it exhibits his love for 'catalogues,' and presents his peculiarities of metre. Dr. Schick agrees with this ascription, and points out that its appearance in the four prints above-mentioned, in all of which it is annexed to Lydgate's Temple of Glas, tends to strengthen my supposition. I think this may be taken as removing all doubt on the subject.

§ 65. I beg leave to quote here Schick's excellent remarks upon the poem itself.

'There are similar pieces to these Duodecim Abusiones in earlier

English literature (see ten Brink, Geschichte der englischen Literatur, i. 268, and note).¹ The "twelf unþēawas" existed also in Old-English; a homily on them is printed in Morris, Old Eng. Homilies, pp. 101-119.² It is based on the Latin Homily "De octo viciis et de duodecim abusivis huius saeculi," attributed to St. Cyprian or St. Patrick; see Dietrich in Niedner's Zeitschrift für historische Theologie, 1855, p. 518; Wanley's Catalogus, passim (cf. the Index sub voce Patrick). In the Middle-English period we meet again with more or less of these "Abusions"; see Morris, Old Eng. Miscellany, p. 185 (11 Abusions); Furnivall, Early Eng. Poems, Berlin, 1862 (Phil. Soc.), p. 161; "Five Evil Things," Wright and Halliwell, Reliquiae Antiquae, i. 316, and ii. 14.³

§ 66. XXIV. THE COURT OF LOVE.

This piece was first printed by Stowe in 1561. Stowe happened to have access to a MS. which was really a miscellaneous collection of Middle-English pieces of various dates; and he proceeded to print them as being 'certaine workes of Geffray Chauser,' without paying any regard to their contents or style. In vol. i. pp. 33, 34, I give a list of his additions, numbered 42-60.³ By good fortune, the very MS. in question is now in Trinity College Library, marked R. 3. 19. We can thus tell that he was indebted to it for the pieces numbered 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 53, 54, 55, 56, and 59. These eleven pieces are all alike remarkable for being non-Chaucerian; indeed, no. 56 is certainly Lydgate's. But it has so happened that no. 59, or The Court of Love, being the best of these pieces, was on that account 'attributed' to Chaucer, whilst the others were unhesitatingly rejected. And it happened on this wise.

§ 67. After Tyrwhitt had edited the Canterbury Tales afresh, it occurred to him to compile a Glossary. He rightly reasoned that the Glossary would be strengthened and made more correct if he included in it all the harder words found in the whole of Chaucer's Works, instead of limiting the vocabulary to words which occur in the Canterbury Tales only. For this purpose, he proceeded to draw up a List of what he conceived to be Chaucer's genuine works; and we must remember that the only process open to him was to consider all the old editions, and reject such as he conceived to be spurious. Hence his List is not really a list of genuine works, but one made by striking out from all previous lists the works which he knew to be spurious. A moment's reflection will show that this is a very different thing.

Considering that he had only his own acumen to guide him, and had no access to linguistic or grammatical tests, still less to tests derived from an examination of rimes or phonology, it is wonderful how well he did his work. In the matter of rejection, he did not make a single mistake. His first revision was made by considering only the pieces numbered 1-41, in the first part of Stowe's print (see vol. i. pp. 31-33); and he struck out the following, on the express ground that they were known to have been written by other authors; viz. nos. 4, 11, 13, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 33, and 40¹.

Then he went over the list again, and struck out, on internal evidence, nos. 15, 18, 21, 22, and 32².

Truly, here was a noble beginning! The only non-Chaucerian pieces which he failed to reject explicitly, among nos. 1-41, were the following, viz. 6 (A Goodly Balade of Chaucer), 17 (The Complaint of the Black Knight), 20 (The Testament of Love), 31 (The Cuckoo and the Nightingale), 38 (Go forth, King), and 41 (A Balade in Praise of Chaucer). Of course he rejected the last of these, but it was not worth his while to say so; and, in the same way, he tacitly rejected or ignored nos. 6, 30, and 38. Hence it was that nos. 6, 30, 38, and 41 did not appear in Moxon's Chaucer, and even no. 32 was carefully excluded. In his final list, out of nos. 1-41, Tyrwhitt actually got rid of all but nos. 17, 20, and 31 (The Black Knight, The Testament of Love, and The Cuckoo).

As to the remaining articles, he accepted, among the longer pieces, nos. 59, 62, and 63, i.e. The Court of Love, Chaucer's Dream, and The Flower and the Leaf; to which he added nos.

¹ At the same time he struck out no. 56 (p. 34), as being by Lydgate.

² In Moxon's Chaucer, which professed to accept Tyrwhitt's canon, this piece was omitted; but it was revived once more by Bell.

42, 43, and 60 (as to which there is no doubt), and also the Virelai (no. 50), on the slippery ground that it is a virelai (which, strictly speaking, it is not).

§ 68. One result of his investigations was that an edition of Chaucer was published by Moxon (my copy is dated 1855), in which all the poems were included which Tyrwhitt accepted, followed by Tyrwhitt's Account of the Works of Chaucer.

Owing to the popularity of this edition, many scholars accepted the poems contained in it as being certainly genuine; but it is obvious that this was a very risky thing to do, in the absence of external evidence; especially when it is remembered that Tyrwhitt merely wanted to illustrate his glossary to the Canterbury Tales by adding words from other texts. The idea of drawing up a canon by the process of striking out from luxuriant lists the names of pieces that are obviously spurious, is one that should never have found acceptance.

§ 69. There is only one correct method of drawing up a canon of genuine works, viz. that adopted by Mr. Henry Bradshaw, formerly our Cambridge University Librarian. It is simple enough, viz. to take a clean sheet of paper, and enter upon it, first of all, the names of all the pieces that are admittedly genuine; and then to see if it can fairly be augmented by adding such pieces as have reasonable evidence in their favour. In making a list of this character, The Court of Love has no claim to be considered at all, as I fully proved about twenty years ago¹; and there is an end of the matter. The MS. copy is in a hand of the sixteenth century², and there is no internal evidence to suggest an earlier date.

§ 70. Our task is to determine what it really is, and what can be made of it as it stands. We learn from the author that he was 'a clerk of Cambridge' (913), which we may readily accept. Beyond this, there is nothing but internal evidence ; but of this there is much. That our 'clerk' had read Ovid and Maximian appears from the Notes ; he even seems to have imbibed something of 'the new learning,' as he makes up the names Philogenet and Philo-bone by help of a Greek adjective¹. Dr. Schick has made it clear that he was well acquainted with Lydgate's Temple of Glas, which he imitates freely ; see Schick's edition of that poem, p. cxxix. Mr. J. T. T. Brown, in his criticism on 'The Authorship of the Kingis Quair,' Glasgow, 1896, draws many parallels between The Court of Love and The Kingis Quair, and concludes that The Kingis Quair was indebted to The Court of Love ; but it is tolerably certain that the indebtedness was in the other direction. For, in The Kingis Quair, some knowledge of the true use of Chaucer's final -e is still exhibited, even in a Northern poem, whilst in The Court of Love, it is almost altogether dead, though the poem is in the Midland dialect. I shall presently shew that our clerk, whilst very nearly ignoring the final -e, occasionally employs the final -en ; but this he does in a way which clearly shews that he did not understand when to use it aright, a fact which is highly significant.

I am much indebted to my friend Professor Hales for pointing out another very cogent argument. He draws attention to the numerous instances in which the author of The Court of Love fails to end a stanza with a stop. There is no stop, for example, at the end of ll. 14, 567, 672, 693, 700, 763, 826, 1064, 1288 ; and only a slight pause at the end of ll. 28, 49, 70, 84, 189, 231, 259, 280, 371, 406, 427, &c. In Chaucer's Parlement of Foules, on the other hand, there is but one stanza without a stop at the end, viz. at l. 280 ; and but one with a slight pause, viz. at l. 154. The difference between these results is very marked, and would convince any mathematician. I should like to add that the same test disposes of the claims of The Flower and the Leaf to be considered as Chaucer's ; it has no stop at the end of ll. 7, 70, 154, 161, 196, 231, 280, 308, 392, 476, and has mere commas at the end of ll. 28, 49, 56, 98, 119, 224, 259, 329, 336, &c. In the Assembly of Ladies this departure from Chaucer's usage has been

§ 71. The sole MS. copy of The Court of Love belongs to the sixteenth century, and there is nothing to shew that the poem itself was of earlier date. Indeed, the language of it is remarkably like that of the former half of that century. If it be compared with Sackville's famous 'Induction,' the metrical form of the stanzas is much the same; there is the same smoothness of rhythm and frequent modernness of form, quite different from the halting lines of Lydgate and Hawes. This raises a suggestion that the author may have learnt his metre from Scottish authors, such as Henryson and Dunbar; and it is surprising to find him employing such words as celsitude and pulcritude, and even riming them together, precisely as Dunbar did (ll. 611-613, and the note). One wonders where he learnt to use such words, if not from Scottish authors. Curiously enough, a single instance of the use of a Northern inflexion occurs in the phrase me thynkes, 874. And I admit the certainty that he consulted The Kingis Quair.

I have no space to discuss the matter at length; so shall content myself with saying that the impression produced upon me is that we have here the work of one of the heralds of the Elizabethan poetry, of the class to which belonged Nicholas Grimoald, Thomas Sackville, Lord Surrey, Lord Vaux, and Sir Francis Bryan. There must have been much fairly good poetry in the time of Henry VIII that is lost to us. Tottell's Miscellany clearly shews this, as it is a mere selection of short pieces, which very nearly perished; but for this fortunate relic, we should not have known much about Wyatt and Surrey. Sackville, when at Cambridge, acquired some distinction for Latin and English verse, but we possess none of it. However, Sackville was not the author of The Court of Love, seeing that it was published in a 'Chaucer' collection in 1561, long before his death.

The fact that our clerk was well acquainted with so many pieces by Chaucer, such as The Knight's Tale, the Complaint of Pity, The Legend of Good Women, Troilus, and Anelida, besides giving us reminiscences of The Letter of Cupid, and (perhaps) of The Cuckoo and Nightingale, raises the suspicion that he had access to Thynne's edition of 1532; and it is quite possible that this very book inspired him for his effort. This suspicion becomes almost a certainty if it be true that ll. 495-496 are borrowed from Rom. Rose, 2819-20; see note at p. 545. I can find no reason for dating the poem earlier than that year.

§ 72. However this may be, the chief point to notice is that his archaisms are affectations and not natural. He frequently dispenses with them altogether for whole stanzas at a time. When they occur, they are such as he found in Chaucer abundantly; I refer to such phrases as I-wis or y-wis; as blyve; the use of ich for I (661); besy cure (36); gan me dresse (113; cf. C. T., G 1271); by the feith I shall to god (131; cf. Troil. iii. 1649); and many more. He rarely uses the prefix i- or y- with the pp.; we find y-born (976), y-formed (1176), y-heried (592), y-sped (977), all in Chaucer; besides these, I only note y-fed (975), y-ravished (153), y-stope (281), the last being used in the sense of Chaucer's stope. The most remarkable point is the almost total absence of the final -e; I only observe His len-ē body (1257); to serv-e (909); to dred-e (603); and in thilk-ē place (642); the last of which is a phrase (cf. R. R. 660). On the other hand, whilst thus abstaining from the use of the final -e, he makes large use of the longer and less usual suffix -en, which he employs with much skill to heighten the archaic effect. Thus we find the past participles holden, 62; growen, 182; yoven or yeven, 742; shapen, 816, 1354; blowen, 1240; the gerunds writen, 35; dressen, 179; byden, 321; semen, 607; seken, 838; worshippen, 1165, and a few others; the infinitives maken, 81; byden, 189; quyten, 327, &c., this being the commonest use; the present plurals wailen, 256; foten, 586; speden, 945, &c.; with the same form for the first person, as in wailen, 1113; bleden, 1153; and for the second person, as in waxen, 958; slepen, 999. Occasionally, this suffix is varied to -yn or -in, as in exilyn, v., 336; serchyn, v., 950; spakyn, pt. pl., 624; approchyn, pr. pl., 1212. This may be the scribe's doing, and is consistent with East Anglian spelling.

But the artificial character of these endings is startlingly revealed when we find -en added in an impossible position, shewing that its true grammatical use was quite dead. Yet we find such examples. A serious error (hardly the scribe's) occurs in l. 347: 'Wheder that she me helden lefe or loth.' Hold being a strong verb, the pt. t. is held; we could however justify the use of held-e, by supposing it to be the subjunctive mood, which suits the sense; but held-en (with -en) is the plural form, while she is singular; and really this use of -e in the subjunctive must have been long dead. In l. 684, we have a case that is even worse, viz. I kepen in no wyse; here the use of -en saves a hiatus, but the concord is false, like the Latin ego servamus. In l. 928, the same thing recurs, though the scribe has altered greven into *growen*¹; for this present tense is supposed to agree with I! A very clear case occurs in l. 725: For if by me this mater springen out; where the use of -en, again meant to save a hiatus, is excruciatingly wrong; for mater is singular! This cannot be the fault of the scribe. Other examples of false grammar are: thou serven, 290; thou sene, 499. But the climax is attained in l. 526, where we meet with thay kepten ben, where the -en is required for the metre. Kepten, as a past participle, is quite unique; let us drop a veil over this sad lapse, and say no more about it².

We may, however, fairly notice the constant use of the Northern forms their and thaim or theim, where Chaucer has hir and hem. The use of their and them (not thaim) was well established by the year 1500 in literary English, as, e.g., in Hawes and Skelton. Caxton uses all four forms, hem and them, her and their.

§ 73. I add a few notes, suggested by an examination of the rimes employed.

The final -e is not used at the end of a line. This is easily seen, if carefully looked into. Thus lette (1284) stands for let, for it rimes with y-set; grace and trespace rime with was, 163; kene rimes with bene, misspelling of been, 252; redde, put for red, rimes with spred, 302; yerde, put for yerd, rimes with aferd, 363; ende rimes with frend and fend, 530; and so on throughout³. The following assonances occur: here, grene, 253; kepe, flete, 309; and the following rimes are imperfect: plaint, talent, consent, 716; frend, mynd, 1056; nonne (for non), boun, 1149; like (i long), stike (i short), 673; and perhaps *hold, shuld*⁴, 408; hard, ferd, 151. Hard is repeated, 149, 151; 1275, 1277. A curious rime

¹ Which looks as if the author had written growen for greven, like a Scotchman.

² A very bad mistake occurs in l. 1045, viz. thou wot instead of thou wost, as if one should say in Latin tu scio. It rimes with dote, which, in Chaucer, is dissyllabic.

⁴ See vol. vi. p. xlv.

is that of length with thynketh, 1059; read thenk'th, and it is good enough. Noteworthy are these: thryse (for Chaucer's thry-es), wyse, 537; hens (for Chaucer's henn-es), eloquence, 935; desire, here, 961, 1301; eke, like, 561; tretesse (for Chaucer's tretys), worthinesse, 28; write, aright, 13; sey (I saw), way, 692. In one place, he has discryve, 778, to rime with lyve; and in another discry (miswritten discryve, 97), to rime with high. As in Chaucer, he sometimes has dy, to die, riming with remedy, 340, and elsewhere dey, to rime with pray, 582; and again fire, fyr, riming with hyre, 883, or with desire, 1285, and at another time the Kentish form fere (borrowed from Chaucer), with the same sense, r. w. y-fere, 622. The most curious forms are those for 'eye.' When it rimes with degree, 132, see, 768, we seem to have the Northern form ee or e; but elsewhere it rimes with besily, 299, pretily, 419, wounderly, 695, dispitously, 1139, or with I, 282; and the plural yen (= y'n) rimes with lyne, 135. The sounds represented by ē and y obviously afford permissible rimes; that the sounds were not identical appears from ll. 1051-1055, which end with me, remedy, be, dy, company consecutively.

§ 74. Perhaps an easier way for enabling a learner to recognise the peculiarities of The Court of Love, and the difference of its language from Chaucer, is to translate some lines of it into Chaucerian English. The effect upon the metre is startling.

So thanne I went-ē by straunge and fer-rē contrees; 57.
 Alceste it was that kept-ē there her sojour; 105.
 To whom obeyd-ēn the ladies god-ē nynten-ē; 108.
 And yong-ē men fel-ē cam-ē forth with lusty pace; 110.
 O bright-ē Regina, who mad-ē thee so fair? 141.
 And mercy ask-ē for al my gret-ē trespas; 166.
 This eight-ē-ten-ē yeer have kept yourself at large; 184.
 In me did never worch-ē trew-ē-ly, yit I; 212.
 And ther I sey the fres-shē quene of Cartáge; 231.
 A! new-ē com-ēn folk, abyde, and woot ye why; 271.
 Than gan I me present-ē tofor-ē the king; 274.
 That thou be trew-ē from henn-es-forth, to thy might; 289.
 And nam-ē-ly haw-ē-thorn brought-ēn both-ē page and grom-ē; 1433.

Very many more such examples may be given. Or take the following; Chaucer has (L. G. W. 476):—

For Love ne wól nat countrepleted be.

And this is how it reappears in C. L. 429:—

For Love wil not be counterpleted, indede!

Here the melody of the line is completely spoilt.

In the present state of our knowledge of the history of the English language, any notion of attributing The Court of Love to Chaucer is worse than untenable; for it is wholly disgraceful. Everything points to a very late date, and tends to exclude it, not only from the fourteenth, but even from the fifteenth century.

At the same time, it will readily be granted that the poem abounds with Chaucerian words and phrases to an extent that almost surpasses even the poems of Lydgate. The versification is smooth, and the poem, as a whole, is pleasing. I have nothing to say against it, when considered on its own merits.

§ 75. Space fails me to discuss the somewhat vexed question of the Courts of Love, of which some have denied the existence. However, there seems to be good evidence to shew that they arose in Provence, and were due to the extravagances of the troubadours. They were travesties of the courts of law, with a lady of rank for a judge, and minstrels for advocates; and they discussed subtle questions relating to affairs of love, usually between troubadours and ladies. The discussions were conducted with much seriousness, and doubtless often served to give much amusement to many idle people. Not unfrequently they led to tragedies, as is easily understood when we notice that the first of one set of thirty-one Laws of Love runs as follows:—‘Marriage cannot be pleaded as an excuse for refusing to love.’ The reader who requires further information is referred to ‘The Troubadours and Courts of Love,’ by J. F. Rowbotham, M.A., London, Swan Sonnenschein and Co., 1895.

It is perhaps necessary to observe that the said Courts have very little to do with the present poem, which treats of a Court of Cupid in the Chaucerian sense (Leg. Good Women, 352). Even the statutes of the Court are largely imitated from Lydgate.

§ 76. PIECES NUMBERED XXV–XXIX.

XXV. VIRELAY. This piece, from the Trinity MS., belongs to the end of the fifteenth century, and contains no example of the final -e as constituting a syllable. Chaucer would have used sore (l. 2), more (l. 12), trouth (l. 13), as dissyllables; and he would not have rimed pleyn and disdayn with compleyn and absteyn, as the two latter require a final -e. The rime of finde with ende is extraordinary.

The title 'Virelai' is given to this piece in Moxon's Chaucer, and is, strictly speaking, incorrect; in the MS. and in Stowe's edition, it has no title at all! Tyrwhitt cautiously spoke of it as being 'perhaps by Chaucer'; and says that 'it comes nearer to the description of a Virelay, than anything else of his that has been preserved.' This is not the case; see note to Anelida, 256; vol. i. p. 536. Tyrwhitt quotes from Cotgrave—' Virelay, a round, freemen's song,' and adds—'There is a particular description of a Virlai, in the Jardin de plaisance, fol. xii, where it makes the decima sexta species Rhetorice Gallicane.' For further remarks, see p. 554.

XXVI. PROSPERITY: BY JOHN WALTON. 'To Mr. [Mark] Liddell belongs the honour of the discovery of John Walton as the author of the little poem on fol. 119 [of MS. Arch. Seld. B. 24]. The lines occur as part of the Prologue (ll. 83–90) to Walton's translation of Boethius' De Consolatione.'—J. T. T. Brown, The Authorship of the Kingis Quair, Glasgow, 1896; p. 71. See the account of Walton in Warton's Hist. E. Poetry, sect. xx. The original date of the stanza was, accordingly, 1410; but we here find it in a late Scottish dress. The ascription of it to 'Chaucer,' in the MS., is an obvious error; it was written ten years after his death.

XXVII. LEAULTE VAULT RICHESSE. This piece, like the former, has no title in the MS.; but the words Leaulte vault Richesse (Loyalty deserves riches) occur at the end of it. If the original was in a Midland dialect, it must belong to the latter part of the fifteenth century. Even in these eight lines we find a contradiction to Chaucer's usage; for he always uses lent, pp., as a monosyllable, and rente as a dissyllable. It is further remarkable that he never uses content as an adjective; it first appears in Rom. Rose, 5628.

XXVIII. SAYINGS. I give these sayings as printed by Caxton; see vol. i. p. 46, where I note that Caxton did not ascribe them to Chaucer. They are not at all in his style.

In MS. Ashmole 59, fol. 78, I find a similar prophecy:—

Prophecia merlini doctoris perfecti.

Whane lordes wol leefe theire olde lawes,
And preestis been varynge in theire sawes,
And leccherie is holden solace,
And oppressyoun for truwe purchace;

And whan the moon is on dauid stall,
 And the kynge passe Arthures hall,
 Than¹ is [the] lande of Albyon
 Nexst to his confusyoun.

It is extremely interesting to observe the ascription of these lines to Merlin; see King Lear, iii. 2. 95.

XXIX. BALADE. This poor stanza, with its long-drawn lines, appears in Stowe at the end of 'Chaucer's Works.' In the Trinity MS., it occurs at the end of a copy of The Parlement of Foules.

§ 77. An examination of the pieces contained in the present volume leads us to a somewhat remarkable result, viz. that we readily distinguish in them the handiwork of at least twelve different authors, of whom no two are much alike, whilst every one of them can be distinguished from Chaucer.

These are : (1) the author of The Testament of Love, who writes in a prose style all his own ; (2) the author of The Plowmans Tale and Plowmans Crede, with his strong powers of invective and love of alliteration, whose style could never have been mistaken for Chaucer's in any age²; (3) the author of Jack Upland, with his direct and searching questions; (4) John Gower, with his scrupulous regularity of grammatical usages; (5) Thomas Hoccleve, who too often accents a dissyllable on the latter syllable when it should be accented on the former; (6) Henry Scogan, whose lines are lacking in interest and originality; (7) John Lydgate³, who allows his verse too many licences, so that it cannot always be scanned at the first trial; (8) Sir Richard Ros, who writes in English of a quite modern cast, using their and them as in modern English, and wholly discarding the use of final -e as an inflexion; (9) Robert Henryson, who writes smoothly enough and with a fine vein of invention, but employs the Northern dialect; (10) Sir Thomas Clanvowe, who employs the final -e much more frequently than Chaucer or even Gower; (11) the authoress of The Flower and the Leaf and The Assembly of Ladies, to whom the final -e was an archaism, very convenient for metrical embellishment; and (12) the author of The Court of Love, who, while discarding

² It is clear that The Plowmans Tale and Jack Upland were inserted by Thynne and Speght respectively on religious grounds.

³ We may safely assign to Lydgate the pieces numbered XXII and XXIII, as well as those numbered VIII to XV.

the use of the final -e, was glad to use the final -en to save a hiatus or to gain a syllable, and did not hesitate to employ it where it was grammatically wrong to do so.

§ 78. If the reader were to suppose that this exhausts the list, he would be mistaken; for it is quite easy to add at least one known name, and to suggest three others. For the piece numbered XXVI, on p. 449, has been identified as the work of John Walton, who wrote a verse translation of Boethius in the year 1410; whilst it is extremely unlikely that no. XXVII, written in Lowland Scottish, was due to Henryson, the only writer in that dialect who has been mentioned above. This gives a total of fourteen authors already; and I believe that we require yet two more before the Virelai and the Sayings printed by Caxton (nos. XXV and XXVIII) can be satisfactorily accounted for. As for no. XIX—the Envoy to Alison—it may be Lydgate's, but, on the other hand, it may not. And as for no. XXIX, it is of no consequence.

Moreover, it must be remembered that I here only refer to the selected pieces printed in the present volume. If we go further afield, we soon find several more authors, all distinct from those above-mentioned, from each other, and from Chaucer. I will just instance the author of the Isle of Ladies, the authoress (presumably) of The Lamentation of Mary Magdalen, the author of The Craft of Lovers, the 'man unknown' who wrote The Ten Commandments of Love, and the author of the clumsy lines dignified by the title of The Nine Ladies Worthy. It is quite certain that not less than twenty authors are represented in the mass of heterogeneous material which appears under Chaucer's name in a compilation such as that which is printed in the first volume of Chalmers' British Poets; which, precisely on that very account, is useful enough in its own peculiar way.

§ 79. I believe it may be said of nearly every piece in the volume, that it now appears in an improved form. In several cases, I have collated MSS. that have not previously been examined, and have found them to be the best. The Notes are nearly all new; very few have been taken from Bell's Chaucer. Several are due to Schick's useful notes to The Temple of Glas; and some to Krausser's edition of The Black Knight, and to Gröhler's edition of La Belle Dame, both of which reached me after my own notes were all in type. I have added a Glossary of the harder words ; for others, see the Glossary already printed in vol. vi.

In extenuation of faults, I may plead that I have found it much more difficult to deal with such heterogenous material as is comprised in the present volume than with pieces all written by the same author. The style, the grammar, the mode of scansion, the dialect, and even the pronunciation are constantly shifting, instead of being reasonably consistent, as in the genuine works of Chaucer. Any one who will take the pains to observe these points, to compile a sufficient number of notes upon difficult passages, and to prepare a somewhat full glossary, may thus practically convince himself, as I have done, that not a single piece in the present volume ought ever to have been 'attributed' to Chaucer. That any of them should have been so attributed—and some of them never were—has been the result of negligence, superficiality, and incapacity, such as (it may be hoped) we have seen the last of.

I wish once more to acknowledge my obligations to Mr. E. B. Nicholson, for the loan of his transcript of The Praise of Peace ; to Mr. Bradley, for his discovery of the authorship of The Testament of Love and for other assistance as regards the same ; to Dr. E. Krausser, for his edition of The Complaint of the Black Knight ; to Dr. Gröhler, for his dissertation on La Belle Dame sans Mercy ; and to Professor Hales for his kind help as to some difficult points, and particularly with regard to The Court of Love.

45 Certes, [perfeccion is] the soveraynest thing of desyre, and moste tcreatures resonable have, or els shulde have, ful appetyte to their perfeccion ; unresonable beestes mowen not, sith reson hath in hem no werking. Than resonable that wol not is com-parisoned to unresonable, and made lyke hem. For-sothe, the 50 most soverayne and fynal perfeccion of man is in knowing of a sothe, withouten any entent disceyvable, and in love of oon very god that is inchaungeable ; that is, to knowe and love his creatour.

¶ Now, principally, the mene to bringe in knowleging and 55 loving his creatour is the consideracion of thinges made by the creatour, wherthrough, by thilke thinges that ben made understanding here to our wittes, arn the unsene privitees of god made to us sightful and knowing, in our contemplacion and understanding. These thinges than, forsoth, moche bringen us to the ful knowleginge [of] sothe, and to the parfit love of the 60 maker of hevenly thinges. Lo, David sayth, 'thou hast delyted me in makinge,' as who sayth, to have delyt in the tune, how god hath lent me in consideracion of thy makinge.

Wherof Aristotle, in the boke de Animalibus, saith to naturel philosophers: 'it is a greet lyking in love of knowinge their 65 creatour; and also in knowinge of causes in kyndely thinges.'
Considred, forsoth, the formes of kyndly thinges and the shap, a greet kindly love me shulde have to the werkman that hem made. The crafte of a werkman is shewed in the werke.
Herfore, trully, the philosophers, with a lyvely studie, many 70 noble thinges right precious and worthy to memory writen;
and by a greet swetande travayle to us lesten of causes [of] the propertees in natures of thinges. To whiche (therfore) philosophers it was more joy, more lykinge, more herty lust, in kyndely vertues and maters of reson, the perfeccion by busy 75 study to knowe, than to have had al the tresour, al the richesse, al the vainglory that the passed emperours, princes, or kinges hadden. Therfore the names of hem, in the boke of perpetual memory, in vertue and pees arn writen; and in the contrarye, that is to sayne, in Styx, the foule pitte of helle, arn thilke pressed 80 that suche goodnesse hated. And bycause this book shal be of love, and the pryme causes of steringe in that doinge, with passions and diseses for wantinge of desyre, I wil that this book be cleped

But now, thou reder, who is thilke that wil not in scorne 85
laughe, to here a dwarfe, or els halfe a man, say he wil rende out the swerde of Hercules handes, and also he shuld sette Hercules Gades a myle yet ferther; and over that, he had power of strengthe to pulle up the spere, that Alisander the noble might never wagge? And that, passing al thinge, to ben 90 mayster of Fraunce by might, there-as the noble gracious Edward the thirde, for al his greet prowesse in victories, ne might al yet conquere?

Certes, I wot wel, ther shal be mad more scorne and jape of me, that I, so unworthily clothed al-togider in the cloudy cloude 95 reson that he hath in hayne, be it never so trusty. And al-though these noble repers, as good workmen and worthy their hyre, han al drawe and bounde up in the sheves, and mad many after their handes; and, if me faile ought of my ful, to encrease my porcion with that I shal drawe by privitees out of the shocke.

115 A slye servaunt in his owne helpe is often moche commended; knowing of trouth in causes of thinges was more hardyer in the first sechers (and so sayth Aristotle), and lighter in us that han folowed after. For their passing †studies han fresshed our wittes, and our understandinge han excyted, in consideracion of trouth, 120 by sharpnesse of their resons. Utterly these thinges be no dremes ne japes, to throwe to hogges; it is lyflich mete for children of trouthe; and as they me betiden, whan I pilgrimaged out of my kith in winter; whan the †weder out of mesure was 125 dryinge coldes maked the wawes of the occian-see so to aryse unkyndely over the commune bankes, that it was in poynte to spille al the erthe.

Thus endeth the Prologue; and here-after foloweth the

CHAPTER I.

ALAS! Fortune! alas! I that som-tyme in delicious houres was wont to enjoye blisful stoundes, am now drive by unhappy hevinesse to bewaile my sondry yvels in tene!

Trewly, I leve, in myn herte is writte, of perdurable letters, al the entencions of lamentacion that now ben y-nempned! For any maner disease outward, in sobbing maner, sheweth sorowful yexinge from within. Thus from my comfort I ginne to spille, sith she that shulde me solace is fer fro my presence. Certes, her absence is to me an helle; my sterving deth thus in wo it myneth, that endeles care is throughout myne herte clenched; blisse of my joye, that ofte me murthed, is turned in-to galle, to thinke on thing that may not, at my wil, in armes me hente! Mirth is chaunged in-to tene, whan swink is there continually that reste was wont to sojourne and have dwelling-place. Thus witless, thoughtful, sightles lokinge, I endure my penaunce in this derke prison, †caitived fro frendshippe and acquaintaunce, and forsaken of al that any †word dare speke. Straunge hath by waye of intrucioun mad his home, there me shulde be, if reson were herd as he shulde. Never-the-later yet hertly, lady precious Margarit, have mynde on thy servaunt; and thinke on his disease, how lightles he liveth, sithe the bemes brennende in love of thyn eyen are so bewent, that worldes and cloudes atwene us twey wol nat suffre my thoughtes of hem to be enlumined! Thinke that oon vertue of a Margarite precious is, amonges many other, the sorouful to comforte; yet †whyles that, me sorouful to comforte, is my lust to have nought els at this tyme, d[r]ede ne deth ne no maner traveyle hath no power, myn herte so moche to fade, as shulde to here of a twinkling in your disease! Ah! god forbode that; but yet let me deye, let me sterve withouten any mesure of penaunce, rather than myn hertely thinking comfort in ought were disesed! What may my service avayle, in absence of her that my service shulde accepte? Is this nat endeles sorowe to thinke? Yes, yes, god wot; myn herte breketh nigh a-sonder.

 How shulde the ground, without kyndly noriture, bringen forth 35 any frutes? How shulde a ship, withouten a sterne, in the grete see be governed? How shulde I, withouten my blisse, my herte, my desyre, my joye, my goodnesse, endure in this contrarious prison, that thinke every hour in the day an hundred winter? Wel may now Eve sayn to me, 'Adam, in sorowe fallen from welth, driven 40 art thou out of paradise, with swete thy sustenance to be-with chaynes linked of care and of tene. It is so hye from thens

 I lye and the commune erth, there ne is cable in no lande maked, that might strecche to me, to drawe me in-to blisse; ne steiers 45 to steye on is none; so that, without recover, endeles here to endure, I wot wel, I [am] purveyed. O, where art thou now, frendship, that som-tyme, with laughande chere, madest bothe face and countenance to me-wardes? Truly, now art thou went out of towne. But ever, me thinketh, he wereth his olde 50 clothes, and that the soule in the whiche the lyfe of frendship was in, is drawn out from his other spirites. Now than, farewell, frendship! and farewell, felawes! Me thinketh, ye al han taken your leve; no force of you al at ones. But, lady of love, ye wote what I mene; yet thinke on thy servaunt that for thy love 55 spilleth; al thinges have I forsake to folowen thyn hestes; rewarde me with a thought, though ye do naught els. Remembraunce of love lyth so sore under my brest, that other thought cometh not in my mynde but gladnesse, to thinke on your goodnesse and your mery chere; ferdnes and sorowe, to thinke on your 60 wreche and your daunger; from whiche Christ me save! My greet joye it is to have in meditacion the bountees, the vertues, the nobley in you printed; sorowe and helle comen at ones, to suppose that I be tweyved. Thus with care, sorowe, and tene am I shapt, myn ende with dethe to make. Now, good goodly, 65 thinke on this. O wretched foole that I am, fallen in-to so lowe, the hete of my brenning tene hath me al defased. How shulde ye, lady, sette prise on so foule fylthe? My conninge is thinne, my wit is exiled; lyke to a foole naturel am I comparised.

Trewly, lady, but your mercy the more were, I wot wel al my labour were in ydel; your mercy than passeth right. God graunt 75 that propoicion to be verified in me; so that, by truste of good hope, I mowe come to the haven of ese. And sith it is impossible, the colours of your qualitees to chaunge: and forsothe I wot wel, wem ne spot may not abyde there so noble vertue haboundeth, so that the defasing to you is verily [un]imaginable, 75 as countenaunce of goodnesse with encresinge vertue is so in you knit, to abyde by necessary maner: yet, if the revers mighte falle (which is ayenst kynde), I wot wel myn herte ne shulde therfore naught flitte, by the leste poynt of gemetrye; so sadly is it †souded, that away from your service in love may he not departe. 80 O love, whan shal I ben plesed? O charitee, whan shal I ben esed? O good goodly, whan shal the dyce turne? O ful of vertue, do the chaunce of comfort upwarde to falle! O love, whan wolt thou thinke on thy servaunt? I can no more but here, out-cast of al welfare, abyde the day of my dethe, or els to see the 85 sight that might al my wellinge sorowes voyde, and of the flode make an ebbe. These diseses mowen wel, by duresse of sorowe, make my lyfe to unbode, and so for to dye; but certes ye, lady, in a ful perfeccion of love ben so knit with my soule, that deth may not thilke knotte unbynde ne departe; so that ye and my 90 soule togider †in endeles blisse shulde dwelle; and there shal my soule at the ful ben esed, that he may have your presence, to shewe th'entent of his desyres. Ah, dere god! that shal be a greet joye! Now, erthely goddess, take regarde of thy servant, though I be feble; for thou art wont to prayse them better that 95 wolde conne serve in love, al be he ful mener than kinges or princes that wol not have that vertue in mynde.

Now, precious Margaryte, that with thy noble vertue hast drawn me in-to love first, me weninge therof to have blisse, [ther]-as galle and aloes are so moche spronge, that savour of 100 swetnesse may I not ataste. Alas! that your benigne eyen, in whiche that mercy semeth to have al his noriture, nil by no waye tourne the clerenesse of mercy to me-wardes!  on my backe so sore, that importable burthen me semeth on my backe to be charged ; it maketh me backwarde to meve, whan 110 my steppes by comune course even-forth pretende. These thinges also, on right syde and lift, have me so envolved with care, that wanhope of helpe is throughout me ronne ; trewly,

CHAPTER II.

REHERSINGE these thinges and many other, without tyme or moment of rest, me semed, for anguisshe of disese, that al-togider I was ravissed, I can not telle how ; but hoolly all my passions and felinges weren lost, as it semed, for the tyme ; and sodainly a maner of drede lighte in me al at ones ; nought suche 5 fere as folk have of an enemy, that were mighty and wolde hem greve or don hem disese. For, I trowe, this is wel knowe to many persones, that otherwhyle, if a man be in his soveraignes presence, a maner of ferdnesse crepeth in his herte, not for harme, but of goodly subjeccion ; namely, as men reden that aungels ben aferde 10 of our saviour in heven. And pardè, there ne is, ne may no passion of disese be ; but it is to mene, that angels ben adradde, not by tferdnes of drede, sithen they ben perfitylly blissed, [but] as [by] affeccion of wonderfulnesse and by service of obedience.
 Suche ferde also han these lovers in presence of their loves, and 15 subjectes aforne their soveraynes. Right so with ferdnesse myn herte was caught. And I sodainly astonied, there entred in-to the place there I was logged a lady, the semeliest and most goodly to my sight that ever to-forn apered to any creature ; and trewly, in the blustringe of her looke, she yave gladnesse and 20 comfort sodaynly to al my wittes ; and right so she doth to every wight that cometh in her presence. And for she was so goodly, as me thought, myn herte began somdele to be enbolded, and wexte a litel hardy to speke ; but yet, with a quakinge voyce, as I durste, I salued her, and enquired what she was ; 25 and why she, so worthy to sight, dayned to entre in-to so foule a dongeon, and namely a prison, without leve of my kepers.
 For certes, al-though the vertue of dedes of mercy stretchen to visiten the poore prisoners, and hem, after that facultees ben had, to comforte, me semed that I was so fer fallen in-to miserye and 30
 wrecched hid caytifnesse, that me shulde no precious thing neighe ; and also, that for my sorowe every wight shulde ben hevy, and wisshe my recovery. But whan this lady had somdele

 I ne wot whether I shal say welcome or non, sithen thy coming wol as moche do me tene and sorowe, as gladnesse and mirthe.
 See why: for that me comforteth to thinke on passed gladnesse, 65 that me anoyeth efte to be in doinge. Thus thy cominge bothe in that tyme of winter. By woodes that large stretes wern in, 40 by smale pathes that swyn and hogges hadden made, as lanes with ladels their maste to seche, I walked thinkinge alone a wonder greet whyle; and the grete beestes that the woode haunten and adorneth al maner forestes, and heerdes gonne to to shippe, of whiche many I knew wel the names. Sight was the first, Lust was another, Thought was the thirde; and Wil eke was there a mayster; these broughten me within-borde of this 55 shippe of Traveyle. So whan the sayl was sprad, and this ship gan to move, the wind and water gan for to ryse, and overthwartly to turne the welken. The wawes semeden as they kiste togider; but often under colour of kysinge is mokel old hate prively closed and kept. The storm so straungely and in a devouring

 60 maner gan so faste us assayle, that I supposed the date of my deth shulde have mad there his ginning. Now up, now downe, now under the wawe and now aboven was my ship a greet whyle. And so by mokel duresse of †weders and of stormes, and with greet avowing [of] pilgrimages, I was driven to an yle,
 65 where utterly I wende first to have be rescowed; but trewly, †at the first ginning, it semed me so perillous the haven to cacche, that but thorow grace I had ben comforted, of lyfe I was ful dispayred. Trewly, lady, if ye remembre a-right of al maner thinges, your-selfe cam hastely to sene us see-driven, and to 70 weten what we weren. But first ye were deynous of chere, after whiche ye gonne better a-lighte; and ever, as me thought, ye lived in greet drede of disese; it semed so by your chere. And whan I was certifyed of your name, the lenger I loked in you, the more I you goodly dradde; and ever myn herte on you
 75 opened the more; and so in a litel tyme my ship was out of mynde. But, lady, as ye me ladde, I was war bothe of beestes and of fisshes, a greet nombre thronging togider; among whiche a muskel, in a blewe shel, had enclosed a Margaryte-perle, the moste precious and best that ever to-forn cam in my sight.
 80 And ye tolden your-selfe, that ilke jewel in his kinde was so good and so vertuous, that her better shulde I never finde, al sought I ther-after to the worldes ende. And with that I held my pees a greet whyle; and ever sithen I have me bethought on the man that sought the precious Margarytes; and whan he had 85 founden oon to his lyking, he solde al his good to bye that jewel. Y-wis, thought I, (and yet so I thinke), now have I founden the jewel that myn herte desyreth; wherto shulde I seche further?

Trewly, now wol I stinte, and on this Margaryte I sette me for ever: now than also, sithen I wiste wel it was your wil that I shulde so suche a service me take; and so to desyre that thing, 90 of whiche I never have blisse. There liveth non but he hath disese; your might than that brought me to suche service, that to me is cause of sorowe and of joye. I wonder of your worde that ye sayn, "to bringen men in-to joye"; and, pardè, ye wetè wel that default ne trespase may not resonably ben put to me-wardes, 95 as fer as my conscience knoweth.

But of my disese me list now a whyle to speke, and to enforme you in what maner of blisse ye have me thronge. For truly I wene, that al gladnesse, al joye, and al mirthe is beshet under locke, and the keye throwe in suche place that it may not be 100 founde. My brenning wo hath altred al my hewe. Whan I shulde slepe, I walowe and I thinke, and me disporte. Thus combred, I seme that al folk had me mased. Also, lady myne, desyre hath longe dured, some speking to have; or els at the lest have ben enmoysed with sight; and for wantinge of these thinges 105 my mouth wolde, and he durst, pleyne right sore, sithen yvels for my goodnesse arn manyfolde to me yolden. I wonder, lady, trewly, save evermore your reverence, how ye mowe, for shame, suche thinges suffre on your servaunt to be so multiplied. Wherefore, kneeling with a lowe herte, I pray you to rue on this 110 caytif, that of nothing now may serve. Good lady, if ye liste, now your help to me shewe, that am of your privyest servantes at al assayes in this tyme, and under your winges of proteccion. No help to me-wardes is shapen; how shal than straungers in any wyse after socour loke, whan I, that am so privy, yet of helpe 115 I do fayle? Further may I not, but thus in this prison abyde; what bondes and chaynes me holden, lady, ye see wel your-selfe. A renyant forjuged hath not halfe the care. But thus, syghing and sobbing, I wayle here alone; and nere it for comfort of your presence, right here wolde I sterve. And yet a litel am I gladdened, 120 that so goodly suche grace and non hap have I hent, graciously to fynde the precious Margarite, that (al other left) men shulde bye, if they shulde therfore selle al her substaunce. that so many let-games and purpose-brekers ben maked wayters, 125 suche prisoners as I am to overloke and to hinder; and, for

AND with these wordes I brast out to wepe, that every teere of myne eyen, for greetnesse semed they boren out the bal of my sight, and that al the water had ben out-ronne. Than thought me that Love gan a litel to hevye for miscomfort of my chere; and gan soberly and in esy maner speke, wel avysinge what she sayd. Comenly the wyse spoken esily and softe for many skilles. Oon is, their wordes are the better bileved; and also, in esy spekinge, avysement men may cacche, what to putte forth and what to holden in. And also, the auctoritè of esy wordes is the more; and eke, they yeven the more understandinge to other intencion of the mater. Right so this lady esely and in a softe maner gan say these wordes.

25 'O,' quod she, 'hold now thy pees. I have founden to many that han ben to me unkynde, that trewly I wol suffre every wight in that wyse to have disese; and who that continueth to the ende wel and trewly, hem wol I helpen, and as for oon of myne in-to therof, or els the impossibilitè : right so the lawe of my servauntes 55 so wel hath ben proved in general, that hitherto hath it not fayled.

Wiste thou not wel that al the lawe of kynde is my lawe, and by god ordayned and stablissed to dure by kynde resoun? 60
Wherfore al lawe by mannes witte purveyed ought to be underput to lawe of kynde, whiche yet hath be commune to every kyndely creature; that my statutes and my lawe that ben kyndely arn general to al peoples. Olde doinges and by many turninges of yeres used, and with the peoples maner proved, mowen nat so lightly ben defased; but newe doinges, contrariauntes suche olde, ofte causen diseses and breken many purposes. Yet saye I nat 65 therfore that ayen newe mischeef men shulde nat ordaynen doinges in love han ben universal, as for most exployte[s] forth used; wherfore I wol not yet that of my lawes nothing be adnulled. 70

But thanne to thy purpos: suche jangelers and lokers, and wayters of games, if thee thinke in aught they mowe dere, yet love wel alwaye, and sette hem at naught; and let thy port ben lowe in every wightes presence, and redy in thyne herte to maynteyne that thou hast begonne; and a litel thee fayne with 75 mekenesse in wordes; and thus with sleyght shalt thou surmount and dequace the yvel in their hertes. And wysdom yet is to seme flye otherwhyle, there a man wol fighte. Thus with suche thinges the tonges of yvel shal ben stilled; els fully to graunte thy ful meninge, for-sothe ever was and ever it shal be, that myn enemyes 80 ben aferde to truste to any fightinge. And therfore have thou no cowardes herte in my service, no more than somtyme thou haddest in the contrarye. For if thou drede suche jangleres, thy viage to make, understand wel, that he that dredeth any rayn, to sowe his cornes, he shal have than [bare] bernes. Also he that 85 is aferd of his clothes, let him daunce naked! Who nothing undertaketh, and namely in my service, nothing acheveth. After grete stormes the †weder is often mery and smothe. After moche clatering, there is mokil rowning. Thus, after jangling

And although the clippinges and kissinges of Rachel shulde seme to me swete, yet is she so barayne that gladnesse ne joye by no way wol springe; so that

'Now,' quod she, 'if men with lesinges putte on thee enfame, wenest thy-selfe therby ben enpeyred? That wening is wrong ;
see why ; for as moche as they lyen, thy meryte encreseth, and make[th] thee ben more worthy, to hem that knowen of the soth ; 10

 yet is it meryte and encrees of his blisse; so that these purposes
 arn so wonderful in understanding, that trewly, for myn adversitè

35 'Therefore,' quod she, 'if any wight shulde yeve a trewe sentence on suche maters, the cause of the disease maist thou see wel. Understand ther-upon after what ende it draweth, that is to sayne, good or badde; so ought it to have his fame †by goodnesse

 40 namely of a wyse man, his wit ought not, without reson to-forn herd, sodainly in a mater to juge. After the sawes of the wyse,
 "thou shalt not juge ne deme toforn thou knowe."

'Lady,' quod I, 'ye remembre wel, that in moste laude and praying of certayne seyntes in holy church, is to rehersen their 45 conuersion from badde in-to good; and that is so rehersed, as by a perpetual mirrour of remembraunce, in worshippinge of comunes malice ; for two skilles. Oon was, I had comfort to ben in suche plyte, that bothe profit were to me and to my frendes.

 Another was, for commen profit in cominaltee is not but pees and 65 tranquillè, with just governaunce, proceden from thilke profit ; sithen, by counsaile of myne inwitte, me thought the firste painted thinges malice and yvel meninge, withouten any good avayling to any people, and of tyrannye purposed. And so, for pure sorowe, and of my medlinge and badde infame that I was in ronne, tho 70
 [the] teres [that] lashed out of myne eyen were thus awaye wasshe, than the under-hidde malice and the rancour of purposing envye, forncast and imagined in distruccion of mokil people, shewed so openly, that, had I ben blind, with myne hondes al the circumstaunce I might wel have feled.

Now than tho persones that suche thinges have cast to redresse, for wrathe of my first medlinge, shopen me to dwelle in this pynande prison, til Lachases my threed no lenger wolde twyne. And ever I was sought, if me liste to have grace of my lyfe and frenesse of that prison, I shulde openly confesse how pees might 80 ben enduced to enden al the firste rancours. It was fully supposed my knowing to be ful in tho maters. Than, lady,
 I thought that every man that, by any waye of right, rightfully don, may helpe any comune †wele to ben saved ; whiche thing to kepe above al thinges I am holde to mayntayne, and namely in 85 distroying of a wrong ; al shulde I therthrough enpeche myn mayster ne frend may nought avayle to the soule of him that in falsnesse deyeth ; and also that I nere desyred wrathe of the people ne indignacion of the worthy, for nothinge that ever I 90 wrought or did, in any doing my-selfe els, but in the mayntenaunce of these foresayd errours and in hydinge of the privitees therof.

 And that al the peoples hertes, holdinge on the errours syde, weren blinde and of elde so ferforth begyled, that debat and broken, and of al wyse it is commended and desyred. For knowe thing it is, al men that desyren to comen to the perfit pees ever-105 lasting must the pees by god commended bothe mayntayne and kepe. This pees by angels voyce was confirmed, our god entringe in this worlde. This, as for his Testament, he lefte to al his frendes, whanne he retourned to the place from whence he cam;

 this his apostel amonesteth to holden, without whiche man perfity 110 may have non insight. Also this god, by his coming, made not pees alone betwene hevenly and erthly bodyes, but also amonge us on erthe so he pees confirmed, that in one heed of love oon body we shulde perfourme. Also I remembre me wel how the name of Athenes was rather after the god of pees than of batayle, 115 shewing that pees moste is necessarie to comunaltees and citees.
 I than, so styred by al these wayes tofor nempned, declared certayne poyntes in this wyse. Firste, that thilke persones that hadden me drawen to their purposes, and me not weting the privy entent of their meninge, drawen also the feeble-witted

 the good to commende, and the giltly desertes to chastice. There they knowing me saying but sothe, arn now tempted to reply her olde praysinges; and knowen me wel in al doinges to ben trewe, and sayn openly that I false have sayd many things! And they aleged nothing me to ben false or untrewe, save thilke mater 185 knowleged by the parties hem-selfe; and god wot, other mater is non. Ye also, lady, knowe these things for trewe; I avaunte not in praysing of my-selfe; therby shulde I lese the precious secrè of my conscience. But ye see wel that false opinion of the people for my trouthe, in telling out of false conspyred maters; 190 and after the jugement of these clerkes, I shulde not hyde the sothe of no maner person, mayster ne other. Wherfore I wolde not drede, were it put in the consideracion of trewe and of wyse.

 And for comers hereafter shullen fully, out of denwere, al the sothe knowe of these things in acte, but as they wern, I have 195 put it in scripture, in perpetuel remembraunce of true meninge.
 For trewly, lady, me semeth that I ought to bere the name of trouthe, that for the love of rightwysnesse have thus me †sub-

CHAPTER VII.

THAN gan Love sadly me beholde, and sayd in a changed voyce, lower than she had spoken in any tyme: 'Fayn wolde I,' quod she, 'that thou were holpen; but hast thou sayd any-thing whiche thou might not proven?'

'Pardè,' quod I, 'the persones, every thing as I have sayd, han knowleged hem-selfe.'

'Ye,' quod she, 'but what if they hadden nayed? How woldest thou have maynteyned it?'

'Sothely,' quod I, 'it is wel wist, bothe amonges the greetest and other of the realme, that I profered my body so largely in-to provinge of tho thinges, that Mars shulde have juged the ende; but, for sothnesse of my wordes, they durste not to thilke juge truste.'

'Now, certes,' quod she, 'above al fames in this worlde, the name of marcial doinges most plesen to ladyes of my lore; but sithen thou were redy, and thyne adversaryes in thy presence refused thilke doing; thy fame ought to be so born as if in dede it had take to the ende. And therfore every wight that any droppe of reson hath, and hereth of thee infame for these thinges, hath this answeare to saye: "trewly thou saydest; for thyne adversaryes thy wordes affirmed." And if thou haddest lyed, yet are they discomfited, the prise leved on thy syde; so that fame shal holde down infame; he shal bringe [it in] upon none halfe. What greveth thee thyne enemye[s] to sayn their owne shame, as thus: "we arn discomfited, and yet our quarel is trewe?" Shal not the loos of thy frendes ayenward dequace thilke enfame, and saye they graunted a sothe without a stroke or fighting? Many men in batayle ben discomfited and overcome in a rightful quarel, that is goddes privy jugement in heven; but yet, although the party be yolden, he may with wordes saye his quarel is trewe, and to yelde him, in the contrarye, for drede of dethe he is compelled; and he that graunteth and no stroke hath feled, he may not crepe away in this wyse by none excusacion.

Neverthe-later (quod she) I saye nat these thinges for no wantrust that I have in supposinge of thee otherwyse than I shulde. For ²⁰ trewly, I wot wel that now thou art set in suche a purpose, out of whiche thee liste nat to parte. But I saye it for many men there been, that to knowinge of other mennes doinges setten al their cure, and lightly desyren the badde to clatter rather than the good, and have no wil their owne maner to amende. They also ²⁵ hate of olde rancours lightly haven; and there that suche thing abyde, sodaynly in their mouthes procedeth the habundaunce of the herte, and wordes as stones out-throwe. Wherefore my counsayl is ever-more openly and apertly, in what place thou sitte, counterplete th'errours and meninges in as fer as thou hem ³⁰ wistest false, and leve for no wight to make hem be knowe in every bodyes ere; and be alway pacient and use Jacobes wordes, what-so-ever men of thee clappen: "I shal sustayne my ladyes wrathe which I have deserved, so longe as my Margarite hath rightwysed my cause."  ilke jewel duringe thy lyfe, yet is that no servage of under-puttinge, but a maner of travayling plesaunce, to conquere and gette that thou hast not. I sette now the hardest: in my service 65 now thou deydest, for sorowe of wantinge in thy desyres; trewly, al heavenly bodyes with one voyce shul come and make melody in thy cominge, and saye—"Welcome, our fere, and worthy to entre into Jupiters joye! For thou with might hast overcome deth; thou woldest never flitte out of thy service; and we al shul 70 now praye to the goddes, rowe by rowe, to make thilk Margarite, that no routh had in this persone, but unkyndely without comfort let thee deye, shal besette her-selfe in suche wyse, that in erthe, for parte of vengeaunce, shal she no joye have in loves service;
 and whan she is deed, than shal her soule ben brought up in-to 75 thy presence; and whider thou wilt chese, thilke soule shal ben committed." Or els, after thy deth, anon al the foresayd heavenly bodyes, by one accorde, shal †benimen from thilke perle al the vertues that firste her were taken; for she hath hem forfeited by that on thee, my servaunt, in thy lyve, she wolde not suffre 80 to worche al vertues, withdrawn by might of the hygh bodyes.
 Why than shuldest thou wene so any more? And if thee liste to loke upon the lawe of kynde, and with order whiche to me was ordayned, sothely, non age, non overturninge tyme but †hiderto had no tyme ne power to chaunge the wedding, ne 85 the knotte to unbynde of two hertes [that] thorow oon assent, in my presence, †togider accorden to enduren til deth hem departe.
 What? trowest thou, every ideot wot the meninge and the privy entent of these thinges? They wene, forsothe, that suche accord may not be, but the rose of maydenhede be plucked. Do way, 90 do way; they knowe nothing of this. For consent of two hertes yet suche mater enseled is kept in remembrance for ever. And see now that spouses have the name anon after accord, though that ye ben liche to goddes, these clerkes sayn, and in determinacion shewen, that "three thinges haven [by] the names of goddes ben cleped ; that is to sayn : man, divel, and images" ; 110 but yet is there but oon god, of whom al goodnesse, al grace, and al vertue cometh ; and he †is loving and trewe, and everlasting, and pryme cause of al being thinges. But men ben goddes lovinge and trewe, but not everlasting ; and that is by adopcioun of the everlastinge god. Divels ben goddes, stirringe by 115 a maner of lyving ; but neither ben they trewe ne everlastinge ; and their name of godliheed th[e]y han by usurpacion, as the prophete sayth : "Al goddes of gentyles (that is to say, paynims) are divels." But images ben goddes by nuncupacion ; and they ben neither livinge ne trewe, ne everlastinge. After these wordes 120 they clepen "goddes" images wrought with mennes handes.

 But now [art thou a] resonable creature, that by adopcion alone art to the grete god everlastinge, and therby thou art "god" cleped : let thy †faders maners so entre thy wittes that thou might

CHAPTER X.

FULLY have I now declared thyn estate to be good, so thou folow therafter, and that the †objeccion first †by thee aledged, in worthinesse of thy Margaryte, shal not thee lette, as it shal forther thee, and encrease thee. It is now to declare, the Alas! thou that knittest 35 the purveyaunce of al thinges, why lokest thou not to amenden these defautes? I see shrewes that han wicked maners sitten in chayres of domes, lambes to punisshen, there wolves shulden ben punisshed. Lo! vertue, shynende naturelly, for povertie lurketh, and is hid under cloude; but the moone false, forsworn (as 40 I knowe my-selfe) for aver and yestes, hath usurped to shyne by day-light, with peynture of other mens prayssinges; and trewly, thilke forged light foully shulde fade, were the trouthe away of colours feyned. BOOK II.

CHAPTER I.

VERY welth may not be founden in al this worlde ; and that is wel sene. Lo ! how in my mooste comfort, as I wende and moost supposed to have had ful answeere of my contrary thoughtes, sodaynly it was vanissed. And al the workes of man
 5 faren in the same wyse ; whan folk wenen best her entent for to have and willes to perfourme, anon chaunging of the lift syde to the right halve tourneth it so clene in-to another kynde, that never shal it come to the first plyte in doinge.

O this wonderful steering so soone otherwysed out of knowinge !
 10 But for my purpos was at the beginnunge, and so dureth yet, if god of his grace tyme wol me graunt, I thinke to perfourme this worke, as I have begonne, in love ; after as my thinne wit, with inspiracion of him that hildeth al grace, wol suffre. Grevously, god wot, have I suffred a greet throwe that the Romaine
 15 emperour, which in unitè of love shulde acorde, and every with other * * * * in cause of other to avaunce ; and namely, sithe this empyre [nedeth] to be corrected of so many sectes in heresie of faith, of service, o[f] rule in loves religion. Trewly, al were it but to shende erroneous opinions, I may it no lenger suffre.
 20 For many men there ben that sayn love to be in gravel and sande, that with see cbbinge and flowinge woweth, as riches that sodaynly vanisseth. And some sayn that love shulde be in windy blastes, that stoundmele turneth as a phane, and glorie of renomè, which after lustes of the varyaunt people is areysed or stilled.
 25 Many also wenen that in the sonne and the moone and other sterres love shulde ben founden ; for among al other planettes moste soveraynly they shynen, as dignitees in reverence of estates rather than good han and occupyen. Ful many also there ben that in okes and in huge postes supposen love to ben grounded,
 30 as in strength and in might, whiche mowen not helpen their owne wrecchidnesse, whan they ginne to falle. But [of] suche diversitè of sectes, ayenst the rightful beleve of love, these errours ben forth spredde, that loves servantes in trewe rule and stedfast fayth in no place daren apere. Thus irrecoverable joy is went, and anoy endless is entred. For no man aright reproveth suche errours, 35 but [men] confirmen their wordes, and sayn, that badde is noble good, and goodnesse is badde ; to which folk the prophete biddeth wo without ende.

Also manye tonges of greet false techinges in gylinge maner, principally in my tymes, not only with wordes but also with armes, 40 loves servauntes and professe in his religion of trewe rule pursewen, to confounden and to destroyen. And for as moche as holy †faders, that of our Christen fayth aproved and strenghted to the Jewes, as to men resonable and of divinitè lerned, proved thilke fayth with resones, and with auctoritès of the olde testament and of the newe, 45 her pertinacie to destroy : but to paynims, that for beestes and houndes were holde, to putte hem out of their errour, was †miracle of god shewed. These thinges were figured by cominge of th'angel to the shepherdes, and by the sterre to paynims kinges ; as who sayth : angel resonable to resonable creature, and sterre of miracle 50 to people bestial not lerned, wern sent to enforme. But I, lovers clerk, in al my conning and with al my mightes, trewly I have no suche grace in vertue of miracles, ne for no discomfit falsheedes suffyseth not auctoritès alone ; sithen that suche [arn] heretikes and maintaynours of falsitès. Wherefore I wot wel, sithen that 55 they ben men, and reson is approved in hem, the clowde of errour hath her reson beyond probable resons, whiche that cacchende wit rightfully may not with-sitte. By my travaylinge studie I have ordeyned hem, †whiche that auctoritè, misglosed by mannes reson, to graunt shal ben enduced. 60

Now ginneth my penne to quake, to thinken on the sentences of the envyous people, whiche alway ben redy, both ryder and goer, to scorne and to jape this leude book ; and me, for rancour and hate in their hertes, they shullen so dispyse, that although my book be leude, yet shal it ben more leude holden, and by 65 wicked wordes in many maner apayred. [of] the sowne of their hadde speche right now is ful bothe myne eeres. O good precious Margaryte, myne herte shulde wepe if I wiste ye token hede of suche maner speche; but trewly, I wot
 70 wel, in that your wysdom shal not asterte. For of god, maker of kynde, wisse I took, that for none envy ne yvel have I drawe this mater togider; but only for goodnesse to maintayn, and errours in falsetees to distroy. Wherefore (as I sayd) with reson I thinke, thilke forsayd errours to distroye and dequace.

75 These resons and suche other, if they enduce men, in loves service, trewe to beleve of parfit blisse, yet to ful faithe in credence of deserte fully mowe they nat suffyse; sithen 'faith hath no merite of mede, whan mannes reson sheweth experience in doing.' For utterly no reson the parfit blisse of love by no waye
 80 may make to be comprehended. Lo! what is a parcel of lovers joye? Parfit science, in good service, of their desyre to comprehende in bodily doinge the lykinge of the soule; not as by a glasse to have contemplacion of tyme cominge, but thilke first imagined and thought after face to face in beholding. What 85 herte, what reson, what understandinge can make his heven to be feled and knowe, without assaye in doinge? Certes, noon. Sithen thanne of love cometh suche fruite in blisse, and love in him-selfe is the most among other vertues, as clerkes sayn; the seed of suche springinge in al places, in al countreys, in al worldes shulde 90 ben sowe.

But o! welawaye! thilke seed is forsake, and †mowe not ben suffred, the lond-tillers to sette a-werke, without medlinge of cockle; hadde wedes whiche somtyme stonken †han caught the name of love among idioles and hadde-meninge people. Never-
 95 the-later, yet how-so-it-be that men clepe thilke †thing precioussest in kynde, with many eke-names, that other things that the soule yeven the ilke noble name, it sheweth wel that in a maner men have a greet lykinge in worshippinge of thilke name. Wherefore this worke have I writte; and to thee, tytled of Loves name, 100 I have it avowed in a maner of sacrifyse; that, where-ever it be rad, it mowe in merite, by the excellence of thilke name, the more wexe in autoritè and worshippe of takinge in hede; and to what entent it was ordayned, the inseëres mowen ben moved. Every thing to whom is owande occasion don as for his ende, Aristotle supposeth that the actes of every thinge ben in a maner 105 his final cause. A final cause is noblerer, or els even as noble, as thilke thing that is finally to thilke ende; wherfore accion of thinge everlasting is demed to be eternal, and not temporal; sithen it is his final cause. Right so the actes of my boke 'Love,' and love is noble; wherfore, though my book be leude, the cause 110 with which I am stered, and for whom I ought it doon, noble forsothe ben bothe. But bycause that in conninge I am yong, and can yet but crepe, this leude A. b. c. have I set in-to lerning; for I can not passen the telling of three as yet. And if god wil, in shorte tyme, I shal amende this leudnesse in joininge 115 syllables; whiche thing, for dulnesse of witte, I may not in three letters declare. For trewly I saye, the goodnesse of my Margaryte-perle wolde yeve mater in endyting to many clerkes; certes, her mercy is more to me swetter than any livinges; wherfore my lippes mowen not suffyse, in speking of her ful laude and wor- 120 shippe as they shulde. But who is that [wolde be wyse] in knowing of the orders of heven, and putteth his resones in the erthe? I forsothe may not, with blere eyen, the shyning sonne of vertue in bright whele of this Margaryte beholde; therfore as yet I may her not discryve in vertue as I wolde. In tyme cominge, 125 in another tretyse, thorow goddes grace, this sonne in clerenesse of vertue to be-knowe, and how she enlumineth al this day, I thinke to declare.

CHAPTER II.

IN this mene whyle this comfortable lady gan singe a wonder mater of endytinge in Latin; but trewly, the noble colours in rethorik wyse knitte were so craftely, that my conning wol not strecche to remembre; but the sentence, I trowe, somdel have I in mynde. Certes, they were wonder swete of sowne, and they 5 were touched al in lamentacion wyse, and by no werbles of myrthe. Lo! thus gan she singe in Latin, as I may constrewe it in our Englysshe tonge.

'Alas ! that these heavenly bodyes their light and course shewen, 10 as nature yave hem in commaundement at the ginning of the first age ; but these thinges in free choice of reson han non under-stondinge. But man that ought to passe al thing of doinge, of right course in kynde, over-whelmed sothnesse by wrongful tytle, and hath drawn the sterre of envye to gon by his syde, that the 15 clips of me, that shulde be his shynande sonne, so ofte is seye, that it wened thilke errour, thorow hem come in, shulde ben myn owne defaute. Trewly, therfore, I have me withdrawe, and mad my dwellinge out of lande in an yle by my-selfe, in the occian closed ; and yet sayn there many, they have me harberowed ; but, 20 god wot, they faylen. These thinges me greven to thinke, and namely on passed gladnesse, that in this worlde was wont me disporte of highe and lowe ; and now it is fayled ; they that wolden maystries me have in thilke stoundes. In heven on highe, above Saturnes sphere, in sesonable tyme were they 25 lodged ; but now come queynte counsailours that in no house wol suffre me sojourne, wherof is pitè ; and yet sayn some that they me have in celler with wyne shed ; in gernere, there corn is layd covered with whete ; in sacke, sowed with wolle ; in purse, with money faste knit ; among pannes mouled in a †whicche ;
 30 in presse, among clothes layd, with riche pelure arayed ; in stable, among hors and other beestes, as hogges, sheep, and neet ; and in many other wyse. But thou, maker of light (in winking of thyn eye the sonne is queynt), wost right wel that I in trewe name was never thus herberowed.
 35 Somtyme, toforn the sonne in the seventh partie was smiten,
 I bar both crosse and mytre, to yeve it where I wolde. With me the pope wente a-fote ; and I tho was worshipped of al holy church. Kinges baden me their crownes holden. The law was set as it shuld ; tofore the juge, as wel the poore durste shewe 40 his greef as the riche, for al his money. I defended tho taylages, and was redy for the poore to paye. I made grete feestes in my tyme, and noble songes, and maryed damoselles of gentil feture, withouten golde or other richesse. Poore clerkes, for witte of schole, I sette in churches, and made suche persones to preche ;

 subject to the hygher. What is worth thy body, but it be governed with thy soule? Right so litel or naught is worth erthely power, but if reignatif prudence in heedes governe the smale; to whiche heedes the smale owen to obey and suffre in Japhetes children, for povert, in no linage ben rekened, and Caynes children, for riches, be maked Japhetes heires. Alas! this is a wonder chaunge bitwene tho two Noës children, sithen that of Japhetes ofspring comeden knightes, and of Cayn discended 110 the lyne of servage to his brothers childre. Lo! how gentillesse and servage, as cosins, bothe discended out of two brethern of one body! Wherfore I saye in sothnesse, that gentillesse in kinrede maketh not gentil linage in succession, without desert of a mans own selfe. Where is now the lyne of Alisaundre the Alisandre made to ben his heire in Grece, was of no kinges bloode; his dame was a tombestere. Of what kinred ben the gentiles in our dayes? I trow therfore, if any good be in gentillesse, it is only that it semeth a maner of necessitè be input to gentilmen, that they shulden not varyen fro the vertues of their auncestres. Certes, al maner linage of men ben evenliche in birth; for oon †fader, maker of al goodnes, enformed hem al, and al mortal folk of one sede arn greyned. Wherto avaunt men of her linage, in cosinage or in †elde-faders? Loke now the ginning, and to god, maker of mans person; there is no clerk ne no worthy in gentillesse; and he that norissheth his †corage with vyces and unresonable lustes, and leveth the kynde course, to whiche ende him brought forth his birthe, trewly, he is ungentil, and among †cherles may ben nempned. And therfore, he that wol ben gentil, he mot daunten his flesshe fro vyces that causen ungentilnesse, and leve also reignes of wicked lustes, and drawe to him vertue, that in al places gentilnesse gentilmen maketh. And so speke I, in feminine gendre in general, of tho persones, at the reverence of one whom every wight honoureth; for her bountee and her noblesse y-made her to god so dere, that his moder she became; and she me hath had so greet in worship, that I nil for nothing in open declare, that in any thinge ayenst her secte may so wene. 10 al lignes: who is, that right as emperour hem commaundeth, whether thilke ben not women, in whos lyknesse to me ye aperen?

 For right as man halt the principaltè of al thing under his beinge, in the masculyne gender; and no mo genders ben there but masculyn and femenyne; al the remenaunt ben no gendres but 15 of grace, in facultee of grammer: right so, in the femenyne, the women holden the upperest degree of al thinges under thilke gendre conteyned. Who bringeth forth kinges, whiche that ben lordes of see and of erthe; and al peoples of women ben born.
 They norisshe hem that graffen vynes; they maken men comfort

 Without women, the being of men were impossible. They conne with their swetnesse the crewel herte ravisshe, and make it meke, buxom, and benigne, without violence mevinge. In beautee of their eyen, or els of other maner fetures, is al mens desyres;

 And in this degree, lady, your-selfe many hertes of men have

Alas! therfore, that ever any woman wolde take 70 any wight in her grace, til she knowe, at the ful, on whom she might at al assayes truste! Women con no more craft in queynt knowinge, to understande the false disceyvable coniectementes of mannes begylinges. Lo! how it fareth; though ye men gronen and cryen, certes, it is but disceyt; and that preveth wel 75 by th'endes in your werkinge. How many women have ben lorn, and with shame foule shent by long-lastinge tyme, whiche thorow mennes gyle have ben disceyved? Ever their fame shal dure, and their dedes [ben] rad and songe in many londes; that they han don, recoveren shal they never; but alway ben demed 80 lightly, in suche plyte a-yen shulde they falle.  this wyse: "It is good to mankynde that we make to him an helper." Lo! in paradyse, for your helpe, was this tree graffed, out of whiche al linage of man descendeth. If a man be noble frute, of noble frute it is sprongen; the blisse of paradyse, to 95 mennes sory hertes, yet in this tree abydeth. O! noble helpes ben these trees, and gentil jewel to ben worshipped of every good creature! He that hem anoyeth doth his owne shame; it is a comfortable perle ayenst al tenes. Every company is mirthed by their present being. Trewly, I wiste never vertue, but a woman 100 were therof the rote. What is heven the worse though Sarazins on it lyen? Is your fayth untrewē, though t'renegates maken theron lesinges? If the fyr doth any wight brenne, blame his owne wit that put him-selfe so far in the hete. Is not fyr gen-tillest and most comfortable element amonges al other? Fyr 105 is cheef werker in fortheringe sustenaunce to mankynde. Shal fyr ben blamed for it brende a foole naturelly, by his own stulty and shreudnesse of your-selfe, ye blame and dispyse the precious-[es]t thing of your kynde, and whiche thinges among other and resonable, to declare the maters begonne. But to make thee fully have understanding in manlich livinges, whiche is holden worldlich in these thinges, so that ignorance be mad no letter, I wol (quod she) nempne these forsayd wayes †by names and 60 conclusions. First riches, dignitè, renomè, and power shul in this worke be cleped bodily goodes; for in hem hath ben, a gret throw, mannes trust of selinesse in love: as in riches, suffisance to have maintayned that was begonne by worldly catel; in dignitè, honour and reverence of hem that wern underput by maistry 65 therby to obeye. In renomè, glorie of peoples praising, after lustes in their hert, without hede-taking to qualità and maner of doing; and in power, by trowth of lordships mayntenaunce, thing to procede forth in doing. In al whiche thinges a longe tyme mannes coveytise in commune hath ben greetly grounded, to come 70 to the blisse of my service; but trewly, they were begyled, and for the principal muste nedes fayle, and in helping mowe nat availe. See why. For holdest him not poore that is nedy?’

‘Yes, pardè,’ quod I.

‘And him for dishonored, that moche folk deyne nat to 75 reverence?’

‘That is soth,’ quod I.

‘And what him, that his mightes faylen and mowe nat helpen?’

‘Certes,’ quod I, ‘me semeth, of al men he shulde be holden a wrecche.’ 80

‘And wenest nat,’ quod she, ‘that he that is litel in renomè, but rather is out of the praysinges of mo men than a fewe, be nat in shame?’

‘For soth,’ quod I, ‘it is shame and villany, to him that coveyteth renomè, that more folk nat prayse in name than preise.’ 85

‘Soth,’ quod she, ‘thou sayst soth; but al these thinges are folowed of suche maner doinge, and wenden in riches suffisaunce, in power might, in dignitè worship, and in renomè glorie; wherfore they discended in-to disceyvable wening, and in that service disceit is folowed. And thus, in general, thou and al suche other that so 90 worchen, faylen of my blisse that ye long han desyred. Wherfore truly, in lyfe of reson is the hye way to this blisse; as I thinke more openly to declare hereafter.  I wol enforme thee in this wyse. Thou hast fayled of thy first thing thee begyled; and lightly therfore, as a litel assay, thou 100 songedest; but whan I turned thy purpos, and shewed thee a part of the hye waye, tho thou abode therin, and no deth ne ferdnesse of non enemy might thee out of thilk way reve; but ever oon in thyn herte, to come to the ilke blisse, whan thou were arested and firste tyme enprisoned, thou were loth to 105 chaunge thy way, for in thy hert thou wendest to have ben there thou shuldest. And for I had routhe to sene thee miscaried, and wiste wel thyn ablenesse my service to forther and encrease,

 I com my-selfe, without other mene, to visit thy person in comfort of thy hert. And perdy, in my comming thou were greetly 110 glad[d]ed; after whiche tyme no disese, no care, no tene, might move me out of thy hert. And yet am I glad and greetly enpited, how continually thou haddest me in mynde, with good avysement of thy conscience, whan thy king and his princes by huge wordes and grete loked after variaunce in thy speche; and ever thou 115 were redy for my sake, in plesaunce of the Margarite-perle and many mo other, thy body to oblige in-to Marces doing, if any contraried thy sawes. Stedfast way maketh stedfast hert, with good hope in the ende. Trewly, I wol that thou it wel knowe; for I see thee so set, and not chaunginge herte haddest in my wel truste to come to thy blisse, sithen thy ginninge hath ben hard,

CHAPTER V.

'WEL,' quod she, 'thou knowest that every thing is a cause, wherthrough any thing hath being that is cleped "caused." Than, if richesse †causeth knot in herte, thilke richesse †is cause of thilke precious thinge being. But after the sentence of Aristotle, every cause is more in dignitè than his thinge caused; 5 wherthrough it foloweth richesse to ben more in dignitè than thilke knot. But richesches arn kyndely naughty, badde, and nedy; and thilke knotte is thing kyndely good, most praysed and desyred. Ergo, thing naughty, badde, and nedy in kyndely

10 understandinge is more worthy than thing kyndely good, most desyred and prayسد! The consequence is fals; nedes, the antecedent mot ben of the same condicion. But that riches ben bad, naughty, and nedy, that wol I prove; wherfore they mowe cause no suche thing that is so glorious and good. The 15 more richesse thou hast, the more nede hast thou of helpe hem to kepe. Ergo, thou nedest in richesse, whiche nede thou shuldest not have, if thou hem wantest. Than muste richesse ben nedy, that in their having maken thee nedy to helpes, in suretee thy richesse to kepen; wherthrough foloweth, richesse to 20 ben nedy. Everything causinge yvels is badde and naughty; but richesse in one causen misese, in another they mowen not evenly stretchen al about. Wherof cometh plee, debat, thefte, begylinges, but richesse to winne; whiche thinges ben badde, and by richesse
 arn caused. Ergo, thilke riches[s] ben badde; whiche badnesse 25 and nede ben knit in-to richesse by a maner of kyndely propertee; and every cause and caused accorden; so that it foloweth, thilke riches[s] to have the same accordaunce with badnesse and nede, that their cause asketh. Also, every thing hath his being by his cause; than, if the cause be destroyed, the being of caused is 30 vanissed. And, so, if riches[s] causen love, and riches[s] weren destroyed, the love shulde vanisshe; but thilke knotte, and it be trewe, may not vanisshe, for no going of richesse. Ergo, richesse is no cause of the knot. And many men, as I sayd, setten the cause of the knotte in richesse; thilke knitten the 35 richesse, and nothing the yvel; thilke persons, what-ever they ben, wenen that riches is most worthy to be had; and that make they the cause; and so wene they thilke riches be better than the person. Commenly, suche asken rather after the quantitè than after the qualitè; and suche wenen, as wel by hem-selfe as by 40 other, that conjunccion of his lyfe and of his soule is no more precious, but in as mikel as he hath of richesse. Alas! how may he holden suche thinges precious or noble, that neither han lyf ne soule, ne ordinaunce of werching limmes! Suche riches[s] ben more worthy whan they ben in †gadering; in departing, 45 ginneth his love of other mennes praysing. And avarice †gadering maketh be hated, and nedy to many out-helpes; and whan leveth the possession of such goodes, and they ginne vaniss, than entreth sorowe and tene in their hertes. O! badde and straye ben thilke that at their departinge maketh men teneful and sory, and in the tgedering of hem make men nedy! Moche folk at so his hoste nedy and to be aferd of his gestes going.

'Certes,' quod I, 'me wondreth therfore that the comune opinion is thus: "He is worth no more than that he hath in 55 catel."'

'O!' quod she, 'loke thou be not of that opinion; for if gold or money, or other maner of riches shynen in thy sight, whos is that?
Nat thyn. And tho[ugh] they have a litel beautee, they be nothing in comparison of our kynde; and therfore, ye shulde nat sette 60 your worthinesse in thing lower than your-selfe. For the riches, the fairnesse, the worthinesse of thilke goodes, if ther be any suche preciousnesse in hem, are nat thyne; thou madest hem so never; from other they come to thee, and to other they shul

It is sothe, the goodes of the erth ben ordayned in your fode

And if thou wolt algates with superfluitè of riches be a-throted, thou shalt hastelich be anoyed, or els yvel at ese. And fairnesse of felde ne of habitacions, ne multitude of meynè, may nat be rekened as riches that are thyn owne. For if they be badde, it is greet schaulder and villany to the occupyer; and if they be good 75 or faire, the mater of the workman that hem made is to prayse.
How shulde other-wyse bountee be compted for thyne? Thilke goodnesse and fairnesse be proper to tho things hem-selfe: than, if they be nat thyne, sorow nat whan they wende, ne glad thee nat in pompe and in pride whan thou hem hast. For their 80 bountee and their beautees cometh out of their owne kynde, and nat of thyne owne person. As faire ben they in their not having as whan thou hast hem. They be nat faire for thou hast hem; but thou hast geten hem for the fairnesse of them-selfe. And me[n] to have no proper good in them-selfe, but seche it in straunge thinges. Trewly, the condicion of good wening is to thee mistourned, to wene, your noblesse be not in your-selfe, but in the goodes and beautee of other thinges. Pardy, the beestes 90 that han but feling soules, have suffisaunce in their owne selfe; and ye, that ben lyke to god, seken encrease of suffisaunce from so excellent a kynde of so lowe thinges; ye do greet wrong to him that you made lordes over al erthly thinges; and ye putte your worthinesse under the nombre of the fete of lower thinges and 95 foule. Whan ye juge thilke riches to be your worthinesse, than putte ye your-selfe, by estimacion, under thilke foule thinges; and than leve ye the knowing of your-selfe; so be ye viler than any dombe beest; that cometh of shrewde vice. Right so thilke persons that loven non yvel for dereworthinesse of the persone, 100 but for straunge goodes, and saith, the adornement in the knot lyth in such thing; his errour is perilous and shrewd, and he wryeth moche venim with moche welth; and that knot may nat be good whan he hath it gotten.

Certes, thus hath riches with flickering sight anoyed many;
 105 and often, whan there is a throw-out shrewe, he coyneth al the gold, al the precious stones that mowen be founden, to have in his bandon; he weneth no wight be worthy to have suche thinges but he alone. How many hast thou knowe, now in late tyme, that in their richesse supposed suffisance have folowed, and now 110 it is al fayled!

thou be ware, it [ne] wol ayen meve. In richesse many men have had tenes and diseses, whiche they shulde not have had, if therof they had fayled. Thorow whiche, now declared, partly it is shewed, that for richesse shulde the knotte in herte neither ben ¹²⁵ caused in one ne in other; trewly, knotte may ben knit, and I trowe more stedfast, in love, though richesse fayled; and els, in richesse is the knotte, and not in herte. And than suche a knotte is fals; whan the see ebbeth and withdraweth the gravel, that such richesse voydeth, thilke knotte wol unknitte. ¹³⁰ Wherefore no trust, no way, no cause, no parfit being is in richesse, of no suche knotte. Therefore another way muste we have.

'Now,' quod she, 'if dignitè, honour, and reverence causen thilke knotte in herte, this knot is good and profitable. For every cause of a cause is cause of thing caused. Than thus: good thinges and profitable ben by dignitè, honour, and reverence caused. Ergo, they accorden; and dignites ben good with ¹⁰ reverences and honour. But contraries mowen not accorden. Wherefore, by reson, there shulde no dignitee, no reverence, non honour acorde with shrewes. But that is fals; they have ben cause to shrewes in many shreudnes; for with hem they accorden. Ergo, from beginning to argue ayenward til it come to the laste ¹⁵ conclusion, they are not cause of the knot. Lo, al day at eye am shrewes not in reverence, in honour, and in dignitè? Yes, forsothe, rather than the good. Than foloweth it that shrewes rather than good shul ben cause of this knot.  25 (quod she) that dignites of office here in your citè is as the sonne; it shyneth bright withouten any cloude; [of] whiche thing, whan they comen in the handes of malicious tirauntes, there cometh moche harm, and more grevaunce therof than of the wilde fyre, though it brende al a strete. Certes, in dignitè of 30 office, the werkes of the occupyer shewen the malice and the badnesse in the person; with shrewes they maken manyfolde harmes, and moche people shamen. How often han rancours, for malice of the governour, shulde ben mainteyned? Hath not than suche dignitees caused debat, rumours, and yvels? Yes,

 45 and therefore cometh it that honour and reverence shulde ben don to dignitè bycause of encresinge vertue in the occupyer, and not to the ruler bycause of soverayntee in dignitè. Sithen dignitè may no vertue cause, who is worthy worship for suche goodnesse? Not dignitè, but person, that maketh goodnesse in mowen nat togider ben assembled; kynde wol nat suffre suche 60 contraries to joyne. And sithen at eye, by experience in doing, we seen that shrewes have hem more often than good men, siker mayst thou be, that kyndly good in suche thing is nat appropred.

 Pardy, were they kyndly good, as wel oon as other shulden evenlich in vertue of governaunce ben worthe; but oon fayleth in 65 goodnesse, another doth the contrary; and so it sheweth, kyndly goodnesse in dignitè nat be grounded. And this same reson (quod she) may be mad, in general, on al the bodily goodes; for they comen ofte to throw-out shrewes. After this, he is strong that hath might to have grete burthens, and he is light 70 and swifte, that hath soveraintè in ronning to passe other; right so he is a shrewe, on whom shreude thinges and badde han most werching. And right as philosophy maketh philosophers, and my service maketh lovers, right so, if dignites weren good or vertuous, they shulde maken shrewes good, and turne her malice, 75 and make hem be vertuous. But that they do nat, as it is proved, but causen rancour and debat. Ergo, they be nat good, but utterly badde. Had Nero never ben Emperour, shulde never his dame have be slayn, to maken open the privitè of his engendrure. Herodes, for his dignitè, slew many children. The 80 dignitè of king John wolde have destroyed al England. Therfore mokel wysdom and goodnesse both, nedeth in a person, the malice in dignitè slyly to brydel, and with a good bitte of arest to withdrawe, in case it wolde prauce otherwyse than it shulde.
 Trewly, ye yeve to dignites wrongful names in your cleping. 85

VERILY it is proved that riches, dignitè, and power ben not trewe way to the knotte, but as rathe by suche thinges the knotte to be unbounde; wherfore on these thinges I rede no wight truste to gette any good knotte. But what shul we saye of

'Ah,' quod I tho, 'have ye, lady, ben here abouten; yet wolde I see, by grace of our argumentes better declared, how good and bad do acorden by lacking and praysing; me thinketh it ayenst kynde.' 40

'Nay,' quod she, 'and that shalt thou see as yerne; these elementes han contrarious qualitees in kynde, by whiche they mowe not acorde no more than good and badde; and in [some] qualitees they acorde, so that contraries by qualité acorden by qualité. Is not erthe drye; and water, that is next and bitwene 45 th'erthe, is wete? Drye and wete ben contrarie, and mowen not acorde, and yet this discordaunce is bounde to acorde by cloudes; for bothe elementes ben colde. Right so the eyre, that is next the water, is wete; and eke it is hot. This eyre by his hete contrarieth water that is cold; but thilke contrarioustè is oned †by 50 moysture; for bothe be they moyst. Also the fyr, that is next the †eyre and it encloseth al about, is drye, wherthrough it contrarieth †eyre, that is wete; and in hete they acorde; for bothe they ben hote. Thus by these acordaunces discordantes ben joyned, and in a maner of acordaunce they acorden by 55 conneccion, that is, knitting together; of that accorde cometh a maner of melodye that is right noble. Right so good and bad arn contrarie in doinges, by lacking and praysing; good is bothe lacked and praysed of some; and badde is bothe lacked and praysed of some; wherfore their contrarioustee acorde bothe by 60 lacking and praysing. Than foloweth it, though good be never so mokel praysed, [it] oweth more to ben knit than the badde; or els bad, for the renomè that he hath, must be taken as wel as the good; and that oweth not.'

75 Good child (quod she) what echeth suche renomè to the conscience of a wyse man, that loketh and mesureth his goodnesse, not by slevelesse wordes of the people, but by sothfastnesse of conscience? By god, nothing. And if it be fayr, a mans name be eched by moche folkes praysing, and fouler thing that mo folk
 80 not praysen? I sayd to thee a litel here-beforn, that no folk in straunge countreyes nought praysen; suche renomè may not comen to their eeres, bycause of unknowing and other obstacles, as I sayde: wherfore more folk not praysen, and that is right foul to him that renomè desyareth, to wete, lesse folk praisen than 85 renomè enhaunce. I trowe, the thank of a people is naught worth in remembraunce to take; ne it procedeth of no wyse jugement; never is it stedfast pardurable. It is veyne and fleing; with winde wasteth and encreseth. Trewly, suche glorie ought to be hated. If gentillesse be a cleer thing, renomè and glorie to 90 enhaunce, as in reckening of thy linage, than is gentillesse of thy kinne; for-why it semeth that gentillesse of thy kinne is but praysing and renomè that come of thyne auncestres desertes: and if so be that praysing and renomè of their desertes make their clere gentillesse, than mote they nedes ben gentil for their

Than gentillesse of thyne auncesters, that forayne is to thee, maketh thee not gentil, but ungentil and reproved, and-if thou continuest not their gentillesse. And therefore a wyse man ones sayde: “Better is it

 But now, to conclusion of these maters, herkeneth these wordes.
 Very sommer is knowe from the winter: in shorter cours draweth the dayes of Decembre than in the moneth of June; the springes of Maye faden and †falowen in Octobre. These things ben not

 Thus by queynt things blisse is desyred; and the fruit that cometh of these springes nis but anguis and bitter; al-though it 120 be a while swete, it may not be with-holde; hastily they departe;
 thus al-day fayleth things that fooles wende. Right thus hast

CHAPTER X.

‘ME thinketh,’ quod I, ‘that ye have right wel declared, that way to the knot shuld not ben in none of these disprovinge thinges; and now, order of our purpos this asketh, that ye shulde me shewe if any way be †thider, and whiche thilke way shulde ben; so that openly may be seye the verry 5 hye way in ful confusioun of these other thinges.’

‘Thou shalt,’ quod she, ‘understande that [of] one of three lyves (as I first sayd) every creature of mankynde is sprongen, and so forth procedeth. These lyves ben thorow names departed in three maner of kyndes, as bestialliche, manliche, and resona- 10 bliche; of whiche two ben used by flesshely body, and the thirde by his soule. “Bestial” among resonables is forboden in every lawe and every secte, bothe in Cristen and other; for every wight dispyseth hem that liveth by lustes and delytes, as him that is thral and bounden servaunt to thinges right foule; suche 15 ben compted werse than men; he shal nat in their degree ben rekened, ne for suche one alowed. Heritykes, sayn they, chosen lyf bestial, that voluptuously liven; so that (as I first sayde to thee) in manly and resonable livinges our mater was to declare; but [by] “manly” lyfe, in living after flesshe, or els flesschly wayes 20 to chese, may nat blisse in this knotte be conquered, as by reson it is proved. Wherefore by “reasonable” lyfe he must nedes it have, sithe a way is to this knotte, but nat by the firste tway lyves; wherefore nedes mot it ben to the thirde; and for to live in flesshe, but nat after flessch, is more resonablich than manliche rekened 25 by clerkes. Therefore how this way cometh in, I wol it blythely declare.

EVERY soule of reson hath two thinges of stering lyf, oon in vertue, and another in the bodily workinge; and whan the soule is the maister over the body, than is a man maister of him-selfe. And a man, to be a maister over him-selfe, liveth in vertu and in goodnesse, and as reson of vertue techeth. So the soule and the ⁵ body, worching vertue togider, liven resonable lyf, whiche clerkes clepen "felicite in living"; and therein is the hye way to this knot. 'Now,' quod I, 'if a man be vertuous, and al in vertue liveth, how hath he al these thinges?'

'That shal I proven,' quod she. 'What power hath any man to lette another of living in vertue? For prisonment, or any other disese, [if] he take it paciently, discomfiteth he nat; the 55 tyrant over his soule no power may have. Ergo, through werching of her vertue thou shalt esely ben

25 'Lady,' quod I, 'this is a good lesson in ginning of my joye ;
 but wete ye wel forsothe, though I suppose she have moche

'Ye, forsothe,' quod I ; 'so I sayd ; and so it is.'

'Wel,' quod she, 'every-thing kyndly sheweth it-selfe ; this 35 jewel, closed in a blewe shel, [by] excellence of coloures sheweth vertue from within ; and so every wight shulde rather loke to the propre vertue of thinges than to his forayne goodes. If a thing be engendred of good mater, comenly and for the more part, it foloweth, after the congelement, vertue of the first mater (and 40 it be not corrupt with vyces) to procede with encrees of good vertues ; eke right so it fareth of badde. Trewly, greet excellence in vertue of linage, for the more part, descendeth by kynde to the succession in vertues to folowe. Wherefore I saye, the †colour of every Margarit sheweth from within the fynesse in vertue.
 45 Kyndely heven, whan mery †weder is a-lofte, apereth in mannes

So that thilke bodyes that han felinge soules, and move 60 not from places, holden the lowest degree of soulinge thinges in felinge ; and suche ben reduced in-to man by menes. So it foloweth, the muskle, as †moder of al vertues, halt the place of mekenesse, to his lowest degree descendeth downe of heven, and there, by a maner of virgine engendrure, arn these Margarytes 65 engendred, and afterward congeled. Made not mekenesse so lowe the hye heven, to enclose and cacche out therof so noble a dewe, that after congelement, a Margaryte, with endelesse vertue and everlasting joy, was with ful vessel of grace yeven to every creature, that goodly wolde it receyve ?' 70

'CERTES,' quod Love, 'thou hast wel begonne; and I aske thee this question: Is not, in general, every-thing good?'

'I not,' quod I.

'No?' quod she; '†saw not god everything that he made, and weren right good?' 5

'Than is wonder,' quod I, 'how yvel thinges comen a-place, sithen that al thinges weren right good.'

'Thus,' quod she, 'I wol declare. Everiche qualité and every accion, and every thing that hath any maner of beinge, it is of god; and god it made, of whom is al goodnesse and al being. 10 Of him is no badnesse. Badde to be, is naught; good to be, is somewhat; and therfore good and being is oon in understanding.'

'How may this be?' quod I. 'For often han shrewes me assailed, and mokel badnesse therin have I founden; and so me 15 semeth bad to be somewhat in kynde.'

'Thou shalt,' quod she, 'understande that suche maner badnesse, whiche is used to purifye wrong-doers, is somewhat; and god it made, and being [it] hath; and that is good. Other badnesse no being hath utterly; it is in the negative of somewhat, and that is 20 naught and nothing being. The parties essential of being arn sayd in double wyse, as that it is; and these parties ben founde in every creature. For al thing, a this halfe the first being, is being through participacion, taking partie of being; so that [in] every creature is difference bitwene being of him through whom 25 it is, and his own being. Right as every good is a maner of being, so is it good thorow being; for it is naught. other to be. And every thing, though it be good, is not of him-selfe good; but it is good by that it is ordinable to the greet goodnesse. This dualité, after clerkes †determinison, is founden in every 30 creature, bc it never so single of onhed.'

35 is y-sayd "good" through goodnesse unfourmed eyther els fourmed; and afterward, if it be accept utterly good?

'I shal say thee,' quod she. 'These grete passed clerkes han devyded good in-to good being alone, and that is nothing but †god, for nothing is good in that wyse but god: also, in good by 40 participacion, and that is y-cleped "good" for far fet and representative of †godly goodnesse. And after this maner manyfold good is sayd, that is to saye, good in kynde, and good in gendre, and good of grace, and good of joy. Of good in kynde Austen sayth, "al that ben, ben good." But peraunter thou woldest 45 wete, whether of hem-selfe it be good, or els of anothers goodnesse:
for naturel goodnesse of every substaunce is nothing els than his substancial being, which is y-cleped "goodnesse" after comparison that he hath to his first goodnesse, so as it is inductatife by menes in-to the first goodnesse. Boece sheweth this thing at the ful, that 50 this name "good" is, in general, name in kynde, as it is com-parisoned generally to his principal ende, which is god, knotte of al goodnesse. Every creature cryeth "god us made"; and so they han ful apeted to thilke god by affeccion such as to hem longeth; and in this wyse al thinges ben good of the gret god, 55 which is good alone.'

'This wonder thing,' quod I, 'how ye have by many resons proved my first way to be errour and misgoing, and cause[d] of badnesse and feble meninge in the grounde ye aleged to be roted.
Whence is it that suche badnesse hath springes, sithen al thinges 60 thus in general ben good, and badnesse hath no being, as ye have declared? I wene, if al things ben good, I might than with the first way in that good have ended, and so by goodnesse have comen to blisse in your service desyred.'

'Al thing,' quod she, 'is good by being in participacion out of 65 the firste goodnesse, whiche goodnesse is corrupt by badnesse and badde-mening maners. God hath [ordeyned] in good thinges, that they ben good by being, and not in yvel; for there is absence of rightful love. For badnesse is nothing but only yvel wil of the user, and through giltes of the doer; wherfore, at the ginninge of 70 the worlde, every thing by him-selfe was good; and in universal they weren right good. An eye or a hand is fayrer and betterer in a body set, in his kyndely place, than from the body dissevered. Every thing in his kyndly place, being kyndly, good doth werche; and, out of that place voyded, it dissolveth and is defouled himselfe. Our noble god, in gliterande wyse, by armony this world 75 ordeyned, as in purtreitures storied with colours medled, in whiche blacke and other derke colours commendyn the golden and the asured paynture; every put in kyndely place, oon, besyde another, more for other glitereth. Right so litel fayr maketh right fayr more glorious; and right so, of goodnesse, and of other 80 thinges in vertue. Wherefore other badde and not so good perles as this Margaryte that we han of this matier, yeven by the ayre litel goodnesse and litel vertue, [maken] right mokel goodnesse and vertue in thy Margaryte to ben proved, in shyning wyse to be founde and shewed. How shulde ever goodnesse of pees have 85 ben knowe, but-if unpees somtyme reigne, and mokel yvel t̃wrathe? How shulde mercy ben proved, and no trespas were, by due justificacion, to be punisshed? What? wenest thou I rejoyce or els accompte him among my servauntes that pleseth Pallas in undoinge of Mercurye, al-be-it that to Pallas he be knit by tyt̃le of lawe, not according to resonable conscience, and Mercurie in doinge have grace to ben suffered; or els him that t̃weyveth the moone for fayrenesse of 95 the eve-sterre? Lo! otherwhyle by nightes, light of the moone greetly comforteth in derke thoughtes and blynde. Understanding of love yeveth greet gladnesse. Margaryte is good ; for sithen other ben good, and she passeth manye other in goodnesse and vertue ; wherthrough, by maner 110 necessarie, she muste be good. And goodnesse of this Margaryte is nothing els but vertue ; wherfore she is vertuous ; and if there fayled any vertue in any syde, there were lacke of vertue. Badde nothing els is, ne may be, but lacke and want of good and goodnesse ; and so shulde she have that same lacke, that is to saye, 115 badde ; and that may not be. For she is good ; and that is good, me thinketh, al good ; and so, by consequence, me semeth, vertuous, and no lacke of vertue to have. But the sonne is not knowe but he shyne ; ne vertuous herbes, but they have her kynde werching ;

 ne vertue, but it strecche in goodnesse or profyt to another, is no 120 vertue. Than, by al wayes of reson, sithen mercy and pitee ben moste commended among other vertues, and they might never ben shewed, [unto] refresshement of helpe and of comfort, but now

And thus drawen was this innocent, as an oxe to the larder.'

'Lady,' quod I, 'to me this is a queynte thing to understande; I praye you, of this parable declare me the entent.'

'This innocent,' quod she, 'is a scoler lerninge of my lore, in seching of my blisse, in whiche thinge the day of his thought turninge enclyneth in-to eve; and the sonne, of very light faylinge, maketh derke night in his conninge. Thus in derknesse of many doutes he walketh, and for blyndenesse of understandinge, he ne wot in what waye he is in; forsothe, suche oon may lightly ben begyled. To whom cam love fayned, not clothed of my livery, but [of] unlefful lusty habit, with softe speche and mery; and with fayre honyed wordes heretykes and mis-meninge people skleren and wimplen their errours. Austen witnesseth of an heretyk, that in his first beginninge he was a man right expert in resons and swete in his wordes; and the werkes miscorden. Thus fareth fayned love in her firste werchinges. Thou knowest these thinges for trewe; thou hast hem proved by experience somtyme, in doing to thyne owne person; in whiche thing thou hast founde mater of mokel disease. Was not fayned love redily purveyed, thy wittes to cacche and tourne thy good thoughtes? Trewly, she hath wounded the conscience of many with florisschinge of mokel jangling wordes; and good worthe thanked I it for no glose. I am glad of my prudence thou hast so manly her twayved. To me art thou moche holden, that in thy kynde course of good mening I returne thy mynde. I trowe, ne had I shewed thee thy Margaryte, thou haddest never returned. Of first in good parfit joye was ever fayned love impacient, as the water of Siloë, whiche evermore floweth with stilnesse and privy noyse til it come nighe the brinke, and than ginneth it so out of mesure to bolne, with novelleries of chaunging stormes, that in course of every renning it is in pointe to spille al his circuit of +bankes. Thus fayned love prively, at the fullest of his flowinge,

 Mercurius [servants] often with hole understandinge knowen suche perillous maters, yet Veneriens so lusty ben and so leude in their wittes, that in suche thinges right litel or naught don they fele; and wryten and cryen to their felawes: "here is blisse, drawen. "Come," they sayen, "and be we dronken of our pappes"; that ben fallas and lying glose, of whiche mowe they not souke milke of helthe, but deedly venim and poyson, corrupcion of sorowe. Milke of fallas is venim of disceyt; milke of lying glose 55 is venim of corrupcion. Lo! what thing cometh out of these pappes! "Use we coveited collinges"; desyre we and meddle we false wordes with sote, and sote with false! Trewly, this is the sorinesse of fayned love; nedes, of these surfettes sicknesse muste folowe. Thus, as an oxe, to thy langoring deth were thou drawen; 60 the sote of the smoke hath thee al defased. Ever the deper thou somtyme wadest, the soner thou it founde; if it had thee killed, it had be litel wonder. But on that other syde, my trewe servaunt[s] not faynen ne disceyve conne; sothly, their doinge is open; my foundement endureth, be the burthen never so 65 greet; ever in one it lasteth. It yeveth lyf and blisful goodnesse in the laste endes, though the ginnings ben sharpe. Thus of two contraries, contrarye ben the effectes. And so thilke Margaryte thou servest shal seen thee, by her service out of perillous tribulacion delivered, bycause of her service in-to newe 70 disese fallen, by hope of amendement in the laste ende, with joye to be gladded. Wherefore, of kynde pure, her mercy with grace of good helpe shal she graunte; and els I shal her so strayne, that with pitè shal she ben amaystred. Remembre in thyne herte how horribly somtyme to thyne Margaryte thou trespassest, 75 and in a grete wyse ayenst her thou forfeyst! Clepe ayen thy mynde, and know thyne owne giltyes. What goodnesse, what bountee, with mokel folowing pitè founde thou in that tyme?

 Were thou not goodly accepted in-to grace? By my pluckinge was she to foryevenesse enclyned. And after, I her styred to Truste wel to me, and I wol thee not fayle. The tleving of the first way with good herte of continuance that I see in thee grounded, this purpose to parfourme, draweth me by maner of constrayning, that nedes muste I ben thyne helper. 90 Although mirthe a while be taried, it shal come at suche seson, that thy thought shal ben joyed. And wolde never god, sithen thyne herte to my resons arn assented, and openly hast confessed thyne amisse-going, and now cryest after mercy, but-if mercy folowed; thy blisse shal ben redy, y-wis; thou ne wost how sone. 95 Now be a good child, I rede. The kynde of vertues, in thy Margaryte rehersed, by strength of me in thy person shul werche. Comfort thee in this; for thou mayst not miscary.' And these wordes sayd, she streyght her on length, and rested a while.

OF nombre, sayn these clerkes, that it is naturel somme of discrete thinges, as in tellinge oon, two, three, and so forth; but among al nombres, three is determined for moste certayn. Wherfore in nombre certayn this werk of my besy leudenesse I thinke to ende and parfourme. Ensample by this worlde, in 5 three tymes is devyded; of whiche the first is cleped †Deviacion, that is to say, going out of trewe way; and al that tho dyeden, in helle were they punisshed for a man[ne]s sinne, til grace and mercy fette hem thence, and there ended the firste tyme. The seconde tyme lasteth from the comming of merciable grace until the ende 10 of transitorie tyme, in whiche is shewed the true way in fordoinge of the badde; and that is y-cleped tyme of Grace. thing is not yeven by desert of yeldinge oon benefyt for another, but only through goodnesse of the yever of grace in thilke tyme.
 15 Who-so can wel understande is shapen to be saved in souled blisse. The thirde tyme shal ginne whan transitorie thinges of worldes han mad their ende; and that shal ben in Joye, glorie, and rest, both body and soule, that wel han deserved in the tyme of Grace. And thus in that heven †togider shul they dwelle per-20 petuely, without any imaginatyfe yvel in any halve. These tymes are figured by tho three dayes that our god was closed in erthe; and in the thirde aroos, shewing our resurreccion to joye and blisse of tho that it deserven, by his merciabile grace.
 So this leude book, in three maters, accordaunt to tho tymes,
 25 lightly by a good inseër may ben understonde; as in the firste,
 Errour of misse-goinge is shewed, with sorowful pyne punisshed, †that cryed after mercy. In the seconde, is Grace in good waye proved, whiche is faylinge without desert, thilke first misse amendinge, in correccion of tho erroures, and even way to bringe, 30 with comfort of welfare in-to amendement wexinge. And in the thirde, Joye and blisse graunted to him that wel can deserve it, and hath savour of understandinge in the tyme of grace. Thus in Joye, of my thirde boke, shal the mater be til it ende.

But special cause I have in my herte to make this proces 35 of a Margarit-perle, that is so precious a gemme †whyt, clere and litel, of whiche stones or jewel[les] the tonges of us Englissh people tourneth the right names, and clepeth hem 'Margery-perles'; thus varieth our speche from many other langages. For trewly Latin, Frenche, and many mo other langages clepeth hem, 40 Margery-perles, [by] the name 'Margarites,' or 'Margarite-perles'; wherfore in that denominacion I wol me acorde to other mens tonges, in that name-cleping. These clerkes that treten of kyndes, and studien out the propertee there of thinges, sayn: the Margarite is a litel whyt perle, throughout holowe and rounde and 45 vertuous; and on the see-sydes, in the more Britayne, in muskleshelles, of the heavenly dewe, the best ben engendred; in whiche by experience ben founde thre fayre vertues. Oon is, it yeveth comfort to the feling spirites in bodily persones of reson. Another is good ; it is profitable helthe ayenst passions of sorie mens hertes. And the thirde, it is nedeful and noble in staunching of bloode, 50 there els to moche wolde out renne. To whiche perle and vertues me list to lyken at this tyme Philosophie, with her three speces, that is, natural, and moral, and resonable ; of whiche thinges hereth what sayn these grete clerkes. Philosophie is knowing of devynly and manly thinges joyned with studie of good living ; 55 and this stant in two thinges, that is, conninge and opinion. Conninge is whan a thing by certayn reson is conceyved. But wrecches and fooles and leude men, many wil conceyve a thing and mayntayne it as for sothe, though reson be in the contrarye ; wherfore conninge is a straunger. Opinion is whyl a thing is in 60 non-certayn, and hid from mens very knowleging, and by no parfit reson fully declared, as thus : if the sonne be so mokel as men wenen, or els if it be more than the erthe. For in sothnesse the certayn quantittè of that planet is unknowen to erthly dwellers ; and yet by opinion of some men it is holden for more than midle-erth. 65

The first spece of philosophie is naturel ; whiche in kyndely thinges ttreteth, and sheweth causes of heven, and strength of kyndely course ; as by arismetrike, geometry, musike, and by astronomye techeth wayes and cours of hevens, of planetes, and of sterres aboute heven and erthe, and other elementes. 70

The seconde spece is moral, whiche, in order, of living maners techeth ; and by reson proveth vertues of soule moste worthy in our living ; whiche ben prudence, justice, temperaunce, and strength. Prudence is goodly wisdom in knowing of thinges. Strength voideth al adversitees aliche even. Temperaunce dis- 75 troyeth beestial living with esy bering. And Justice rightfully jugeth ; and juging departeth to every wight that is his owne.

The thirde spece turneth in-to reson of understanding ; al thinges to be sayd soth and discussed ; and that in two thinges is devyded. Oon is art, another is rethorike ; in whiche two al 80 lawes of mans reson ben grounded or els maintayned.

And for this book is of LOVE, and therafter bereth his name, and philosophie and lawe muste here-to acorden by their clerghial discripcions, as : philosophie for love of wisdom is declared, lawe for mainteynaunce of pees is holden : and these with love must 85 nedes acorden ; therfore of hem in this place have I touched.

Ordre of homly thinges and honest maner of livinge in vertue, with rightful jugement in causes and profitable administracion in comminaltees of realmes and citees, by evenhed profitably to 90 raigne, nat by singuler avauntage ne by privè envy, ne by soleyne purpos in covetise of worship or of goodes, ben disposed in open rule shewed, by love, philosophy, and lawe, and yet love, toform al other. Wherefore as sustern in unitè they accorden, and oon ende, that is, pees and rest, they causen norissHINGE; and in the 95 joye maynteynen to endure.

Now than, as I have declared: my book acordeth with dis-cripcion of three thinges; and the Margarit in vertue is lykened to Philosophy, with her three spes. In whiche maters ever twey ben acordaunt with bodily reson, and the thirde with the 100 soule. But in conclusion of my boke and of this Margarite-perle in knittinge togider, Lawe by three sondrye maners shal be lykened:
 that is to saye, lawe, right, and custome, whiche I wol declare.
 Al that is lawe cometh of goddes ordinaunce, by kyndly worching:
 and thilke thinges ordayned by mannes wittes arn y-cleped right, 105 which is ordayned by many maners and in constitucion written.
 But custome is a thing that is accepted for right or for lawe, there-as lawe and right faylen; and there is no difference, whether it come of scripture or of reson. Wherefore it sheweth, that lawe is kyndly governaunce; right cometh out of mannes probable 110 reson; and custome is of commen usage by length of tyme used; and custome nat writte is usage; and if it be writte, constitucion it is y-written and y-cleped. But lawe of kynde is commen to every nation, as conjunccion of man and woman in love, succession of children in heritance, restitution of thing 115 by strength taken or lent; and this lawe among al other halt the soveraynest gree in worship; whiche lawe began at the beginning of resonable creature; it varied yet never for no chaunging of tyme. Cause, forsothe, in ordayning of lawe was to constrayne mens hardinesse in-to pees, and withdrawing his yvel 120 wil, and turning malice in-to goodnesse; and that innocence sikerly, withouten teneful anoye, among shrewes safely might inhabite by proteccion of safe-conducte, so that the shrewes, harm for harme, by brydle of ferdnesse shulden restrayne. But forsothe, in kyndely lawe, nothing is commended but such as goddes wil hath confirmed, ne nothing denyed but contrariouste of 125 goddes wil in heven. Eke than al lawes, or custome, or els constitucion by usage or wryting, that contraryen lawe of kynde, utterly ben repugnaunt and adversarie to our goddes wil of heven. Trewly, lawe of kynde for goddes own lusty wil is verily to mayntayne; under whiche lawe (and unworthy) bothe professè 130 and reguler arn obediencer and bounden to this Margarite-perle as by knotte of loves statutes and stablissment in kynde, whiche that goodly may not be withsetten. Lo! under this bonde am I constrayned to abyde; and man, under living lawe ruled, by that lawe oweth, after desertes, to ben rewarded by payne or by mede, 135 but-if mercy weyve the payne. So than †by part resonfully may be seye, that mercy bothe right and lawe passeth. Th' entent of al these maters is the lest clere understanding, to weten, at th'ende of this thirde boke; ful knowing, thorow goddes grace, I thinke to make neverthelater. Yet if these thinges han a good 140 and a †sleigh inseër, whiche that can souke hony of the harde stone, oyle of the drye rocke, [he] may lightly fele nobley of mater in my leude imaginacion closed. But for my book shal be of joye (as I sayd), and I [am] so fer set fro thilke place fro whens gladnesse shulde come; my corde is to short to lete my boket 145 ought cacche of that water; and fewe men be abouten my corde to eche, and many in ful purpos ben redy it shorter to make, and to enclose th'entrè, that my boket of joye nothing shulde cacche, but empty returne, my careful sorowes to encrease: (and if I dye for payne, that were gladnesse at their hertes): good lord, send 150 me water in-to the cop of these mountayns, and I shal drinke therof, my thurstes to stanche, and sey, these be comfortable welles; in-to helth of goodnesse of my saviour am I holpen. And yet I saye more, the house of joye to me is nat opened. How dare my sorouful goost than in any mater of gladnesse thinken to 155 trete? For ever sobbinges and complayntes be redy refrete in his meditacions, as werbles in manifolde stoundes comming about I not than. And therefore, what maner of joye coude [I] endyte? But yet at dore shal I knocke, if the key of David wolde the locke 165 Loves servauntes, releiving of my herte in-to grace of my jewel, and fren[d]ship [in] plesance of this perle, I am stered in this making, and for nothing els; and if any good thing to mennes

Margarites goodnesse, I may her not halfe preyse. Wherefore, nat she for my boke, but this book for her, is worthy to be commended, man, by rightful werkinges, ought to folowe the lefful desyres in his herte, and see toforn to what ende he deserveth. For many tymes he that loketh nat after th'endes, but utterly therof is unknowen, befalleth often many yvels to done, wherthrough, er he 55 be war, shamefully he is confounded; th'ende[s] therof neden to be before loked. To every desirer of suche foresight in good service, three thinges specially nedeth to be rulers in his workes. First, that he do good; next, that he do [it] by eleccion in his owne herte; and the thirde, that he do godly, withouten any

 60 surquedry in thoughtes. That your werkes shulden be good, in service or in any other actes, authoritès many may be aleged; neverthelater, by reson thus may it be shewed. Al your werkes be cleped seconde, and moven in vertue of the firste wercher, whiche in good workes wrought you to procede; and right so
 65 your werkes moven in-to vertue of the laste ende: and right in the first workinge were nat, no man shulde in the seconde werche. Right so, but ye feled to what ende, and seen their goodnes closed, ye shulde no more trecche what ye wrought; but the ginning gan with good, and there shal it cese in the laste ende, if
 70 it be wel considred. Wherefore the middle, if other-ways it drawe than accordant to the endes, there stinteth the course of good, and another maner course entreth; and so it is a partie by himselve; and every part [that] be nat accordant to his al, is foul and ought to be eschewed. Wherefore every thing that is wrought
 75 and be nat good, is nat accordant to th'endes of his al hole; it is foul, and ought to be withdrawe. Thus the persons that neither don good ne harm shamen foule their making. Wherefore, without working of good actes in good service, may no man ben accepted. Truely, the ilke that han might to do good and doon it nat, the 80 crowne of worship shal be take from hem, and with shame shul they be anulled; and so, to make oon werke acordant with his endes, every good servaunt, by reson of consequence, muste do good nedes. Certes, it suffiseth nat alone to do good, but goodly withal folowe; the thanke of goodnesse els in nought he 85 deserveth. For right as al your being come from the greetest good, in whom al goodnesse is closed, right so your endes ben directe to the same good. Aristotel determineth that ende and good ben one, and convertible in understanding; and he that in

Than he that dooth [not] goodly, directeth thilke good in-to th'ende of badde; so muste thing nat good folowe: eke badnesse to suche 95 folke ofte foloweth. CHAPTER III.

THAN gan Love nighe me nere, and with a noble countenance of visage and limmes, dressed her nigh my sitting-place.

‘Take forth,’ quod she, ‘thy pen, and redily wryte these wordes. For if god wol, I shal hem so enforme to thee, that thy leudnesse which I have understande in that mater shal openly be clered, and thy sight in ful loking therin amended. First, if thou thinke that goddes prescience repugne libertè of arbitrement, it is impossible that they shulde accorde in onheed of sothe to understanding.’

40 if I had nat loved, thorow necessitè had I ben kept from al lovededes.'

'Certes,' quod Love, 'bicause this mater is good and necessary to declare, I thinke here-in wel to abyde, and not lightly to passe. Thou shalt not (quod she) say al-only, "god beforn wot me to be 45 a lover or no lover," but thus: "god beforn wot me to be a lover without necessitè." And so foloweth, whether thou love or not love, every of hem is and shal be. But now thou seest the impossibilitè of the case, and the possibilitè of thilke that thou wendest had been impossible; wherfore the repugnaunce is adnulled.'

50 'Ye,' quod I; 'and yet do ye not awaye the strength of necessitè, whan it is said, th[r]ough necessitè it is me in love to abyde, or not to love without necessitè for god beforn wot it. This maner of necessitè forsothe semeth to some men in-to coaccion, that is to sayne, constrayning, or else prohibicion, that is,

'Now,' quod she, 'thou shalt wel understande, that often we sayn thing thorow necessitè to be, that by no strength to be neither is coarted ne constrayned; and through necessitè not to be, that with no defendinge is removed. For we sayn it is 65 thorow necessitè god to be immortal, nought deedliche; and it is necessitè, god to be rightful; but not that any strength of violent maner constrayneth him to be immortal, or defendeth him to be unrightful; for nothing may make him dedly or unrightful. Right so, if I say, thorow necessitè is thee to be a lover or els nat be; or els constrayneth it to be, whiche shal be. That same thing, forsoth, god before wot, whiche he befor seeth. Any thing commende of only wil, that wil neyther is constrayned ne defended thorow any other thing. And so thorow libertè of 75 arbitrement it is do, that is don of wil. And trewly, my good child, if these thinges be wel understonde, I wene that non inconvenient shalt thou fynde betwene goddes forweting and libertè of arbitrement; wherfore I wot wel they may stande togider. Also farthermore, who that understanding of prescience 80 properlich considreth, thorow the same wyse that any-thing be afore wist is said, for to be comming it is pronounced; there is nothing toforw wist but thing comming; foreweting is but of trouth[e]; dout[e] may nat be wist; wherfore. whan I sey that god toforw wot any-thing, thorow necessitè is thilke thing to be com- 85 ming; al is oon if I sey, it shal be. But this necessitè neither constrayneth ne defendeth any-thing to be or nat to be. Therefore sothly, if love is put to be, it is said of necessitè to be; or els, for it is put nat to be, it is affirmed nat to be of necessitè; nat for that necessitè constrayneth or defendeth love to be or nat to be. For 90 whan I say, if love shal be, of necessitè it shal be, here foloweth necessitè the thing toforw put; it is as moch to say as if it were thus pronounced—"that thing shal be." Noon other thing signifyeth this necessitè but only thus: that shal be, may nat togider be and nat be. Evenlich also it is soth, love was, and is, and shal 95 be, nat of necessitè; and nede is to have be al that was; and nedeful is to be al that is; and comming, to al that shal be. And it is nat the same to saye, love to be passed, and love passed to be passed; or love present to be present, and love to be present; or els love to be comminge, and love comminge to be 100 comming. Dyversitè in setting of wordes maketh dyversitè in understandinge; altho[ugh] in the same sentence they accorden of significacion; right as it is nat al oon, love swete to be swete, and love to be swete. For moch love is bitter and sorouful, er hertes ben esed; and yet it glad[d]eth thilke sorouful herte on 105 suche love to thinke.'

'Now,' quod this lady, 'I saye as I sayde: me lyketh this mater to declare at the ful, and why: for many men have had dyvers fantasyes and resons, both on one syde therof and in the other. Of whiche right sone, I trowe, if thou wolt understonde, 120 thou shalt conne yeve the sentence to the partie more probable this mater (quod this lady) thou wost where I lefte; that was:

 135 love to be swete, and love swete to be swete, is not al oon for to say. For a tree is nat alway by necessitè white. Somtyme, er it were white, it might have be nat white; and after tyme it is white, it may be nat white. But a white tree evermore nedeful is to be white; for neither toforen ne after it was white, might it 140 be togider white and nat white. Also love, by necessitè, is nat present as now in thee; for er it were present, it might have be that it shulde now nat have be; and yet it may be that it shal nat be present; but thy love present whiche to her, Margarite, thee hath bounde, nedeful is to be present. Trewly, som doing of accion, nat by necessitè, is comminge fer toforn it be ; it may be 145 that it shal nat be comminge. Thing forsoth comming nedeful is to be comming ; for it may nat be that comming shal nat be comming. And right as I have sayd of present and of future tymes, the same sentence in sothnesse is of the preterit, that is to say, tyme passed. For thing passed must nedes be passed ; and 150 er it were, it might have nat be ; wherefore it shulde nat have passed. Right so, whan love comming is said of love that is to come, nedeful is to be that is said ; for thing comming never is nat comminge. And so, ofte, the same thing we sayn of the same ; as whan we sayn "every man is a man," or "every lover is a lover," 155 so muste it be nedes. In no waye may he be man and no man to-gider. And if it be nat by necessitè, that is to say nedeful, al thing comming to be comming, than somthing comming is nat comminge, and that is impossible. Right as these termes "nedeful," "necessitè," and "necessary" betoken and signify thing nedes 160 to be, and it may nat otherwyse be, right [so] †this terme "impossible" signifyeth, that [a] thing is nat and by no way may it be.

 Than, thorow pert necessitè, al thing comming is comming ; but that is by necessitè foloweth, with nothing to be constrayned.
 Lo ! whan that "comming" is said of thinge, nat alway thing 165 thorow necessitè is, altho[ugh] it be comming. For if I say, "to-morowe love is comming in this Margarites herte," nat therfore thorow necessitè shal the ilke love be ; yet it may be that it shal nat be, altho[ugh] it were comming. Neverthelater, somtyme it is soth that somthing be of necessitè, that is sayd "to come" ; as 170 if I say, to-morowe †be comminge the rysinge of the sonne. If therfore with necessitè I pronounce comming of thing to come, in this maner love to-morne comminge in thyne Margarine to thee-ward, by necessitè is comminge ; or els the rysing of the sonne to-morne comminge, through necessitè is comminge. Love sothely, 175 whiche may nat be of necessitè alone folowinge, thorow necessitè comming it is mad certayn. For "futur" of future is said ; that is to sayn, "comining" of comminge is said ; as, if to-morowe comming is thorow necessitè, comminge it is. Arysing of the sonne, thorow two necessitès in comming, it is to understande ; that oon is to 180 for[e]going necessitè, whiche maketh thing to be ; therfore it shal be, for nedeful is that it be. Another is folowing necessitè, whiche

- nothing constrayneth to be, and so by necessitè it is to come ; why ?
 for it is to come. Now than, whan we sayn that god beforn wot 185 thing comming, nedeful [it] is to be comming ; yet therfore make we nat in certayn evermore, thing to be thorow necessitè comminge. Sothly, thing comming may nat be nat comming by no way ; for it is the same sentence of understanding as if we say thus : if god beforn wot any-thing, nedeful is that to be comming.
 190 But yet therfore foloweth nat the prescience of God, thing thorow necessitè to be comming : for al-tho[ugh] god toforn wot al thinges comming, yet nat therfore he beforn wot every thing comming thorow necessitè. Some thinges he beforn wot com-ming of free wil out of resonable creature.’
 195 ‘ Certes,’ quod I, ‘ these termes “ nede ” and “ necessitè ” have a queint maner of understanding ; they wolden dullen many mennes wittes.’
 ‘ Therefore,’ quod she, ‘ I wol hem openly declare, and more clerely than I have toforn, er I departe hen[ne]s.’

CHAPTER IV.

- HERE of this mater,’ quod she, ‘ thou shalt understande that, right as it is nat nedeful, god to wilne that he wil, no more in many thinges is nat nedeful, a man to wilne that he wol. And ever, right as nedeful is to be, what that god wol, 5 right so to be it is nedeful that man wol in tho thinges, whiche that god hath put in-to mannes subjeccion of willinge ; as, if a man wol love, that he love ; and if he ne wol love, that he love nat ; and of suche other thinges in mannes disposicion. For-why,

'I wol,' quod she, 'answeere thee blyvely. Right as men wil not thorow necessitè, right so is not love of wil thorow necessitè; ne thorow necessitè wrought thilke same wil. For if he wolde it not with good wil, it shulde nat have been wrought; although that he doth, it is nedeful to be doon. But if a man do sinne, it is nothing els but to $\dagger$ wilne that he shulde nat; right so sinne of wil is not to be [in] maner necessary don, no more than wil is necessarye. Never-the-later, this is sothe; if a man wol sinne, it is necessarye him to sinne, but th[r]ough thilke necessitè nothing is constrayned ne defended in the wil; right so thilke thing that free-wil wol and may, and not may not wilne; and nedeful is that to wilne he may not wilne. But thilke to wilne nedeful is; for impossible to him it is oon thing and the same to wilne and not to wilne. The werke, forsothe, of wil, to whom it is yeve that it be that he hath in wil, and that he wol not, voluntarie $\dagger$ or spontanye it is; for by spontanye wil it is do, that is to saye, with good wil not constrayned: than by wil not constrayned it is constrayned to be; and that is it may not $\dagger$ togider be. If this necessitè maketh libertè of wil, whiche that, aforne they weren, they might have ben eschewed and shonned: god than, whiche that knoweth al tr[o]uthe, and nothing but tr[o]uthe, al these thinges, as they arn spontanye or necessarye, $\dagger$ seeth; and as he seeth, so they ben.  temporel presence for thinge that there is ever present. Yet amonges you men, er it be in your presence, it is movable thorow libertè of arbitrement. And right as in the everlasting present no maner thing was ne shal be, but only is; and now here, in 135 your temporel tyme, somthing was, and is, and shal be, but movinge stoundes; and in this is no maner repugnaunce: right so, in the everlasting presence, nothing may be chaunged; and, in your temporel tyme, otherwhyle it is proved movable by libertè of wil or it be do, withouten any inconvenience therof to folowe.
 140 In your temporel tyme is no suche presence as in the tother; for your present is don whan passed and to come ginnen entre; whiche tymes here amonges you everich esily foloweth other.
 But the presence everlasting dureth in oonhed, withouten any imaginable chaunging, and ever is present and now. Trewly, the 145 course of the planettes and overwhelminges of the sonne in dayes

But there thou sayest that Poule shulde have spoke thilke forsaid sentence †by tyme present, and that most shulde have ben acordaunt to the everlasting presence, 170 why gabbest thou †in thy wordes? Sothly, I say, Poule moved the wordes by signification of tyme passed, to shewe fully that thilk wordes were nat put for temporel signification; for al [at] thilk tyme [of] thilke sentence were nat temporallich born, whiche that Poule pronounced god have tofore knowe, and have cleped, than 175 magnified. Wherthorow it may wel be knowe that Poule used tho wordes of passed signification, for nede and lacke of a worde in mannes bodily speche betokeninge the everlasting presence. And therfore, [in] worde moste semeliche in lykenesse to everlasting presence, he took his sentence; for thinges that here- 180 befor ben passed utterly be immovable, y-lyke to the everlasting presence. As thilke that ben there never mowe not ben present, so thinges of tyme passed ne mowe in no wyse not ben passed; but al thinges in your temporal presence, that passen in a litel while, shullen ben not present. So than in that, it is more 185 similitude to the everlasting presence, signification of tyme passed than of tyme temporal present, and so more in accordaunce. In this maner what thing, of these that ben don thorow free arbitrement, or els as necessary, holy writ pronounceth, after eternitè he speketh; in whiche presence is everlasting sothe and nothing but 190 sothe immovable; nat after tyme, in whiche naught alway ben your willes and your actes. ‘Now see,’ quod she, ‘thou thy wil shal folowe, thy free wil to be grounded continually to abyde. It is thy free wil, that thou lovest and hast loved, and yet shal loven this Margaryte-perle; and in thy wil thou thinkest to holde it. Than is thy wil knit ²⁵ in love, not to chaunge for no newe lust besyde; this wil techeth thyn herte from al maner varying. But than, although thou be thretened in dethe or els in otherwyse, yet is it in thyn arbitrement to chose, thy love to voyde or els to holde; and thilke arbitrement is in a maner a jugement bytwene desyr and thy ³⁰ herte. And if thou deme to love thy good wil fayleth, than art thou worthy no blisse that good wil shulde deserve; and if thou chose continuaunce in thy good service, than thy good wil abyde; nedes, blisse folowing of thy good wil must come by strength of thilke jugement; for thy first wil, that taught thyn ³⁵ herte to abyde, and halt it from th’eschaunge, with thy reson is accorded. Trewly, this maner of wil thus shal abyde; impossible it were to turne, if thy herte be trewe; and if every man diligently the meninges of his wil consider, he shal wel understande that good wil, knit with reson, but in a false herte ⁴⁰ never is voyded; for power and might of keping this good wil is thorow libertè of arbitrement in herte, but good wil to kepe may not fayle. Eke than if it fayle, it sheweth it-selfe that good wil in keping is not there. And thus false wil, that putteth out the good, anon constrayneth the herte to accorde in lovinge of ⁴⁵ thy good wil; and this accordaunce bitwene false wil and thyn herte, in falsitè ben lykened †togider. Yet a litel wol I say thee in good wil, thy good willes to rayse and strengthe. Tak hede to me (quod she) how thy willes thou shalt understande. Right as ye han in your body dyvers membres, and fyve sondrye ⁵⁰ wittes, everiche apart to his owne doing, whiche thinges as instrumentes ye usen; as, your handes apart to handle; feet, to go; tonge, to speke; eye, to see: right so the soule hath in him certayne steringes and strengthes, whiche he useth as instrumentes to his certayne doinges. Reson is in the soule, ⁵⁵ which he useth, thinges to knowe and to prove; and wil, whiche he useth to wilne; and yet is neyther wil ne reson al the soule; but everich of hem is a thing by him-selfe in the soule. And right as everich hath thus singuler instrumentes by herselfe, 60 they han as wel dyvers aptes and dyvers maner usinges; and thilke aptes mowen in wil ben cleped affeccions. Affeccion is an instrument of willinge in his apetytes. Wherefore mokol folk sayn, if a resonable creatures soule any thing fervently wilneth, affectuously he wilneth; and thus may wil, by terme of equivocas, 65 in three wayes ben understande. Oon is instrument of willing; another is affection of this instrument; and the third is use, that setteth it a-werke. Instrument of willing is thilke strength of the soule, which that constrayneth to wilne, right as reson is instrument of resons, which ye usen whan ye loken. Affeccion of this 70 instrument is a thing, by whiche ye be drawe desyrously anything to wilne in coveitous maner, al be it for the tyme out of your mynde; as, if it come in your thought thilke thing to remembre, anon ye ben willing thilke to done or els to have.

 And thus is instrument wil; and affection is wil also, to wilne
 75 thing as I said; as, for to wilne helth, whan wil nothing theron thinketh; for anon as it cometh to memorie, it is in wil. And so is affection to wilne slepe, whan it is out of mynde; but anon as it is remembred, wil wilneth slepe, whan his tyme cometh of the doinge. For affection of wil never accordeth to sicknesse, 80 ne alway to wake. Right so, in a true lovers affection of willing, instrument is to wilne tr[o]uthe in his service; and this affection alway abydeth, although he be sleping or thretned, or els not theron thinking; but anon as it cometh to mynde, anon he is stedfast in that wil to abyde. Use of this instrument forsothe 85 is another thing by himselfe; and that have ye not but whan ye be doing in willed thing, by affect or instrument of wil purposed or desyred; and this maner of usage in my service wysely nedeth to be ruled from wayters with envy closed, from spekers ful of jangeling wordes, from proude folk and hautayn, 90 that lambes and innocentes bothe scornen and dispysen. Thus in doing varieth the actes of willinge everich from other, and yet ben they cleped "wil," and the name of wil utterly owen they to have; as instrument of wil is wil, whan ye turne in-to purpos of any thing to don, be it to sitte or to stande, or any such thing 95 els. This instrument may ben had, although affect and usage be left out of doinge; right as ye have sight and reson, and yet alway use ye* †nat to loke, [ne] thinges with resonning to prove; and so is instrument of wil, wil; and yet varyeth he from effect and using bothe. Affeccion of wil also for wil is cleped, but it varyeth from instrument in this maner wyse, by that nameliche, whan it cometh in-to mynde, anon-right it is in willinge desyred, and the negatiff therof with willing nil not acorde; this is closed in herte, though usage and instrument slepe. This slepeth whan instrument and us[e] waken; and of suche maner affeccion, trewly, some man hath more and some man lesse. Certes, trewe lovers wenen ever therof to litel to have. False lovers in litel wenen have right mokel. Lo, instrument of wil in false and trewe bothe, evenliche is proporcioned; but affeccion is more in some places than in some, bycause of the goodnesse that foloweth, and that I thinke hereafter to declare. Use of this instrument is wil, but it taketh his name whan wilned thing is in doing; but utterly grace to cacche in thy blisse †desyreth to ben rewarded. Thou most have than affeccion of wil at the ful, and use whan his tyme asketh wysely to ben governed. Sothly, my disciple, without fervent affeccion of wil may no man ben saved. This affeccion of good service in good love may not ben grounded, without fervent desyr to the thing in wil coveited. But he that never reccheth to have or not to have, affeccion of wil in that hath no resting-place. Why? For whan thing cometh to mynde, and it be not taken in hede to comin or not come, therfore in that place affeccion fayleth; and, for thilke affeccion is so litel, thorow whiche in goodnesse he shulde come to his grace, the litelnesse wil it not suffre to avayle by no way in-to his helpes. Certes, grace and reson thilke affeccion foloweth. This affeccion, with reson knit, dureth in everiche trewe herte, and evermore is encresing; no ferdnesse, no strength may it remove, whyle tr[o]uthe in herte abyde. Sothly, whan falsheed ginneth entre, tr[o]uthe draweth away grace and joye bothe; but than thilke falsheed, that trouthe hath thus voyded, hath unknit the bond of understanding reson bytwene wil and the herte. And who-so that bond undoth, and unknitteth wil to be in other purpose than to the first acorde, knitteth him with contrarye of reson;

and that is unreson. Lo, than, wil and unreson bringeth a man from the blisse of grace; whiche thing, of pure kynde, every man

Shortly I say, the revers in these wordes may not ben founde; for though dronkenness be for-

I say, thy wil in thy first purpos with unreson was closed; constrewe forth of the remenant what thee good lyketh. Trewly, that wil and reson shulde be knit togider,

If any man yeve to another wight, to whom that he ought not, and whiche that of him-selfe nothing may have, a garnement or a cote, though he were the cote or els thilke clothing, it is not to putte to him that was naked the cause of his clothinge, but only to him that was yever of the garnement.
135 Wherefore I saye, thou that were naked of love, and of thy-selfe non have mightest, it is not to putte to thyne owne persone, sithen thy love cam thorow thy Margaryte-perle. Ergo, she was yever of the love, although thou it use; and there lente she thee grace, thy service to beginne. She is worthy the thank of this

CHAPTER VIII.

SOBERLICHE tho threw I up myn eyen, and hugely tho was I astonyed of this sodayne adventure; and fayn wolde I have lerned, how vertues shulden ben knowen; in whiche thinges, I hope to god, here-after she shal me enfourmen; and namely, sithen her resting-place is now so nygh at my wil; and anon al⁵ these thinges that this lady said, I remembred me by my-selfe, and revolved the flynes of myne understandinge wittes. Tho found I fully al these maters parfitly there written, how mis-rule by fayned love bothe realmes and citees hath governed a greet throwe; how lightly me might the fautes espye; how rules in love¹⁰ shulde ben used; how somtyme with fayned love foule I was begyled; how I shulde love have knowe; and how I shal in love with my service procede. Also furthermore I found, of perdurable letters wonderly there graven, these maters whiche I shal nempne. Certes, non age ne other thing in erthe may the leest sillable of¹⁵ this in no poynte deface, but clerely as the sonne in myne understandinge soule they shynen. This may never out of my mynde, how I may not my love kepe, but thorow willinge in herte; wilne to love may I not, but I lovinge have. Love have I non, but thorow grace of this Margarite-perle. It is no maner doute, that²⁰ wil wol not love but for it is lovinge, as wil wol not rightfully but for it is rightful it-selve. Also wil is not lovinge for he wol love ; but he wol love for he is lovinge ; it is al oon to twilne to be lovinge, and lovinges in possession to have. Right so wil wol not 25 love, for of love hath he no partie. And yet I denye not lovinge wil [may] wilne more love to have, whiche that he hath not whan he wolde more than he hath ; but I saye, he may no love wilne if he no love have, through which thilke love he shuld wilne. But to have this loving wil may no man of him-selfe, but only through 30 grace toforne-going ; right so may no man it kepe, but by grace folowinge. Consider now every man aright, and let seen if that any wight of him-selfe mowe this loving wel gete, and he therof first nothing have ; for if it shulde of him-selfe springe, either it muste be willing or not willing. Willing by him-selfe may he it not

 35 have, sithen him fayleth the mater that shulde it forth bringe. The mater him fayleth ; why ? He may therof have no knowing til whan grace put it in his herte. Thus willing by him-selfe may he it not have ; and not willing, may he it not have. Pardè, every conseyt of every resonable creature otherwyse wil [wol] not 40 graunte ; wil in affirmatif with not willing by no way mowe acorde. And although this loving wol come in myn herte by freenesse of arbitrement, as in this booke fully is shewed, yet owe I not therfore as moche alowe my free wil as grace of that Margaryte to me lened. For neyther might I, without grace to-forne going and
 45 afterward folowing, thilke grace gete ne kepe ; and lese shal I it never but-if free wil it make, as in willinge otherwyse than grace hath me graunted. For right as whan any person taketh willing to be sobre, and throweth that away, willing to be dronke ; or els taketh wil of drinking out of mesure ; whiche thing, anon as it is
 50 don, maketh (thorow his owne gilte by free wil) that [he] leseth his grace. In whiche thing therfore upon the nobley of grace I mote trusten, and my besy cure sette thilke grace to kepe, that my free wil, otherwyse than by reson it shulde werche, cause not my grace to voyde : for thus must I bothe loke to free wil and to 55 grace. For right as naturel usage in engendring of children may not ben without †fader, ne also but with the †moder, for neyther †fader ne †moder in begetting may it lacke ; right so grace and free wil accorden, and withoute hem bothe may not lovinge wil in no partie ben getten. But yet is not free wil in gettinge of that thing so mokel thank-worthy as is grace, ne in the kepinge therof 60 so moche thank deserveth; and yet in gettinge and keping bothe don they accorde. Trewly, often-tyme grace free wil helpeth, in fordoinge of contrarye thinges, that to willinge love not accorden, and †strengtheth wil adversitees to withsitte; wherfore †al-togider to grace oweth to ben accepted, that my willing deserveth. Free 65 wil to lovinge in this wyse is accorded. I remembre me wel how al this book (who-so hede taketh) considereth [how] al thinges to werchinges of mankynde evenly accordeth, as in turning of this worde 'love' in-to trouthe or els rightwisnesse, whether that it lyke. For what thing that falleth to man in helping of free 70 arbitrement, thilke rightwisnesse to take or els to kepe, thorow whiche a man shal be saved (of whiche thing al this book mencion hath maked), in every poynte therof grace oweth to be thanked.

 Wherfore I saye, every wight haveinge this rightwisnesse rightful is; and yet therefore I fele not in my conscience, that to al 75 rightful is behoten the blisse everlastinge, but to hem that ben rightful withouten any unrightfulnesse. Some man after some degree may rightfully ben accompted as chaste men in living, and yet ben they janglers and ful of envy pressed; to hem shal this blisse never ben delivered. For right as very blisse is without al maner 80 nede, right so to no man shal it be yeven but to the rightful, voyde from al maner unrightfulnesse founde; so no man to her blisse shal ben folowed, but he be rightful, and with unrightfulnesse not bounde, and in that degree fully be knowe. This rightfulnessse, in as moche as in him-selfe is, of none yvel is it cause; and of al 85 maner goodnesse, trewly, it is †moder. This helpeth the spirit to withsitte the leude lustes of fleshly lykinge. This strengtheth and maintayneth the lawe of kynde; and if that otherwhyle me weneth harm of this precious thing to folowe, therthorough is [it] nothing the cause; of somewhat els cometh it aboute, who-so 90

 folkes they weren savour of dethe, in-to deedly ende, that com

95 badnesse hath proceded. Trewly, the ilke wil, whiche that the Lady of Love me lerned 'affeccion of wil' to nempne, which is in willing of profitable thinges, yvel is it not, but whan to fleshly lustes it consenteth ayenst reson of soule. But that this thing more clerely be understande, it is for to knowe, whence and how 100 thilke wil is so vicious, and so redy yvel dedes to perfourme.
 Grace at the ginninge ordeyned thilke wil in goodnesse ever to have endured, and never to badnesse have assented. Men shulde not byleve, that god thilke wil maked to be vicious [in] our firste †faders, as Adam and Eve; for vicious appetytes, and vicious wil 105 to suche appetytes consentinge, ben not on thing in kynde; other thing is don for the other. And how this wil first in-to man first assented, I holde it profitable to shewe; but if the first condicion of resonable creature wol be considred and apertly loked, lightly the cause of suche wil may be shewed. Intencion of god was, 110 that rightfully and blissed shulde resonable nature ben maked, himselfe for to kepe; but neyther blisful ne rightful might it not be, withouten wil in them bothe. Wil of rightfulness is thilke same rightfulness, as here-to-forn is shewed; but wil of blisse is not thilke blisse, for every man hath not thilke blisse, in whom 115 the wil therof is abydinge. In this blisse, after every understandinge, is suffisaunce of covenable comoditees without any maner nede, whether it be blisse of aungels or els thilke that grace first in paradise suffred Adam to have. For al-though angels blisse be more than Adams was in paradyse, yet may it not 120 be †denyed, that Adam in paradyse ne had suffisaunce of blisse; for right as greet herte is without al maner of coldenesse, and yet may another herte more hete have; right so nothing defended
 Adam in paradyse to ben blessed, without al maner nede.
 Al-though aungels blisse be moche more, forsothe, it foloweth 125 not [that], lasse than another to have, therefore him nedeth; but for to wante a thing whiche that behoveth to ben had, that may 'nede' ben cleped; and that was not in Adam at the first ginning. God and the Margaryte weten what I mene. Forsothe, where-as is nede, there is wrecchednesse. †God without cause 130 to-fornging made not resonable creature wrecched; for him to understande and love had he firste maked. God made therefore man blissed without al maner indigence; †togider and at ones took resonable creature blisse, and wil of blissednesse, and wil of rightfulnessse, whiche is rightfulnessse it-selve, and libertee of arbitrement, that is, free wil, with whiche thilke rightfulnessse may ¹³⁵ he kepe and lese. So and in that wyse [god] ordayned thilke two, that wil (whiche that “instrument” is cleped, as here-tofore mencion is maked) shulde use thilke rightfulnessse, by teching of his soule to good maner of governaunce, in thought and in wordes; and that it shulde use the blisse in obedient maner, withouten ¹⁴⁰ any incommoditè. Blisse, forsothe, in-to mannes profit, and rightwisnesse in-to his worship god delivered at ones; but rightfulnessse so was yeven that man might it lese, whiche if he not lost had, but continually [might] have it kept, he shulde have deserved the avauncement in-to the felowshippe of angels, in whiche thing ¹⁴⁵ if he that loste, never by him-selve forward shulde he it mowe ayenward recovere; and as wel the blisse that he was in, as aungels blisse that to-him-wardes was coming, shulde be nome at ones, and he deprived of hem bothe. And thus fil man un-to lykenesse of unresonable bestes; and with hem to corrupcion and ¹⁵⁰ unlusty apetytes was he under-throwen. But yet wil of blisse dwelleth, that by indigence of goodes, whiche that he loste through greet wrecchednesse, by right shulde he ben punissed. And thus, for he weyved rightfulnessse, lost hath he his blisse; but fayle of his desyr in his owne comoditè may he not; and †where ¹⁵⁵ comodites to his resonable nature whiche he hath lost may he not have, to false lustes, whiche ben bestial appetytes, he is turned. Folye of unconning hath him begyled, in wening that thilke ben the comoditees that owen to ben desyred. This affeccion of wil by libertè of arbitrement is enduced to wilne thus thing that ¹⁶⁰ he shulde not; and so is wil not maked yvel but unrightful, by absence of rightfulnessse, whiche thing by reson ever shulde he have. And freenesse of arbitrement may he not wilne, whan he it not haveth; for while he it had, thilke halp it not to kepe; so that without grace may it not ben recovered. Wil of commoditè, ¹⁶⁵ in-as-moche as unrightful it is maked by willinge of yvel lustes, willing of goodnesse may he not wilne; for wil of instrument to affection of wil is thrallid, sithen that other thing may it not wilne; for wil of instrument to affection desyreth, and yet ben bothe they 170 'wil' cleped. For that instrument wol, through affection it wilneth; and affection desyreth thilke thing wherto instrument him ledeth. And so free wil to unlusty affection ful servaunt is maked, for unrightfulnesse may he not releve; and without rightfulnesse ful fredom may it never have. For kyndly libertee of arbitrement

 175 without it, veyne and ydel is, forsothe. Wherefore yet I say, (as often have I sayd the same), whan instrument of wil lost hath rightfulnesse, in no maner but by grace may he ayen retourne rightfulnesse to wilne. For sithen nothing but rightfulnesse alone shulde he wilne, what that ever he wilneth without rightfulnesse, 180 unrightfully he it wilneth. These than unrightful appetytes and unthriftly lustes whiche the flesh desyreth, in as mokol as they ben in kynde, ben they nat bad; but they ben unrightful and badde for they ben in resonable creature, where-as they being, in no waye shulde ben suffred. In unresonable beestes neyther ben they yvel 185 ne unrightful; for there is their kynde being.

CHAPTER IX.

KNOWEN may it wel ben now of these thinges tofore declared, that man hath not alway thilke rightfulnesse which by dutē of right evermore haven he shulde, and by no way by him-selfe may he it gete ne kepe; and after he it hath, if he it
 5 lese, recover shal he it never without especial grace. Wherefore the comune sentence of the people in opinion, that every thing after destenee is ruled, false and wicked is to beleve. For though predestinacion be as wel of good as of badde, sithen that it is sayd, god hath destenees made, whiche he never ne wrought; but,
 10 for he suffreth hem to be maked, as that he hardeth, whan he naught missayth, or tlet in-to temptacion, whan he not delivereth: wherefore it is non inconvenient if in that maner be sayd, god tofore have destenyed bothe badde and her badde werkes, whan hem ne their yvel dedes [he] neyther amendeth ne therto hem
 15 grace tleneth. But specialliche, predestinacion of goodnesse alone is sayd by these grete clerkes ; for in him god doth that they ben, and that in goodnesse they werchen. But the negatíf herof in badnesse is holden, as the Lady of Love hath me lerned, who-so aright in this booke loketh. And utterly it is to weten, that predestinacion properly in god may not ben demed, no more ²⁰ than befor-weting. For in the chapitre of goddes befor-weting, as Love me rehersed, al these maters apertly may ben founden. Al thinges to god ben now †togider and in presence duringe. Trewly, presence and predestinacion in nothing disacorden ; wherfore, as I was lerned how goddes before-weting and free ²⁵ choice of wil mowe stonden †togider, me thinketh the same reson me ledeth, that destenye and free wil accorden, so that neyther of hem bothe to other in nothing contrarieth. And resonabliche may it not ben demed, as often as any thing falleth [thorow] free wil werching (as if a man another man wrongfully anoyeth, wher- ³⁰ fore he him sleeth), that it be constrained to that ende, as mokol folk cryeth and sayth : ‘ Lo, as it was destenyed of god tofore knowe, so it is thorow necessitè falle, and otherwyse might it not betyde.’ Trewly, neyther he that the wrong wrought, ne he that him-selfe venged, none of thilke thinges thorow necessitè wrought ; ³⁵ for if that [oon] with free wil there had it not willed, neyther had [he]wrought that he perfourmed ; and so utterly grace, that free wil in goodnesse bringeth and kepeth, and fro badnesse it tourneth, in al thinge moste thank deserveth. This grace maketh sentence in vertue to abyde, wherfore in body and in soule, in ful ⁴⁰ plentee of conninge, after their good deserving in the everlastinge joye, after the day of dome shul they endessele dwelle ; and they shul ben lerned in that kingdom with so mokol affect of love and of grace, that the leste joye shal of the gretest in glorie rejoice and ben gladded, as if he the same joye had. What wonder, ⁴⁵ sith god is the gretest love and the * gretest wisdom ? In hem shal he be, and they in god. Now than, whan al false folk be ashamed, which wenen al bestialtè and erthly thing be sweter and better to the body than hevenly is to the soule ; this is the grace and the frute that I long have desyred ; it doth me good the ⁵⁰ savour to smelle.

II. THE PLOWMANS TALE.

Here beginneth the Plowmans Prologue.

THE Plowman plucked up his plow,
Whan midsommer mone was comen in,
And sayd, 'his beestes shuld ete y-now,
And lig in the grasse, up to the chin;
They ben feble, both oxe and cow, 5
Of hem nis left but boon and skin.'
He shook of share, and cultre of drow,
And hong his harneys on a pin.

He took his tabard and his staf eke,
And on his heed he set his hat; 10
And sayde, he wolde saynt Thomas seke,
On pilgrimage he goth forth plat.
In scrippe he bar both breed and lekes,
He was forswonke and all forswat;
Men might have seen through both his chekes, 15
And every wang-toth and where it sat.

Our hoste beheld wel all about,
And saw this man was sunne y-brent;
He knew well by his senged snout,
And by his clothes that were to-rent, 20
He was a man wont to walke about,
He nas nat alway in cloystre y-pent;
He coud not religiousliche lout,
And therfore was he fully shent.

PART I.

A STERNĒ stryf is stered newe
 In many stedes in a stounde,
 Of sondry sedes that ben sewe; 55
 It semeth that som ben unsounde.
 For some be gretĕ growen †on grounde,
 Some ben souple, simple and small;
 Whether of hem is falser founde,
 The falser, foul mote him befall! 60
 That oon syde is, that I of tell,
 Popes, cardinals, and prelates,
 Parsons, monkes, and freres fell,
 Priours, abbottes of grete estates;
 Of heven and hell they kepe the yates, 65
 And Peters successours they ben all;
 This is demed by oldĕ dates;
 But falshed, foul mote it befall!
 The other syde ben poore and pale,
 And people put [al] out of prees; 70
 And semĕ caytifs sore a-cale,
 And ever in oon without encrees,
 †I-cleped lollers and londlees;
 Who toteth on hem, they been untall.
 They ben arayed all for the pees; 75
 But falshed, foul mote it befall!
 Many a countrey have I sought,
 To know the falser of these two;
 But ever my travail was for nought,
 All so fer as I have go. 80
 But as I wandred in a wro,
 In a wode besyde a wall,
 Two foules saw I sitte tho;
 The falser, foul mote him befall!

That oon did plede on the Popes syde, 85
 A Griffon of a grim stature.
 A Pellicane withouten pryde
 To these lollers layde his lure;
 He mused his matter in mesure,
 To counsayl Christ ever gan he call. 90
 The Griffon shewed as sharp as fyre,
 But falshed, foul mote it befall!

The Pellican began to preche
 Both of mercy and of mekeness;
 And sayd, that "Christ so gan us teche, 95
 And meke and merciable gan bless.
 The Evangely bereth witness
 A lamb, he lyketh Christ over-all,
 In tokening that he mekest was,
 Sith pryde was out of heven fall. 100

And so shulde every Christned be;
 Preestes, Peters successours,
 Beth lowlich and of low degree,
 And usen none erthly honours,
 Neyther crown, ne curious cove[r]tours, 105
 Ne †pelure, ne other proudë pall;
 Ne nought to cofren up greet tresours;
 For falshed, foul mote it befall!

Preest[e]s shuld for no cattel plede,
 But chasten hem in charitè; 110
 Ne to no batail shuld men lede
 For inhaunsing of hir own degree;
 Nat wilnë sittings in hy see,
 Ne soverayntè in hous ne hall;
 All worldly worship defye and flee; 115

 I-paynted and portred all in pryde; 135
 No commun knight may go so gay.
 Chaunge of clothing every day,
 With golden girdles grete and small;
 As boystous as is bere at bay;
 All such falsched mot nedë fall. 140

With prydë †punysheth the pore,
 And somë they sustayn with sale;
 Of holy churche maketh an hore,
 And filleth hir wombe with wyne and ale;
 With money filleth many a male, 145

And Christes people proudly curse 165
 With brode bokes, and braying bell;
 To putte pennyes in hir purse
 They woll sell both heven and hell;
 And in hir sentence, and thou wilt dwell,
 They willen gesse in hir gay hall; 170
 And though the soth thou of hem tell,
 In greet cursinge shalt thou fall.

That is blessed, that they blesse,
 And cursed, that they cursë woll;
 And thus the people they oppresse, 175

Peter was never so great a fole
 To leve his key with such a lorell,
 Or to take such cursed such a tole 375
 He was advysed nothing well.
 I trowe, they have the key of hell;
 †Hir maister is of that place marshall;
 For there they dresen hem to dwell,
 And with fals Lucifer there to fall. 380

They ben as proude as Lucifer,
 As angry, and as envious;
 From good fayth they ben full fer,
 In covetyse they ben curious;
 To catche catell as covytous 385
 As hound, that for hunger woll yall;
 Ungoodly, and ungracious;
 And nedely, such falsed shal foul fall!

The pope, and he were Peters heyr,
 Me think, he erreth in this cas, 390
 Whan choyse of bishoppes is in dispeyr,
 To chosen hem in dyvers place;
 A lord shall write to him for grace,
 For his clerke †pray anon he shall;
 So shall he spede[n] his purchas; 395
 And all such falsë, foule hem fall!

Though he †conne no more good,
 A lordes prayer shal be sped;
 Though he be wild of will or wood,
 Nat understanding what men han red, 400
 A boster, and (that god forbede!)
 As good a bishop †as my hors Ball,
 Suche a pope is foule be-sted,
 And at [the] lastë woll foul fall!

He maketh bishops for erthly thank, 405
 And nothing for Christes sake;
 Such that ben ful fatte and rank,
 To soule hele non hede they take.
 Al is well don what ever they make,
 For they shal answere at tones for all; 410
 For worldes thank, such worch and wake,
 And all such falsë shall foul fall!

Suche that tconnë nat hir Crede
 With prayer shull be mad prelates;
 Nother tconne the gospell rede, 415
 Such shull now welde hye estates.
 The hye goodes frendship hem makes,
 They toteth on hir somme totall;
 Such bere the keyes of hell-yates,
 And all such falsë shall foul fall. 420

They forsake, for Christes love,
 Traveyl, hunger, thurst, and cold;
 For they ben ordred ever all above
 Out of youthe til they ben old.
 By the dore they go nat in-to the fold, 425
 To helpe thir sheep they nought travall;
 Hyred men all suche I holde,
 And all such falsë, foule hem fall!

For Christ hir king they woll forsake,
 And knowe him nought for his povert; 430
 For Christes lovë they woll wake,
 And drink pyment [and] ale apart.
 Of god they seme nothing a-ferd;
 As lusty liveth, as Lamuall,

Christ hath twelve apostels here ;
 Now say they, ther may be but oon,
 That may nat erre in no manere ;
 Who leveth nat this, ben lost echoon ! 440
 Peter erred, so dide nat John ;
 Why is he cleped the principall ?
 Christ cleped him Peter, but himself the stoon ;
 All falsë faytours, foule hem fall !

Why cursen they the croysery, 445
 Christes Christen crëatures ?
 For bytwene hem is now envy
 To be enhaunsed in honours.
 And Christen livers, with hir labours,
 For they leve on no man mortall, 450
 †Ben do to dethe with dishonours ;

What knoweth a tillour at the plow
 The popes name, and what he hat ?
 His crede suffyseth him y-now, 455
 And knoweth a cardinall by his hat.
 Rough is the pore, unrightly lat,
 That knoweth Christ his god royall ;
 Such maters be nat worth a gnat ;
 But such false faytours, foule hem fall ! 460

A king shall knele and kisse his sho ;
 Christ suffred a sinfull kisse his feet.
 Me thinketh, he holdeth him hye y-now,
 So Lucifer did, that hye †seet.
 Such oon, me thinketh, him-self foryet, 465

PART II.

TO accomde with this wordë "fal"
 No more English can I find;
 Shewe another now I shall,
 For I have moche to say behind, 480
 How preëstes han the people pynd,
 As curteys Christ hath me [y-]kend,
 And put this matter in my mind
 To make this maner men amend.

Shortly to shende hem, and shewe now 485
 How wrongfully they worche and walke;
 O hye god, nothing they tell, ne how,
 But in goddes word, †tell many a balke.
 In hernes holde hem and in halke,
 And prechin of tythes and offrend, 490
 And untruely of the gossell talke;
 For his mercy, god it amend!

What is Antichrist to say
 But evin Christes adversáry?
 Such hath now ben many a day 495
 To Christes bidding full contráry,
 That from the trouthë clenë vary;
 Out of the wayë they ben wend;
 And Christes people untruely cary;
 God, for his pitè, it amend! 500

That liven contráry to Christes lyf,
 In hye pride agaynst mekenesse;
 Agaynst suffraunce they usen stryf,
 And angre ayenst sobrenesse;
 Agaynst wisdom, wilfulnesse; 505
 To Christes tales litell tend;
 Agaynst mesúre, outragiousnesse;
 But whan god woll, it may amend!

Lordly lyf ayenst lowlinesse,
 And demin all without mercy; 510
 And covetyse ayenst largesse,
 Agaynst trewth[e], trechery;
 And agaynst almesse, envy;
 Agaynst Christ they comprehend.
 For chastitè, they maynteyn lechery; 515
 God, for his gracë, this amend!

Ayenst penaunce they use delytes,
 Ayenst suffraunce, strong defence;
 Ayenst god they use yvel rightes,
 Agaynst pitè, punishments; 520
 Open yvell ayenst continence;
 Hir wicked winning wors dispence;

 Sucour for suchë Christ now sende us,
 And, for his mercy, this amend! 540

A token of Antichrist they be,
 His careckes ben now wyde y-know;
 Receyved to preche shall no man be Without[ë] token of him, I trow.
 Ech Christen preest to prechen ow, 545
 From god abovë they ben send.
 Goddes word to all folk for to show,
 Sinfull man for to amend.

Christ sente the pore for to preche;
 The royall riche he did nat so; 550
 Now dar no pore the people teche,
 For Antichrist is over-all hir fo.
 Among the people he mot go;
 He hath bidden, all such suspend;
 Some hath he hent, and thinketh yet mo; 555
 But all this god may well amend

 Christ sayd, his [servaunts] shulde be shend;
 Ech man ought herof be glad;
 For god ful well it woll amend.

They take on hem royáll powére, 565
 And saye, they havë swerdes two,
 Oon curse to hell, oon slee men here;
 For at his taking Christ had no mo,
 Yet Peter had [that] oon of tho.
 But Christ to Peter smyte gan defend, 570
 And in-to the sheth bad putte it tho;
 And all such mischeves god amend!

Christ bad Peter kepe his sheep,
 And with his swerde forbad him smyte;
 Swerd is no tole with sheep to kepe 575
 But to shep[h]erdes that sheep woll byte.
 Me thinketh, suche shep[h]erdes ben to wyte
 Ayen hir sheep with swerd that contend;
 They dryve hir sheep with greet dispyte;
 But al this god may well amend. 580

So successours to Peter be they nought
 Whom [that] Christ madë cheef pastour;
 A swerd no shep[h]erde usen ought
 But he wold slee as a bochour.
 For who-so were Peters successour 585
 Shuld bere his sheep till his bak bend,

Successours to Peter ben these
 In that that Peter Christ forsook, 590
 That had lever the love of god [to] lese
 Than a shep[h]erde had to lese his hook.
 He culleth the sheep as doth the cook;
 Of hem [they] taken the woll untrend,
 And falsely glose the gospell-book; 595
 God, for his mercy, þem amend!

After Christ had take Peter the kay,
 Christ sayd, he mustē dye for man;
 That Peter to Christ gan withsay;
 Christ þad him, 'go behind, Sathan!' 600
 Such counsaylours many of these men han
 For worlde's wele, god to offend;
 Peters successours they ben for-than,
 But all such god may well amend.

For Sathan is to say no more 605
 But he that contrary to Christ is;
 In this they lernē Peters lore,
 They sewen him whan he did mis;
 They folowe Peter forsothe in this,
 In al that Christ wolde þim reprende, 610
 Nat in that that longeth to hevin blis;
 God for his mercy hem amend!

Some of the apostels they sewen in cas,
 Of ought that I can understonde,
 Him that betrayed Christ, Judas, 615
 That bar the purse in every londe;
 And al that he might sette on honde,
 He hidde and stal, and [gan] mispend;
 His rule these traytours han in honde;
 Almighty god [now] hem amend! 620

 Cursedly, through his covetyse;
 So wolde these trayen him for money,
 And they wisten in what wyse!
 They be seker of the selfe ensyse; 625
 From all sothnesse they ben frend;
 And covetyse chaungen with queyntyse;
 Almighty god all suche amend!

Were Christ on erthē here eft-soon,
 These wolde dampnē him to dye; 630
 All his hestes they han fordon,
 And sayn, his sawes ben heresy;
 Ayenst his tmaundēments they cry,
 And dampne all his to be [y-]brend;
 For it lyketh nat hem, such losengery; 635
 God almighty hem amend!

These han more might in England here
 Than hath the king and all his lawe,
 They han purchased hem such powére
 To taken hem whom [they] list nat knawe; 640
 And say, that heresy is hir sawe,
 And so to prison woll hem send;
 It was nat so by elder dawe,
 God, for his mercy, it amend!

The kinges lawe wol no man deme 645
 Angerliche, withouten answe;e;
 But, if any man these misqueme,
 He shal be baited as a bere;
 And yet wel wors they woll him tere,
 And in prisón woll hem [be] pend 650

 Hir officers han gretter fee ;
 But this mischeef [may] god amend ! 660

For who-so woll prove a testament
 Thát is natt all worth ten pound,
 He shall paye for the parchement
 The third part of the money all round.
 Thus the people is raunsound, 665
 They say, such part to hem shulde apend ;
 There as they grypen, it goth to ground ;
 God, for his mercy, it amend !

A simple fornicacioun,
 Twenty shillings he shall pay ; 670
 And than have an absolucioun,
 And al the yere usen it forth he may !
 Thus they letten hem go a-stray,
 They recke nat though the soul be brend ;
 These kepin yvell Peters key, 675
 And all such shep[h]erdes god amend !

Wonder is, that the parliament
 And all the lordes of this lond
 Here-to taken so litell entent
 To helpe the people out of hir hond ; 680
 For they ben harder in thir bond,
 Wors bete[n] and [more] bitter brend

 And to warne men of hir wo
 And to tell hem trouth and right.
 The sacraments be soulë-hele
 If they ben used in good use ;
 Ayenst that speke I never a del, 1195

The Griffon grinned as he were wood,
 And loked lovely as an owle!
 And swor, by cockes hertë blood,
 He wolde him terë, every doule!
 "Holy churche thou disclaundrest foule!
 For thy resons I woll thee all to-race;
 And make thy flesh to rote and moule;

III. JACK UPLAND.

I, JACK UPLANDE, make my mone to very god and to all true belevinge in Christ, that Antichrist and his disciples, by colour of holines, walken and deceiven Christes church by many fals figures, wherethrough, by Antichrist and his, many vertues been transposed to vices. 5

But the fellest folk that ever Antichrist found been last brought into the church, and in a wonder wyse; for they been of divers sectes of Antichrist, sowed of divers countrees and kinredes. And all men knowen wel, that they ben not obedient to bishoppes, ne lege men to kinges; neither they tillen ne sowen, weden, ne repen woode, corn, ne gras, neither nothing that man shuld helpe but only hem-selves, hir lyves to sustein. And these men han all maner power of god, as they sayen, in heaven and in earth, to sell heaven and hell to whom that hem lyketh; and these wrecches wete never where to been 15 themselves.

And therfore, frere, if thine order and rules ben grounded on goddes law, tell thou me, Jack Upland, that I aske of thee; and if thou be or thinkest to be on Christes syde, kepe thy pacience.

Saynt Paul techeth, that al our dedes shuld be don in charitè, 20 and els it is nought worth, but displesing to god and harm to oure owne soules. And for because freres chalengen to be gretest clerkes of the church, and next folowinge Christ in livinge, men shulde, for charitè, axe hem some questions, and 25 pray hem to grounde their answers in reson and in holy writ ; for els their answeere wolde nought be worth, be it florished never so faire ; and, as me think, men might skilfully axe thus of a frere.

1. Frere, how many orders be in erthe, and which is the perfitest order ? Of what order art thou ? Who made thyn 30 order ? What is thy rule ? Is there ony perfiter rule than Christ himselke made ? If Christes rule be moost perfit, why rulest thou thee not therafter ? Without more, why shall a frere be more punished if he breke the rule that his patron made, than if he breke the hestes that god himself made ?

35 2. Approveth Christ ony more religions than oon, that saynt James speketh of. If he approveth no more, why hast thou left his rule, and taken another ? Why is a frere apostata, that leveth his order and taketh another secte ; sith there is but oon religion of Christ ?

40 3. Why be ye wedded faster to your habits than a man is to his wyfe ? For a man may leve his wyf for a yere or two, as many men do ; and if + ye leve your habit a quarter of a yere, ye shuld be holden apostatas.

4. Maketh youre habit you men of religion, or no ? If it 45 do, than, ever as it wereth, your religion wereth ; and, after that the habit is better, is you[r] religion better. And whan ye ligen it besyde you, than lig ye youre religion besyde you, and ben apostatas. Why by ye you so precious clothes, sith no man seketh such but for vaine glorie, as saynt Gregory saith ?

50 5. What betokeneth youre grete hood, your scaplerye, youre knotted girdel, and youre wyde cope ?

6. Why use ye al oon colour, more then other Christen men do ? What betokeneth that ye been clothed all in one maner clothinge ?

55 7. If ye saye it betokeneth love and charitè, certes, than ye be ofte ypocrites, whan ony of you hateth other, and in that, that ye wollen be said holy by youre clothinge.

freres, sith holines stondeth not in the clothes ?

sith men ought over-al to speke the good and leve the evell ?

10. Why ete you flesh in one house more than in another, if youre rule and youre order be perfit, and the patron that made it ?

11. Why gette ye your dispensacions, to have it more esy ? 65
Certes, either it semeth that ye be unperfit ; or he, that made it so hard that ye may not holde it. And siker, if ye holde not the rule of youre patrons, ye be not than hir freres ; and so ye lye upon youre-selves !

12. Why make ye you as dede men whan ye be professed ; 70 and yet ye be not dede, but more quicke beggars than ye were before ? And it semeth evell a deed man to go aboute and begge.

13. Why will ye not suffer youre novices here your counsels in youre chapter-house, er that they been professed ; if youre coun- 75 cels been trew, and after god[d]es lawe ?

14. Why make ye you so costly houses to dwell in ; sith Christ did not so, and dede men shuld have but graves, as falleth to dede men ? And yet ye have more gorgeous buildinges than many lordes of Englonde. For ye maye wenden through the 80 realme, and ech night, wel nigh, ligge in youre owne courtes ;
and so mow but right few lordes do.

15. Why hyre ye to ferme youre limitors, gevinge therfore limitacion, right as ye were your-selves lordes of contreys ? 85

16. Why be ye not under youre bisshops visitacions, and liege men to oure kinge ?

17. Why axe ye no letters of bretherhedes of other mens prayers, as ye desyre that other men shulde aske letters of you ?

18. If youre letters be good, why graunte ye them not generally 90 to al maner men, for the more charitè ?

19. Mow ye make ony man more perfit brother for your prayers, than god hath by oure beleve, by our baptyme and his owne graunte ? If ye mowe, certes, than ye be above god.

53. Frere, what charitè is this—to make so many freres in every countrey, to the charge of the people? Sith persounes and vicarès alone, ye, secular prestes alone, ye, monkes and chanons alone, with bishops above hem, were y-nough to the church, to do prestes office. And to adde mo than y-nough is a foul errour, and greet charge to the people; and this is openly against goddes will, that ordeined all thinges to be don in weight, nomber, and mesure. And Christ himself was apayed with twelve apostles and a few disciples, to preche and do prestes office to all the hole world; than was it better don than it is now at this tyme by a thousand deel. And right so as foure fingers with a thumb in a mannes hande, helpeth a man to worche, and double nomber of fingers in one hond shuld lette him more; and the more nomber that there were, passing the mesure of goddes ordinaunce, the more were a man letted to worke: right so, as it semeth, it is of these newe orders that ben added to the church, without grounde of holy writ and goddes ordinaunce. 280 285 290

54. Frere, what charitè is this—to lye to the people, and saye that ye folowe Christ in povertè more than other men don? And yet, in curious and costly howsinge, and fyne and precious clothing, and delicious and lykinge fedinge, and in tresoure and jewels and riche ornamentes, freres passen lordes and other riche worldly men; and soonest they shuld bringe hir cause aboute, be it never so costly, though goddes lawe be put abacke. 295 300

 310 foles desyren to dye therin more than in an-other? And also, that a frere that leveth his habit (late founden of men), may not be assoiled till he take it again, but is an apostata, as ye sayn, and cursed of god and man both? The frere beleveth treuth and pacience, chastitè, mekenesse, and sobrietè; yet for the more

320 57. Frere, what charitè is this—to prese upon a riche man, and to entyce him to be buried among you from his parish-church, and to suche riche men geve letters of fraternitè confirmed by youre generall sele, and therby to bere him in honde that he shall have part of all your masses, matins, prechinges, fastinges, 325 wakinges, and all other good dedes don by your brethren of youre order (both whyles he liveth and after that he is deed), and yet ye witen never whether youre dedes be acceptable to god, ne whether that man that hath that letter be able by good living to receive ony part of youre dedes? And yet a poore man, that ye

For, as men supposen, suche letters and many other that freres behesten to men, be full of false deceites of freres, out of reson 335 and god[d]es lawe and Christen mens faith.

58. Frere, what charitè is this—to be confessoures of lordes and ladyes, and to other mighty men, and not amend hem in hir living; but rather, as it semeth, to be the bolder to pille hir poore tenauntes and to live in lechery, and there to dwelle in your office of

by colour of suche goostly offices? This seemeth rather pryde of freres than charitè of god.

59. Frere, what charitè is this—to sayn that who-so liveth after youre order, liveth most parfitly, and next foloweth the state of aposteles in povertè and penaunce; and yet the wysest 345 and grettest clerkes of you wende, or sende, or procure to the court of Rome to be mad cardinales or bishoppes or the popes chapelayns, and to be assoiled of the vowe of povertè and obedience to your ministers; in the which, as ye sayn, standeth moost perfeccion and merite of youre orders? And thus ye faren 350 as Pharisees, that sayen oon, and do another to the contrarye.

60. Why name ye more the patron of youre order in youre Confiteor, whan ye beginne masse, than other saintes, as apostels, or marters, that holy church holde[th] more glorious than hem, and clepe hem youre patrons and youre ayowries? 355

61. Frere, whet[h]er was saint Fraunces, in making of his rule that he sette thyn order in, a fole and lyar, or els wyse and trew? If ye sayn that he was not a fole but wyse; ne a lyar, but trew; why shewe ye the contrary by youre doing, whan by youre suggestion to the pope ye said that Fraunces rule was mad so hard that ye might 360 not live to holde it without declaracion and dispensacion of the pope? And so, by youre dede, ye lete your patron a fole, that made a rule so hard that no man may wel kepe [it]; and eke youre dede proveth him a lyar, where he sayeth in his rule, that he took and lerned it of the holy gooste. For how might ye, for shame, 365 praye the pope to undo that the holy goost biddeth, as whan ye prayed him to dispense with the hardnesse of your order?

62. Frere, which of the foure orders of freres is best, to a man that knoweth not which is the beste, but wolde fain enter into the beste and none other? If thou sayest that thyn is the best, than 370 sayest thou that noon of the other is as good as thyn; and in this eche frere in the three other orders wolde say that thou lvest; for in the selve maner eche other frere woll say that his order is beste. And thus to eche of the foure orders ben the other three contrary in this poynte; in the which if ony say sooth, that is oon 375

aloon ; for there may but oon be the beste of foure. So foloweth it, that if ech of these orders answered to this question as thou doest, three were false and but oon trew ; and yet no man shulde wite who that were. And thus it semeth, that the moost part of 380 freres ben or shulde be lyars in this poynt, and they shulde answer therto. If †ye say that an-other ordre of the freres is better than thyn or as good ; why toke ye not rather therto as to the better, whan thou mightest have chosen at the beginning ? And eke, why shuldest thou be an apostata, to leve thyn order
 385 and take thee to that that is better ? And so, why goest thou not from thyn order into that ?

63. Frere, is there any perfiter rule of religion than Christ, goddes sone, gave in his gospell to his brethren, or than that religion that saynt James in his epistle maketh mencion of ? If 390 †ye saye ‘yes,’ than putttest thou on Christ, that is wysdom of god the †fader, uncunning, unpower, or evil will. For eyther than he coude not make his rule so good as an-other did his, (and so he hadde be uncunning, that he might not make his rule so good as another man might, and so were he unmighty and not 395 god) ; or he wolde not make his rule so perfit as an-other did his (and so had he ben evill-willed, namely to himselfe !) For if he might, and coude, and wold[e] have mad a rule perfit without defaute, and did not, he was not goddes sone almighty. For if any other rule be perfiter than Christes, than must Christes rule
 400 lacke of that perfeccion by as much as the other were more perfiter ; and so were defaute, and Christ had failed in makinge of his rule. But to putte any defaute or failinge in god, is blasphemy. If thou saye that Christes rule and that religion that saynt James maketh mencion of, is the perfitest ; why holdest
 405 thou not than thilke rule without more ? And why clepest thou thee rather of saynt Frances or saynt Dominiks rule or religion or order, than of Christes rule or Christes order ?

64. Frere, canst thou assigne any defaute in Christes rule of the gospell, with the whiche he taught al men sikerly to be saved, 410 if they kepte it to hir endinge ? If thou saye it was to hard, than sayest thou that Christ lyed ; for he saide of his rule : ‘ My yoke is softe, and my burthen light.' If thou saye Christes rule was to light, that may be assigned for no defaute, for the better may it be kept. If thou sayst that there is no defaute in Christes rule of the gospell, sith Christ him-selfe saith it is light and esy : 415 what nede was it to patrons of freres to adde more therto, and so to make an harder religion, to save freres, than was the religion that Christes apostels and his disciples helden and weren saved by ; but-if they wolden that her freres saten above the apostels in heven, for the harder religion that they kepen here ? And so 420 wolde they sitten in heven above Christ himselfe for the moo and strait observaunces ; than so shulde they be better than Christ himselfe, with misc[h]aunce !

Go now forth, and frayne youre clerkes,
And grounde you in goddes lawe, and geve Jack answe. 425
And whan ye han assoiled me that I have said, sadly in treuth,

I shall soill thee of thyn order, and save thee to heven !

If freres cunne not or mow not excuse hem of these questions asked of hem, it semeth that they be horrible gilty against god and hir even-Christen ; for which gyltes and defautes it were 430 worthy that the order that they calle hir order were for-don. And it is wonder that men susteyne hem or suffer hem live in suche maner. UNTO THE WORTHY AND NOBLE KINGE HENRY THE FOURTH.

○ NOBLE worthy king, Henry the ferthe,
In whom the gladde fortune is befallē
The people to governe here upon erthe,
God hath thee chose, in comfort of us alle;
The worship of this land, which was doun falle, 5
Now stant upright, through grace of thy goodnesse,
Which every man is holde for to blesse.

The highe god, of his justyce alone,
The right which longeth to thy regalye
Declared hath to stande in thy persone; 10
And more than god may no man justifie.
Thy title is knowe upon thyn auncestrye;
The londes folk hath eek thy right affermed;
So stant thy regne, of god and man confermed.

Ther is no man may saye in other wyse 15
That god him-self ne hath the right declared;
Wherof the land is boun to thy servyse,
Which for defaute of helpe hath longe cared.
But now ther is no mannes herte spared
To love and serve, and worche thy plesaunce; 20
And al this is through goddes purveyaunce.

 This sinful world was al[le] payën tho; 45
 Was noon whiche hath the highe god beleved;
 No wonder was, though thilke world was greved.
 Though a tyraunt his purpos mighte winne,
 Al was vengeance, and infortune of sinne.

But now the faith of Crist is come a-place 50
 Among the princes in this erthe here,
 It sit hem wel to do pitè and grace,
 But yet it mot be tempred in manere.
 For as they fynden cause in the matere

Upon the poynt, what afterward betyde, 55
The lawe of right shal nat be layd a-syde.

So may a king of werre the viage
Ordayne and take, as he therto is holde,
To clayme and aske his rightful heritage
In alle places wher it is with-holde. 60
But other-wyse, if god him-selve wolde
Afferme love and pees between the kinges,
Pees is the beste, above alle erthly thinges.

Good is t'eschewe werre, and nathelees
A king may make werre upon his right; 65
For of bataile the fynal ende is pees;
Thus stant the lawe, that a worthy knight
Upon his trouthe may go to the fight.
But-if so were that he mighte chese,
Betre is the pees of which may no man lese. 70

To sterve pees oughte every man on-lyve,
First, for to sette his liege lord in reste,
And eek these othre men, that they ne stryve;
For so this land may standen atte beste.
What king that wolde be the worthieste, 75
The more he mighte our deedly werre cese,
The more he shulde his worthinesse encrease.

Pees is the cheef of al the worldes welthe,
And to the heven it ledeth eek the way;
Pees is of soule and lyfe the mannes helthe 80
Of pestilence, and doth the werre away.
My liege lord, tak hede of that I say,
If werre may be left, tak pees on honde,
Which may nat be withoute goddes sonde.

With pees stant every crëature in reste, 85
Withoute pees ther may no lyf be glad;
Above al other good, pees is the beste;
Pees hath him-self, whan werre is al bestad;
The pees is sauf, the werre is ever adrad.

My liege lord, if that thee list to seche
The sothe ensamples, what the werre hath wrought,
Thou shalt wel here, of wyse mennes speche,
That deedly werre tourneth in-to nought. 95
For if these olde bokes be wel sought,
Ther might thou see what thing the werre hath do
Bothe of conquest and conquerour also.

For vayne honóur, or for the worldes good,
They that whylom the stronge werres made, 100
Wher be they now? Bethink wel, in thy mood,
The day is goon, the night is derke and fade;
Hir crueltè, which made hem thanne glade,
They sorowen now, and yet have naught the more;
The blood is shad, which no man may restore. 105

The werre is moder of the wronges alle;
It sleeth the preest in holy chirche at masse,
Forlyth the mayde, and doth her flour to falle.
The werre maketh the grete citee lasse,
And doth the lawe his reules overpasse. 110
Ther is nothing, wherof mescheef may growe
Whiche is not caused of the werre, I trowe.

The werre bringth in póverte at his heles,
Wherof the comun people is sore greved;
The werre hath set his cart on thilke wheles 115
Wher that fortune may not be beleved.
For whan men wene best to have acheved,
Ful ofte it is al newe to beginne;
The werre hath nothing siker, thogh he winne.

209

And suffre nat thy people be deuoured ; 125
So shal thy name ever after stande honoured !

If any man be now, or ever was Ayein the pees thy prevy counsaylour,
Let god be of thy counsayl in this cas,
And put away the cruel werreyour. 130
For god, whiche is of man the creatour,
He wolde not men slowe his créature
Withoute cause of deedly forfayture.

Wher nedeth most, behoveth most to loke ;
My lord, how so thy werres be withoute, 135
Of tyme passed who that hede toke,
Good were at home to see right wel aboute ;
For evermore the worste is for to doute.
But, if thou mightest parfit pees attayne,
Ther shulde be no cause for to playne. 140

Aboute a king, good counsayl is to preye
Above al othre thinges most vailable ;
But yet a king within him-self shal peyse
And seen the thinges that be resonable. 145
And ther-upon he shal his wittes stable
Among the men to sette pees in evene,
For love of him whiche is the king of hevene.

A ! wel is him that shedde never blood
But-if it were in cause of rightwysnesse !
For if a king the peril understood 150
What is to slee the people, thanne, I gesse,
The deedly werres and the hevinesse
Wher-of the pees distourbed is ful ofte,
Shulde at som tyme cesse and wexe softe.

O king ! fulfilled of grace and of knighthode, 155
Remembre upon this poynt, for Cristes sake ;
If pees be profred unto thy manhode,

My worthy lord, thenk wel, how-so befallē
Of thilke lore, as holy bokes sayn ;
Crist is the heed, and we be membres alle,
As wel the subject as the soverayn. 165
So sit it wel, that charitè be playn,
Whiche unto god him-selve most accordeth,
So as the lore of Cristes word recordeth.

In th'olde lawe, or Crist him-self was bore,
Among the ten comaundements, I rede, 170
How that manslaughter shulde be forbore ;
Such was the wil, that tyme, of the godhede.
But afterward, whan Crist took his manhede,
Pees was the firste thing he leet do crye
Ayenst the worldes rancour and envye. 175

And, or Crist wente out of this erthe here,
And stigh to heven, he made his testament,
Wher he bequath to his disciples there
And yaf his pees, which is the foundement
Of charitè, withouten whos assent 180
The worldes pees may never wel be tryed,
Ne lovè kept, ne lawè justified.

The Jewes with the payens hadden werre,
But they among hem-self stode ever in pees ;
Why shulde than our pees stonde out of herre, 185
Which Crist hath chose unto his owne encrees ?
For Crist is more than was Moÿses ;
And Crist hath set the parfit of the lawe,
The whiche shulde in no wyse be withdrawe.

To yeve us pees was causè why Crist dyde, 190
Withoute pees may nothing stonde avayled ;
But now a man may see on every syde
How Cristes fayth is every day assayled,
With the payens destroyed, and so batayled

The righte fayth to kepe of holy chirche
The firste poynt is named of knighthode ;
And every man is holde for to wirche
Upon the poynt that stant to his manhode. 200
But now, alas ! the fame is spred so brode
That every man this thing [alday] complayneth ;
And yet is ther no man that help ordayneth.

The worldes cause is wayted over-al ;
Ther be the werres redy, to the fulle ; 205
But Cristes owne cause in special,
Ther ben the swerdes and the speres dulle.
And with the sentence of the popes bulle
As for to doon the folk payen obeye,
The chirche is tourned al another weye. 210

It is wonder, above any mannes wit,
Withoute werre how Cristes fayth was wonne ;
And we that been upon this erthē yit
Ne kepe it nat as it was first begonne.
To every crēature under the sonne 215
Crist bad' him-self, how that we shulde preche,
And to the folke his evangely teche.

More light it is to kepe than to make ;
But that we founden mad to-fore the hond
We kepe nat, but lete it lightly slake ; 220
The pees of Crist hath al to-broke his bond.
We reste our-self, and suffren every lond
To slee eche other as thing undefended ;
So stant the werre, and' pees is nat amended.

But though the heed of holy chirche above 225
Ne do nat al his hole businesse
Among the men to sette pees and love,
These kinges oughten, of hir rightwysnesse,
Hir owne cause among hem-self redresse.

If holy chirche after the dewetè
Of Cristes word ne be nat al avysed
To make pees, accord, and unitè
Among the kinges that be now devysed, 235
Yet, natheles, the lawë stant assysed
Of mannes wit, to be so resonable
Withoute that to stande hem-selve stable.

Of holy chirche we ben children alle,
And every child is holde for to bowe 240
Unto the moder, how that ever it falle,
Or elles he mot reson disalowe.
And, for that cause, a knight shal first avowe
The right of holy chirche to defende,
That no man shal the privilege offende. 245

Thus were it good to setten al in evene
The worldes princes and the prelats bothe,
For love of him whiche is the king of hevene;
And if men shulde algate wexen wrothe,
The Sarazins, whiche unto Crist ben lothe, 250
Let men be armed ayenst hem to fighte,
So may the knight his dede of armes righte.

Upon three poynts stant Cristes pees oppressed;
First, holy chirche is in her-self devyded;
Which oughte, of reson, first to be redressed; 255
But yet so high a cause is nat decyded.
And thus, whan humble pacience is pryded,
The remenaunt, which that they shulde reule,
No wonder is, though it stande out of reule.

Of that the heed is syk, the limmes aken; 260

Of miscreants, that seen how we debate ;
Between the two, they fallen in a-midde
Wher now al-day they fynde an open gate. 270
Lo! thus the deedly werre stant al-gate.
But ever I hopè of king Henries grace,
That he it is which shal the pees embrace.

My worthy noble prince, and king anynt,
Whom god hath, of his grace, so preserved, 275
Behold and see the world upon this poynt,
As for thy part, that Cristes pees be served.
So shal thy highe mede be reserved
To him, whiche al shal quyten atte laste ;
For this lyf herè may no whyle laste. 280

See Alisandre, Hector, and Julius,
See Machabeus, David, and Josuë,
See Charlemayne, Godfray, and Arthus
Fulfilde of werre and of mortalitee !
Hir fame abit, but al is vanitee ; 285
For deth, whiche hath the werres under fote,
Hath mad an ende, of which ther is no bote.

So may a man the sothe wite and knowe,
That pees is good for every king to have ;
The fortune of the werre is ever unknowe, 290
But wher pees is, ther ben the marches save.
That now is up, to-morwe is under grave.

The worldes chaunces upon aventure
Ben ever set; but thilke chaunce of pees
Is so behovely to the crëature
That it above al other is peerlees. 305
But it may nat þbe gete, nathelees,
Among the men to lasten any whyle,
But wher the herte is playn, withoute gyle.

The pees is as it were a sacrament
To-fore the god, and shal with wordes playne 310
Withouten any double entendement
Be treted; for the trouthe can nat feyne.
But if the men within hem-self be vayne,
The substaunce of the pees may nat be trewe,
But every day it chaungeth upon newe. 315

But who that is of charitè parfyte,
He voydeth alle sleightes fer awaye,
And set his word upon the same plyte
Wher that his herte hath founde a siker weye;
And thus, whan conscience is trewly weye, 320
And that the pees be handled with the wyse,
It shal abyde and stande, in alle wyse.

Th'apostel sayth, ther may no lyf be good
Whiche is nat grounded upon charitè;
For charitè ne shedde never blood. 325
So hath the werre, as ther, no propertè;
For thilke vertue which is sayd 'pitè'
With charitè so ferforth is acquaynted
That in her may no fals sembla[u]nt be paynted.

Of Constantyn, which is a tale soth,
Whan him was lever his owne deth desyre 340
Than do the yonge children to martyre.
Of crueltee he lefte the quarele;
Pitè he wroughte, and pitè was his hele.

For thilke mannes pitè which he dede
God was pitous, and made him hool at al; 345

 quarti, suus humilis orator Johannes Gower composuit.

Electus Christi, pie rex Henrice, fuisti,
 Qui bene venisti, cum propria regna petisti;
 Tu mala vicisti -que bonis bona restituisti,
 Et populo tristi nova gaudia contribuisti.
 Est mihi spes lata, quod adhuc per te renovata 390
 Succedent fata veteri probitate beata;
 Est tibi nam grata gratia sponte data.
 Henrici quarti primus regni fuit annus
 Quo mihi defecit visus ad acta mea.
 Omnia tempus habent, finem natura ministrat, 395
 Quem virtute sua frangere nemo potest.
 Ultra posse nihil, quamvis mihi velle remansit,
 Amplius ut scribam non mihi posse manet.
 Dum potui, scripsi, sed nunc quia curua senectus
 Turbavit sensus, scripta relinquo scolis. 400
 Scribat qui veniet post me discretior alter,
 Ammodo namque manus et mea penna silent.
 Hoc tamen in fine verborum queso meorum,

And whan this man the pot hath by the stele, 50
 And fully is in his possessioun,
 With that woman he kepeth not to dele,
 After if he may fynden in the toun
 Any woman, his blinde affeccoun
 On to bestowë; evel mote he preve! 55
 A man, for al his othes, is hard to leve!

And, for that every fals man hath a make,
 (As un-to every wight is light to knowe),
 Whan this traitour this woman hath forsake,
 He faste him spedeth un-to his felowe; 60
 Til he be there, his herte is on a lowe;
 His fals deceyt ne may him not suffyse,
 But of his treson telleth al the wyse.

Is this a fair avaunt? is this honour,
 A man 'him-self accuse thus, and diffame? 65
 Now is it good, confesse him a traitour,
 And bringe a woman to a sclandrous name,
 And telle how he her body hath do shame?
 No worship may he thus to him conquere,
 But greet esclaundre un-to him and here! 70

To herë? Nay, yet was it no reпреf;
 For al for vertu was it that she wroughte;
 But he that brewed hath al this mischeef,
 That spak so faire, and falsly inward thoughte,
 His be the sclaunder, as it by reson oughte, 75
 And un-to her a thank perpetuel,
 'That in a nede helpe can so wel!

Of Troye—as that the storie telle can—
Betrayed was, through the disceyt of man,
And set on fyre, and al doun over-throwe,
And finally destroyed, as men knowe.

Betrayen men not citees grete, and kinges? 85
What wight is that can shape remedye
Ageynes thise falsly purposed thinges?
Who can the craft such craftes to espye
But man, whos wit ay redy is t'aplye
'To thing that souneth in-to hy falshede? 90
Women, beth ware of mennes sleight, I rede!

And furthermore han thise men in usage
'That, where as they not lykly been to spede,
Suche as they been with a double visage
They prôcuren, for to pursewe hir nede; 95
He prayeth him in his causë to procede,
And largely guerdoneth he his travayle;
Smal witen wommen how men hem assayle!

Another wrecche un-to his felowe seyth:
'Thou fisstest faire! She that thee hath fyred 100
Is fals and inconstaunt, and hath no feyth.
She for the rode of folke is so desyred
And, as an hors, fro day to day is hyred
That, when thou twinneest fro hir companye,
Another comth, and blered is thyn eyë! 105

'Now prikke on fastë, and ryd thy journey
Whyl thou art there; for she, behind thy bak,
So liberal is, she wol no wight with-sey,
But smertly of another take a snak;
For thus thise wommen faren, al the pak! 110

Wher-of procedeth this but of envye?
 For he him-selve her ne winne may,
 He speketh her repreef and vileinye, 115
 As mannes blabbing tonge is wont alway.
 Thus dyvers men ful often make assay
 For to distourben folk in sondry wyse,
 For they may not acheven hir emprise.

Ful many a man eek wolde, for no good, 120
 (That hath in love his tyme spent and used)
 Men wiste, his lady his axing withstood,
 And that he were of her pleyntly refused,
 Or wast and veyn were al that he had mused;
 Wherefore he can no better remedye 125
 But on his lady shapeth him to lye:

'Every womman,' he seyth, 'is light to gete;
 Can noon sey "nay," if she be wel y-soght.
 Who-so may leyser han, with her to trete,
 Of his purpós ne shal he faile noght, 130
 But he on madding be so depe y-brought
 That he shende al with open hoomlinesse;
 That loven wommen nat, as that I gesse!'

To sclauandre wommen thus, what may profyte
 To gentils namely, that hem armen sholde, 135
 And in defence of wommen hem delyte
 As that the ordre of gentillesse wolde?
 If that a man list gentil to be holde,
 He moot flee al that ther-to is contrarie;
 A sclaundring tonge is his grete adversarie. 140

A foul vice is of tonge to be light;

 Lord! so thise men ben trusty in assay!

Al-be-it that man fynde oo woman nyce,
 Inconstant, rechelees, or variable,
 Deynouse or proud, fulfilled of malyce, 150

 Ne folweth nat the wey of her nature. 350

Men seyn : ' our firste moder, natheles,
 Made al man-kynde lese his libertee,
 And naked it of joye, douteles ;
 For goddes hestes disobeyed she,
 Whan she presumed tasten of a tree, 355
 Which god forbad that she nat ete of sholde ;
 And, nad the devel been, namore she wolde.'

Th' envýous swelling that the feend, our fo,
 Had unto man in herte, for his welthe,
 Sente a serpent, and made her for to go 360
 To disceyve Eve ; and thus was mannes helthe
 Beraft him by the fende, right in a stelthe,
 The womman noght knowing of the deceyt ;
 God wot, ful fer was it from her conceyt.

Wherefore I sey, this godē womman Eve 365
 Our fader Adam ne deceyved noght.
 Ther may no man for a deceyt it preve
 Proprely, but-if that she, in her thoght,
 Had it compassed first, er it was wrought;
 And, for swich was nat her impressioun, 370
 Men calle it may no déceyt, by resoun.

No wight deceyveth but he it purpóse;
 The feend this déceyt caste, and nothing she.
 Than is it wrong to demen or suppose
 That she sholde of this harm the cause be. 375
 Wyteth the feend, and his be the maugree;
 And for excused have her innocence,
 Sauf only that she brak obedience.

And touching this, ful fewe men ther been,
 Unnethes any, dar I saufly seye— 380
 Fro day to day, as that men mow wel seen,
 But that the hest of god they disobeye.
 Have this in mynde, sires, I yow preye;
 If that ye be discreet and resonable,
 Ye wol her holde the more excusable. 385

And wher men seyn, ‘in man is stedfastnesse,
 And woman is of her corage unstable,’
 Who may of Adam bere swich witnesse?
 Telleth me this:—was he nat chaungeable?
 They bothe weren in a caas semblable, 390
 Sauf willingly the feend deceyved Eve,
 And so did she nat Adam, by your leve.

Yet was this sinne happy to mankynde,
 The feend deceyved was, for al his sleight;
 For aught he coude him in his sleightes wynde, 395

God, to discharge mankynde of the weight
Of his trespas, cam doun from hevenes height,
And flesh and blood he took of a virgyne,
And suffred deeth, him to deliver of pyne.

And god, to whom ther may nothing hid be, 400
If he in woman knowe had such malyce
As men of hem recorde in generaltee,
Of our lady, of lyf reparatryce,
Nolde han be born; but, for that she of vyce
Was voyde, and of al vertu (wel he wiste) 405
Endowed, of her to be bore him liste.

Her heped vertu hath swich excellence
That al to lene is mannes facultee
To déclare it, and therfor in suspence
Her duë preysing put mot nedes be. 410
But this we witen verrayly, that she,
Next god, the best frend is that to man longeth;
The key of mercy by her girdil hongeth.

And of mercy hath every man swich nede
That, cessing that, farwel the joye of man! 415
Of her power now taketh right good hede;
She mercy may, wol, and purchase can.
Displese her nat, honoureth that womman,
And other wommen alle, for her sake!
And, but ye do, your sorowe shal awake. 420

Thou precious gemme, O martir Margarete,
Of thy blood draddest noon effusioun!
Thy martirdom ne may I nat foryete;
Thou, constant womman in thy passioun,
Overcoom the feendes temptacioun; 425

 Dryve out of rémembrauncë I ne may.

In any boke also wher can ye fynde,
 That of the werkes or the dethe or lyf
 Of Jesu speketh, or maketh any mynde,
 That womman him forsook, for wo or stryf?
 Wher was ther any wight so ententyf
 Abouten him as wommen? Pardee, noon!
 Th'apostels him forsoken, everichoon.

Womman forsook him noght; for al the feyth
 Of holy chirche in womman lefte only.
 This is no lees, for holy writ thus seyth;
 Loke, and ye shal so fynde it, hardely.
 And therefore it may preved be therby,
 That in womman regneth stable constaunce
 And in men is the chaunge and variaunce!

Now holdeth this for ferme and for no lye,
 That this trewe and just commendacioun
 Of wommen is nat told for flaterye,
 Ne to cause hem pryde or elacioun,
 But only, lo! for this entencioun,
 To yeve hem corage of perseveraunce

Our Cristen king, the heir and successour
Un-to Justinians devout tendrenesse
In the feith of Jesu, our redemptour;
And to you, lordes of the Garter, 'flour 5
Of chevalrye,' as men you clepe and calle;
The lord of vertu and of grace auctour
Graunte the fruit of your loos never appalle!

O lige lord, that han eek the lyknesse
Of Constantyn, th'ensaumple and the mirour 10
To princes alle, in love and buxumnesse
To holy chirche, O verray sustenour
And piler of our feith, and werreyour
Ageyn the heresyës bitter galle,
Do forth, do forth, continue your socour! 15
Hold up Cristes baner; lat it nat falle!

VII. A MORAL BALADE.

BY HENRY SCOGAN, SQUYER.

Here foloweth next a Moral Balade, to my lord the Prince, to my lord of Clarence, to my lord of Bedford, and to my lord of Gloucestre, by Henry Scogan; at a souper of feorthe merchande in the Vyntre in London, at the hous of Lowys Johan.

MY noble sones, and eek my lordes dere,
I, your fader called, unworthily,
Sende un-to you this litel tretys here
Writen with myn owne hand full rudely;
Although it be that I not reverently 5
Have writen to your estats, yet I you praye,
Myn unconning taketh benignely
For goddes sake, and herken what I seye.

I complayn sore, whan I remembre me
The sodeyn age that is upon me falle; 10
More I complayn my mispent juventè
The whiche is impossible ayein to calle.

From Th. (Thynne, ed. 1542): collated with A. (Ashmole 59), and Cx. (Caxton); readings also given from H. (Harl. 2251).

Loke ay, goodnesse be in your exercyse,
 That shal you mighty make, at eche assay,

 Passeth wysly this perilous pilgrimage,
 Thinke on this word, and werke it every day;
 That shal you yeve a parfit floured age.

Taketh also hede, how that these noble clerkes
 Write in hir bokes of gret sapience, 50
 Saying, that fayth is deed withouten werkes;
 So is estat withoute intelligence
 Of vertue; and therfore, with diligence,
 Shapeth of vertue so to plante the rote,
 That ye therof have ful experience, 55
 To worship of your lyfe and soules bote.

Taketh also hede, that lordship ne estat,
 Withoute vertue, may not longe endure;
 Thinketh eek how vyce and vertue at debat
 Have been, and shal, whyles the world may dure; 60
 And ay the vicious, by aventure,
 Is overthrowe; and thinketh evermore
 That god is lord of vertue and figure
 Of al goodnesse; and therfore folowe his lore.

My mayster Chaucer, god his soule have! 65
 That in his langage was so curious,
 He sayde, the fader whiche is deed and grave,
 Biquath nothing his vertue with his hous
 Unto his sone; therfore laborious
 Ought ye to be, beseching god, of grace, 70

Here may ye see that vertuous noblesse
 Cometh not to you by way of auncestrye,
 But it cometh thorough leefful besinesse 75
 Of honest lyfe, and not by slogardrye.
 Wherefore in youthe I rede you edefye
 The hous of vertue in so wys manere
 That in your age it may you kepe and gye
 Fro the tempest of worldly wawes here. 80

Thinketh how, betwixë vertue and estat
 There is a parfit blessed mariage;
 Vertue is cause of pees, vyce of debat
 In mannes soule; for which, with ful corage,
 Cherissheth vertue, vyces to outrage: 85
 Dryveth hem away; let hem have no wonning
 In your soules; leseth not the heritage
 Which god hath yeve to vertuous living.

Taketh hede also, how men of povre degree
 Through vertue have be set in greet honour, 90
 And ever have lived in greet prosperitee
 Through cherisshing of vertuous labour.
 Thinketh also, how many a governour
 Called to estat, hath oft be set ful lowe
 Through misusing of right, and for errour, 95
 Therefore I counsaile you, vertue to knowe.

Thus 'by your eldres may ye nothing clayme,'
 As that my mayster Chaucer sayth expresse,
 'But temporel thing, that man may hurte and mayme';
 Than is god stocke of vertuous noblesse; 100
 And sith that he is lord of blessednesse,

Folowe his vertue with ful besinesse,
And of this thing herke how my mayster seyde:—

The firste stok, fader of gentillesse, 105
What man that claymeth gentil for to be
Must folowe his trace, and alle his wittes dresse
Vertu to sewe, and vyces for to flee.
For unto vertu longeth dignitee,
And noght the revers, sauffy dar I deme, 110
Al were he mytre, croune, or diademe.

This firste stok was ful of rightwisnesse,
Trewe of his word, sobre, pitous, and free,
Clene of his goste, and loved besinesse
Ageinst the vyce of slouth, in honestee; 115
And, but his heir love vertu, as dide he,
He is noght gentil, though he riche seme,
Al were he mytre, croune, or diademe.

Vyce may wel be heir to old richesse;
But ther may no man, as men may wel see, 120
Bequethe his heir his vertuous noblesse;
That is appropred unto no degree,
But to the firste fader in magestee
That maketh him his heir, that can him queme,
Al were he mytre, croune, or diademe. 125

Lo here, this noble poete of Bretayne
How hyely he, in vertuous sentence,
The losse in youthe of vertue can complayne;
Wherfore I pray you, dooth your diligence,
For your estats and goddes reverence, 130
T'enprinte vertue fully in your mynde,
That, whan ye come in your juges presence,
Ye be not set as vertules behynde.

Ye lordes have a maner now-a-dayes,
Though oon shewe you a vertuous matere, 135

 Wening that calm wol lastē, yeer by yere, 140
 Right so fare ye, for very ignoraunce.

For very shamē, knowe ye nat, by réson
 That, after an ebbe, ther cometh a flood ful rage?
 In the same wyse, whan youth passeth his sésoun,
 Cometh croked and unweldy palled age; 145
 Sone after comen kalends of dotage;
 And if your youth no vertue have provyded,
 Al men wol saye, fy on your vassalage!
 Thus hath your slouth fro worship you devyded.

Boëce the clerk, as men may rede and see, 150
 Saith, in his Boke of Consolacioun,
 What man desyreth þhave of vyne or tree
 Plentee of fruit, in the ryping sesoun,
 Must ay eschewe to doon oppressioun
 Unto the rote, whyle it is yong and grene; 155
 Ye may wel see, by this conclusioun,
 That youthē vertulees doth mochel tene.

VIII. JOHN LYDGATE.

THE COMPLAINT OF THE BLACK KNIGHT; OR, THE COMPLAINT OF A LOVERES LYFE.

IN May, whan Flora, the fresshe lusty quene,
 The soile hath clad in grene, rede, and whyte,
 And Phebus gan to shede his stremes shene
 Amid the Bole, with al the bemes brighte,
 And Lucifer, to chace away the night, 5
 Ayen the morowe our orizont hath take
 To bidde lovers out of hir sleepe awake,

 And hertes hevy for to recomforte
 From dreriheed of hevy nightes sorowe,
 Nature bad hem ryse, and hem disporte, 10
 Ayen the goodly, gladde, greye morowe;
 And Hope also, with seint Johan to borowe,
 Bad, in dispyt of daunger and dispeyre,
 For to take the hoolsom lusty eyre:

 And with a sigh I gan for to abreyde 15
 Out of my slombre, and sodainly up sterte
 As he, alas! that nigh for sorowe deyde,
 My sekenes sat ay so nigh my herte.
 But, for to finde socour of my smerte,

And many a tree—mo than I can telle;
 And, me befor, I saw a litel welle, 75

 Under an hille, with quikke stremes colde.

The gravel gold, the water pure as glas,
 The bankes rounde, the welle envyrning;
 And softe as veluët the yonge gras 80
 That therupon lustily cam springing;
 The sute of trees aboute compassing
 Hir shadowe caste, closing the welle rounde,
 And al the herbes growing on the grounde.

The water was so hoolsom and vertuous 85
 Through might of herbes growing there besyde,
 Not lyk the welle, wher-as Narcisus
 Y-slayn was, through vengeaunce of Cupyde,
 Where so covertly he didë hyde
 The grayn of cruel dethe upon ech brinke, 90
 That deeth mot folowe, who that ever drinke;

Ne lyk the pittë of the Pegacë

 Nor lyk the welle of pure chastitë
 Which that Dyane with her nymphes kepte, 95
 Whan she naked into the water lepte,
 That slow Acteon with his houndes felle
 Only for he cam so nigh the welle!

Bút this welle, that I here reherce,
 So hoolsom was, that it wolde aswage 100
 Bollen hertes, and the venim perce
 Of pensifheed, with al the cruel rage,

And I, that had, through daunger and disdayne,
 So drye a thrust, thoughte I wolde assaye
 To taste a draughte of this welle, or twayne,
 My bitter langour if it mighte alaye;
 And on the banke anon adoun I lay, 110
 And with myn heed unto the welle I raughte,
 And of the water drank I a good draughte;

Wherof, me thought, I was refreshed wele
 Of the brenning that sat so nigh my herte,
 That verily anon I gan to fele 115
 An huge part relested of my smerte;
 And therewithallë anon up I sterte,
 And thoughte I wolde walke, and see more
 Forth in the parke, and in the holtes hore.

And through a laundë as I yede a-pace 120
 And gan aboute faste to beholde,
 I found anon a délitabie place
 That was beset with treës yonge and olde,
 Whose names here for me shal not be tolde;
 Amidde of whiche stood an herber grene, 125
 That benched was, with colours newe and clene.

This herber was ful of floures inde,
 In-to the whiche as I beholde gan,
 Betwix an hulfere and a wodëbinde,
 As I was war, I saw wher lay a man 130
 In blakke and whyte colour, pale and wan,
 And wonder deedly also of his hewe,
 Of hurtes grene and fresshe woundes newe.

And overmore distrayned with sekenesse,
 Besyde al this, he was, ful greuously; 135
 For upon him he had an hoot accesse,
 That day by day him shook ful pitously;
 So that, for constreynt of his malady
 And hertly wo, thus lying al alone,
 It was a deeth for to here him grone. 140

Wherof astonied, my foot I gan withdrawe, Greetly wondring what it mighte be
 That he so lay, and hadde no felawe,
 Ne that I coude no wight with him see;
 Wherof I hadde routhe, and eek pitè,
 145 And gan anon, so softly as I coude,
 Among the busshes me prively to shroude;

If that I mighte in any wyse espye
 What was the cause of his deedly wo,
 Or why that he so pitously gan crye
 150 On his fortune, and on his ure also;
 With al my might I layde an ere to,
 Every word to marke, what he seyde,
 Out of his swough among as he abrayde.

But first, if I shulde make mencion
 155 Of his persone, and plainly him discryve,
 He was in sothe, without excepcioun,
 To speke of manhode, oon the best on-lyve;
 Ther may no man ayen the trouthe stryve.
 For of his tyme, and of his age also 160 He proved was, ther men shulde have ado,

For oon the beste there, of brede and lengthe
 So wel y-mad by good proporcioun,
 If he had be in his deliver strengthe;
 But thought and seknesse were occasioun
 165 That he thus lay, in lamentacioun,
 Gruffe on the grounde, in place desolat,
 Sole by him-self, awshaped and amat.

And, for me semeth that it is sitting
 His wordes al to putte in remembraunce,
 170 To me, that herdē al his complayning
 And al the groundē of his woful chaunce,
 If ther-withal I may you do plesaunce,

 Thou woful Mirre, that felest my herte blede 180
 Of pitous wo, and myn hand eek quake
 Whan that I wryte, for this mannes sake !

For unto wo accordeth complayning
 And doleful cherë unto hevinesse ;
 To sorowe also, syghing and weping, 185
 And pitous mourning, unto drerinesse ;
 And whoso that shal wryten of distresse
 In party nedeth to knowe felingly
 Cause and rote of al such malady.

But I, alas ! that am of witte but dulle, 190
 And have no knowing of such matere,
 For to discryve and wryten at the fulle
 The woful complaynt, which that ye shal here,
 But even-lyk as doth a skripenere
 That can no more what that he shal wryte, 195
 But as his maister besyde doth endyte ;

Let him of routhe lay to audience,
 With doleful chere and sobre countenaunce,
 To here this man, by ful high sentence,
 His mortal wo and his gret perturbaunce
 215 Cómplayning, now lying in a traunce,
 With lokes upcaste, and with ruful chere,
 Th' effect of whiche was as ye shal here.—

Compleynt.

THE thought oppressed with inward sighes sore,
 The painful lyf, the body languisshing,
 The woful gost, the herte rent and tore, 220
 The pitous chere, pale in compleyning,
 The deedly face, lyk ashes in shyning,
 The salte teres that fro myn eyën falle,
 Parcel declare grounde of my peynes alle:
 Whos herte is grounde to blede in hevinesse; 225
 The thought, resceyt of wo and of compleynt;
 The brest is cheste of dole and drerinesse;
 The body eek so feble and so faynt;
 With hote and colde myn acces is so meynt,
 That now I chiver for defaute of hete, 230
 And, hoot as gleed, now sodainly I swete.
 Now hoot as fyr, now cold as asshes dede,
 Now hoot fro cold, now cold fro hete agayn;
 Now cold as ys, now as coles rede
 For hete I brenne; and thus, betwixe twayne, 235
 I possed am, and al forcast in payne;
 So that my hete plainly, as I fele,
 Of grevous cold is causë, every-deel.
 This is the cold of inward high disdayne,
 Cold of dispyt, and cold of cruel hate; 240
 This is the cold that doth his besy payne
 Ayeines trouthe to fighte and to debate.
 This is the cold that wolde the fyr abate

For ever the better that in trouthe I mente
With al my mighte faythfully to serve,
With herte and al for to be diligent,
The lesse thank, alas ! I can deserve !
Thus for my trouthe Daunger doth me sterve. 250
For oon that shulde my deeth, of mercy, lette
Hath mad despyt newe his sward to whette

Ayeines me, and his arowes to fyle
To take vengeaunce of wilful crueltè ;
And tonges false, through hir sleightly wyle, 255
Han gonne a werre that wil not stinted be ;
And fals Envye, Wrathe, and Enmitè,
Have conspired, ayeines al right and lawe,
Of hir malyce, that Trouthe shal be slawe.

And Male-Bouche gan first the tale telle, 260
To slaundre Trouthe, of indignacioun ;
And Fals-Report so loude rong the belle,
That Misbeleve and Fals-Suspeccioun,
Have Trouthe brought to his dampnacioun,
So that, alas ! wrongfully he dyeth, 265
And Falsnes now his placè occupyeth,

And entred is in-to Trouthes lond,
And hath therof the ful possessioun.
O rightful god, that first the trouthe fond,
How may thou suffre such oppressioun, 270
That Falshood shulde have jurisdiccoun
In Trouthes right, to slee him giltèlees ?
In his fraunchyse he may not live in pees.

Falsly accused, and of his foon forjuged,

He dampned was, and may not ben excused,

 To fayth or ooth the juge list not seen,
 There is no gayn, but he wil be wreke.
 O lord of trouthe, to thee I calle and clepe ; 285
 How may thou see, thus in thy presence,
 Withoute mercy, muredred innocence ?

Now god, that art of trouthe soverain
 And seëst how I lye for trouthe bounde,
 So sore knit in loves fyry chain 290
 Even at the deth, through-girt with many a wounde
 That lykly are never for to sounde,
 And for my trouthe am dampned to the deeth,
 And not abyde, but drawe along the breeth ;

Consider and see, in thyn eternal right, 295
 How that myn herte professed whylom was
 For to be trewe with al my fulle might
 Only to oon, the whiche now, alas !
 Of voluntè, withoute any trespass,
 Myn accusours hath taken unto grace, 300
 And cherissbeth hem, my deth for to purchase.

For I loved oon, ful longë sith agoon,
 With al my herte, body, and ful might,
 And, to be deed, my herte can not goon
 From his hest, but holde that he hath hight ;
 Though I be banished out of her sight, 320
 And by her mouth dampned that I shal deye,
 †To my behest yet I wil ever obeye.

For ever, sithë that the world began,

 Wher-as the false goth freely at hir large.

I take recorde of Palamides, 330
 The trewe man, the noble worthy knight,
 That ever loved, and of his payn no relees ;
 Notwithstanding his manhood and his might
 Love unto him did ful greet unright ;
 For ay the bet he did in chevalrye, 335
 The more he was hindred by envye.

And ay the bet he did in every place
 Through his knighthood and his besy payne,
 The ferther was he from his lady grace,
 For to her mercy mighte he never attayne ; 340
 And to his deth he coude it not refrayne
 For no daungere, but ay obey and serve
 As he best coude, plainly, til he sterve.

 For al his conquest and his worthinesse, 345
 That was of strengthe alone pereles ?

 Beset of golde, for a remembraunce;
 And, for al that, was he set behinde
 With hem that Love liste febly avaunce;
 For [he] him sette last upon a daunce, 355

Phebus also, for al his persaunt light,
 Whan that he wente here in erthe lowe,
 Unto the herte with fresh Venus sight 360
 Y-wounded was, through Cupydes bowe,
 And yet his lady liste him not to knowe.
 Though for her love his herte didē blede,
 She leet him go, and took of him no hede.

What shal I saye of yonge Pirusus? 365
 Of trew Tristram, for al his hye renoun?
 Of Achilles, or of Antonius?
 Of Arcite eke, or of him Palemoun?
 What was the endē of hir passioun
 But, after sorowe, deeth, and than hir grave? 370
 Lo, here the guerdon tha these lovers have!

But false Jason, with his doublenesse,
 That was untrewē at Colkos to Medee,
 And Theseus, rote of unkindēnesse,
 And with these two eek the false Enee; 375
 Lo! thus the falsē, ay in oon degrē,
 Had in love hir lust and al hir wille;
 And, save falshood, ther was non other skille.

Of Thebes eek the false [knight] Arcyte,

For trewe Adon was slayn with the bore
 Amid the forest, in the grene shade;
 For Venus love he feltē al the sore.
 But Vulcanus with her no mercy made;
 The foule chori had many nightes glade, 390
 Wher Mars, her worthy knight, her trewe man,
 To finde mercy, comfort noon he can.

Also the yonge fresshe Ipomenes
 So lusty free [was], as of his corage,
 That for to serve with al his herte he chees 395
 Athalans, so fair of hir visage;
 But Love, alas! quitte him so his wage
 With cruel daunger plainly, at the laste,
 That, with the dethe, guerdonles he paste.

Lo! here the fyne of loveres servyse! 400
 Lo! how that Love can his servaunts quyte!
 Lo! how he can his faythful men despyse,

 Lo! how he doth the swerd of sorowe byte

But lesings, with hir false flaterye,
 Through hir falshede, and with hir doublesnesse,

 Al giltēlees, and wot no cause why 450
 Save for the trouthe that I have had afor
 To her alone to serve faithfully!
 O god of lovē! unto thee I cry,
 And to thy blinde double deitee
 Of this gret wrongē I compleyne me, 455

And to thy stormy wilful variaunce
 Y-meynt with chaunge and gret unstablenesse;
 Now up, now down, so renning is thy chaunce,
 That thee to truste may be no sikernesse.
 I wyte it nothing but thy doublenesse; 460
 And who that is an archer and is †blent
 Marketh nothing, but sheteth as he †went.

And for that he hath no discrecioun,
 Withoute avys he let his arowe go;
 For lakke of sight, and also of resoun, 465
 In his shetinge, it happeth ofte so,
 To hurte his frend rather than his fo;
 So doth this god, [and] with his sharpe floon
 The trewe sleeth, and let the false goon.

And of his wounding this is the worst of alle, 470
 Whan he hurteth, he doth so cruel wreche
 And maketh the seke for to crye and calle

 And hard it is, for a man to seche,
 Upon the point of dethe in jupardye, 475
 Unto his fo, to finde remedye!

Thus fareth it now even by me,

The mighty goddesse also of Nature
That under god hath the governaunce
Of worldly thinges committed to her cure,
Disposed hath, through her wys purveyaunce,

Of al vertues, and therwithal purvyde
To murdre trouthe, hath take Daunger to gyde.

For bountè, beautè, shappe, and semeliheed,
Prudence, wit, passingly fairnesse,
Benigne port, glad chere with lowliheed, 500
Of womanheed right plenteous largesse,
Nature did in her fully empresse,
Whan she her wroughte; and alther-last Disdayne,
To hinder trouthe, she made her chamberlayne;

Whan Mistrust also, and Fals-Suspeccioun, 505
With Misbeleve, she made for to be Cheef of counsayl to this conclusioun,
For to exyle Routhe, and eek Pitè,
Out of her court to make Mercy flee,
So that Dispyt now holdeth forth her reyne, 510

His brighte bemes and his stremes al
Were in the wawes of the water fal,
Under the bordure of our ocëan,
His char of golde his cours so swiftly ran : 595

And whyl the twylight and the rowes rede
Of Phebus light were dëaurat a lyte,
A penne I took, and gan me faste spede
The woful playntë of this man to wryte
Word by wordë, as he did endyte ; 600
Lyk as I herde, and coude him tho reporte,
I have here set, your hertes to disporte.

If ought be mis, layeth the wyte on me,
For I am worthy for to bere the blame
If any thing [here] misreported be, 605
To make this dytë for to seme lame
Through myn unconning ; but, to sayn the same,
Lyk as this man his complaynt did expresse,
I aske mercy and forgivënesse.

And, as I wroot, me thoughte I saw a-ferre, 610
Fer in the weste, lustely appere
Esperus, the goodly brighte sterre,
So glad, so fair, so persaunt eek of chere,
I mene Venus, with her bemes clere,
That, hevy hertes only to releve, 615
Is wont, of custom, for to shewe at eve.

And I, as faste, fel doun on my knee
And even thus to her gan I to preye :—
‘O lady Venus ! so faire upon to see,
Let not this man for his trouthe deye, 620
For that joy thou haddest whan thou leye
With Mars thy knight, whan Vulcanus you fond,
And with a chayne invisible you bond

Togider, bothe twayne, in the same whyle
 That al the court above celestial 625
 At youre shame gan for to laughe and smyle!
 A! fairë lady! welwilly founde at al,
 Comfort to careful, O goddesse immortal!
 Be helping now, and do thy diligence
 To let the stremes of thyn influence 630

Descende doun, in forthering of the trouthe,
 Namely, of hem that lye in sorowe bounde;
 Shew now thy might, and on hir wo have routhe
 Er fals Daunger slee hem and confounde.
 And specially, let thy might be founde 635
 For to socourë, what-so that thou may,
 The trewe man that in the herber lay,

And alle trewe forther, for his sake,
 O gladde sterre, O lady Venus myne!
 And cause his lady him to grace take. 640
 Her herte of stele to mercy so enclyne,
 Er that thy bemes go up, to declyne,
 And er that thou now go fro us adoun,
 Fór that love thou haddest to Adoun!'

And whan that she was gon unto her reste, 645
 I roos anon, and hoom to bedde wente,
 For verily, me thoughte it for the beste;
 Prayinge thus, in al my best entente,
 That alle trewe, that be with Daunger shente,
 With mercy may, in reles of hir payn, 650
 Recured be, er May come eft agayn.

And for that I ne may no lenger wake,
 Farewel, ye lovers alle, that be trewe!
 Praying to god; and thus my leve I take,
 That, er the sonne to-morowe be risen newe, 655
 And er he have ayein his rosen hewe,
 That eche of you may have suche a grace,
 His owne lady in armes to embrace.

Princesse, plesë it your benignitee
 This litel dytë for to have in mynde !
 Of womanhedë also for to see
 Your trewe man may youre mercy finde ;
 And Pitë eek, that long hath be behinde, 670
 Let him ayein be pròvoked to grace ;
 For, by my trouthe, it is ayeines kinde,
 Fals Daunger for to occupye his place !

Go, litel quayre, unto my lyves queen,
 And my very hertes soverayne ; 675
 And be right glad ; for she shal thee seen ;
 Suche is thy grace ! But I, alas ! in payne

IX. THE FLOUR OF CURTESYE.

IN Fevrier, whan the frosty mone
 Was horned, ful of Phebus fyry light,
 And that she gan to reyse her stremes sone,
 Saint Valentyne! upon thy blisful night
 Of duëtee, whan glad is every wight, 5
 And foules chese (to voyde hir olde sorowe)
 Everich his make, upon the nexte morowe;

The same tyme, I herde a larke singe
 Ful lustely, agayn the morowe gray—
 ‘Awake, ye lovers, out of your slombringe, 10
 This gladde morowe, in al the haste ye may;
 Some óbservaunce doth unto this day,
 Your choise ayen of herte to renewe
 In cónfirming, for ever to be trewe!

And ye that be, of chesing, at your large, 15
 This lusty day, by custome of nature,
 Take upon you the blisful holy charge
 To serve lovë, whyl your lyf may dure,
 With herte, body, and al your besy cure,
 For evermore, as Venus and Cipryde 20
 For you disposeth, and the god Cupyde.

For joye owe we playnly to obeye
 Unto this lordes mighty ordinaunce,

And, mercilesse, rather for to deye
 Than ever in you be founden variaunce; 25
 And, though your lyf be medled with grevaunce,
 And, at your herte, closed be your wounde,
 Beth alway one, ther-as ye are bounde !'

Thát whan I had herd, and listed longe,
 With devout herte, the lusty melodye 30
 Of this hevenly comfortable songe
 So ágreable, as by harmonye,
 I roos anon, and faste gan me hye
 Toward a grove, and the way [gan] take Foules to sene, everich chese his make. 35

And yet I was ful thursty in languissching ;
 Myn ague was so fervent in his hete,
 Whan Aurora, for drery complayning,
 Can distille her cristal teres wete
 Upon the soile, with silver dewe so swete; 40
 For she [ne] durste, for shame, not apere
 Under the light of Phebus bemes clere.

And so, for anguisshe of my paynes kene,
 And for constraynte of my sighes sore,
 I sette me down under a laurer grene 45
 Ful pitously ; and alway more and more,
 As I beheld into the holtes hore,
 I gan complayne myn inward deedly smerte,
 That ay so sore †crampisshed myn herte.

And whyl that I, in my drery payne, 50
 Sat, and beheld aboute on every tree
 The foules sitten, alway twayne and twayne,
 Than thoughte I thus : 'alas ! what may this be,
 That every foul hath his libertee
 Frely to chesen after his desyre 55
 Everich his make thus, fro yeer to yere ?

The sely wrenne, the titmose also,
 The litel redbrest, have free eleccioun
 To flyen y-ferë and †togider go
 Wher-as hem liste, abouten enviroun, 60
 As they of kynde have inclinacoun,
 And as Nature, emperesse and gyde,
 Of every thing, liste to provyde ;

But man aloon, alas ! the harde stounde !
 Ful cruelly, by kyndes ordinaunce, 65
 Constrayned is, and by statut bounde,
 And debarred from alle such plesaunce.
 What meneth this ? What is this purveyaunce
 Of god above, agayn al right of kynde,
 Withoute cause, so narowe man to bynde ?' 70

Thus may I [soothly] seen, and playne, alas !
 My woful houre and my disaventure,
 That dolefully stonde in the same cas
 So fer behyndë, from al helth and cure.
 My wounde abydeyth lyk a sursanure ; 75
 For me Fortune so felly list dispose,
 My harm is hid, that I dar not disclose.

For I my herte have set in suche a place
 Wher I am never lykly for to spede ;
 So fer I am hindred from her grace 80
 That, save daunger, I have non other mede.
 And thus, alas ! I not who shal me rede
 Ne for myn helpe shape remedye,
 For Male-bouche, and for false Envye :

The whiche twayne ay stondeth in my wey 85
 Maliciously ; and Fals Suspeccioun
 Is very causë also that I dey,

With hir traynes that they wol me shende, 90
Of my labour that deth mot make an ende!

Yet, or I dye, with herte, wil, and thought
To god of lovè this avowe I make,
(As I best can, how dere that it be bought,
Wher-so it be, that I slepe or wake, 95
Whyl Boreas doth the leves shake)
As I have hight, playnly, til I sterve,
For wele or wo, that I shal [ay] her serve.

And, for her sake, now this holy tyme,
Saint Valentyne! somewhat shal I wryte 100
Al-though so be that I can not ryme,
Nor curiously by no crafte endyte,
Yet lever I have, that she putte the wyte
In unconning than in negligence,
What-ever I sayë of her excellence. 105

What-ever I saye, it is of duëtee,
In sothfastnesse and no presumpcioun;
This I ensure to you that shal it see,
That it is al under correccioun;
What I reherce in commendacioun 110
Of herë that I shal to you, as blyve,
So as I can, her vertues here discryve. —

¶ Right by example as the somer-sonne
Passeth the sterre with his bemes shene,
And Lucifer among the skyës donne 115
A-morowe sheweth to voyde nightes tene,
So verily, withouten any wene,
My lady passeth (who-so taketh hede)
Al tho alyve, to speke of womanhede.

And as the ruby hath the soveraintè 120
Of riche stones and the regalyë;
And [as] the rose, of swetnesse and beautè,
Of fresshe floures, withouten any lyë;
Right so, in sothe, with her goodly yë,

She passeth al in bountee and fairnesse, 125
Of maner ekë, and of gentilnesse.

For she is bothe the fairest and the beste,
To reken al in very sothfastnesse;
For every vertue is in her at reste;
And furthermore, to speke of stedfastnesse, 130
She is the rotë; and of seemlinesse
The very mirrour; and of governaunce
To al example, withouten variaunce.

Of port benigne, and wonder glad of chere,
Having evermore her trewe advertence 135
Alway to reson; so that her desyre
Is brydeled ay by witte and providence;
Thereto, of wittë and of hy prudence
She is the wellë, ay devoide of pryde,
That unto vertue her-selven is the gyde! 140

And over this, in her daliaunce
Lowly she is, discret. wyse, [and secree],
And goodly gladde by attemperaunce,
That every wight, of high and low degree,
Are gladde in herte with her for to be; 145
Só that, shortly, if I shal not lye,
She named is 'The Flour of Curtesye.'

And there, to speke of femininitee,
The leste mannish in comparisoun,
Goodly abasshed, having ay pitee 150
Of hem that been in tribulacioun;
For she aloon is consolacioun
To al that arn in mischeef and in nede,
To comferte hem, of her womanhede.

And ay in vertue is her besy charge, 155
Sadde and demure, and but of wordes fewe;
Dredful also of tonges that ben large,
Eschewing ay hem that listen to hewe
Above hir heed, hir wordes for to shewe,

The herte of whom so honest is and clene,
 And her entent so faithful and entere
 That she ne may, for al the world, sustene
 To suffre her eres any word to here, 165
 Of frend nor fo, neither fer ne nere,
 Amis resowning, that hinder shulde his name ;
 And if she do, she wexeth reed for shame.

So trewely in mening she is set,
 Without chaunging or any doublenesse ; 170
 For bountee and beautee ar togider knet
 In her personë, under faithfulnessse ;
 For void she is of newëfangelnesse ;
 In herte ay oon, for ever to perséver
 Ther she is set, and never to dissever. 175

I am to rude her vertues everichoon
 Cunningly [for] to discryve and wryte ;
 For wel ye wot, colour[es] have I noon
 Lyk her discrecioun craftely t'endyte ;
 For what I sayë, al it is to lyte. 180
 Whérfor to you thus I me excuse,
 That I aqueynted am not with no muse !

By rethoryke my style to governe,
 In her preyse and commendacioun,
 I am to blind, so hyly to discerne, 185
 Of her goodnesse to make discripcioun,
 Save thus I sayë, in conclusioun,
 If that I shal shortly [her] commende,

For though that Dydo, with [her] witte sage,
 Was in her tyme stedfast to Enee,
 Of hastinesse yet she did outrage ;
 And so for Jason did also Medee.
 But my lady is so avisee 215
 That, bountee and beautee bothe in her demeyne,
 She maketh bountee alway soverayne.

This is to mene, bountee goth afore,
 Lad by prudence, and hath the soveraintee ;
 And beautee folweth, ruled by her lore, 220

Ever as I can suppryse in my herte,
 Alway with fere, betwixe drede and shame,
 Lest out of lose any word astate
 In this metre, to make it seme lame; 235
 Chaucer is deed, that hadde suche a name
 Of fair making, that [was], withoute wene,
 Fairest in our tonge, as the laurer grene.

We may assaye for to counterfete
 His gaye style, but it wil not be; 240
 The welle is drye, with the licour swete,
 Bothe of Clio and of Caliopè;
 And first of al, I wol excuse me
 To her, that is [the] ground of goodlihede;
 And thus I saye until hir womanhede:— 245

Balade simple.

¶ 'With al my mightë, and my beste entente,
 With al the faith that mighty god of kynde
 Me yaf, sith he me soule and knowing sente,
 I chese, and to this bonde ever I me bynde,
 To love you best, whyl I have lyf and mynde':— 250
 Thus herde I foules in the dawëninge
 Upon the day of saint Valentyne singe.

'Yet chese I, at the ginning, in this entente,
 To love you, though I no mercy fynde;
 And if you liste I dyed, I wolde assente, 255

X. A BALADE; IN COMMENDATION OF OUR LADY.

(A devoute balade by Lidegate of Bury, made at the reverence of oure lady, Qwene of mercy.— A.)

A THOUSAND stories coude I mo reherce
Of olde poetes, touching this matere,
How that Cupyde the hertes gan so perce
Of his servauntes, setting hem on fere;
Lo, here the fyn of th'erroure and the were! 5
Lo, here of love the guerdon and grevaunce
That ever with wo his servaunts doth avaunce!

Wherfor now playnly I wol my style dresse
Of one to speke, at nede that wol nat fayle;
Alas! for dole, I ne can ne may expresse 10
Her passing pryse, and that is no mervayle.
O wind of grace, now blow into my sayle!
O aureat licour of Cleo, for to wryte
My penne enspyre, of that I wolde endyte!

Alas! unworthy I am and unable 15
To love suche oon, al women surmounting,
To be benigne to me, and merciable,

 Right thus I say, kneling tofore her face :—

O sterre of sterres, with thy stremes clere,
 Sterre of the see, to shipmen light and gyde,
 O lusty living, most plesaunt to apere,
 Whos brighte bemes the cloudes may not hyde ; 25
 O way of lyf to hem that go or ryde,
 Haven from tempest, surest up to ryve,
 On me have mercy, for thy joyes fyve !

O rightful rule, O rote of holinesse,
 And lightsom lyne of pitè for to playne, 30
 Original ginning of grace and al goodnesse, Clenest conduit of vertue soverayne,
 Moder of mercy, our trouble to restrayne,
 Chambre and closet clenest of chastitè,
 And named herberwe of the deitè ! 35

O hoolsom garden, al voyde of wedes wikke,
 Cristallin welle, of clennesse clere consigned,
 Fructif olyve, of foyles faire and thikke,
 And redolent cedre, most dereworthly digned,
 Remembre on sinners unto thee assigned 40
 Er wikked fendes hir wrathe upon hem wreche ;
 Lanterne of light, thou be hir lyves leche !

XI. TO MY SOVERAIN LADY.

I HAVE non English convenient and digne
 Myn hertes hele, lady, thee with t'honoure,
 Ivorie clene; therfore I wol resigne
 In-to thyn hand, til thou list socoure
 To help my making bothe florisshe and floure; 5
 Than shulde I shewe, in lovë how I brende,
 In songes making, thy name to commende.

For if I coude before thyn excellence
 Singen in love, I wolde, what I fele,
 And ever standen, lady, in thy presence, 10
 To shewe in open how I love you wele;
 And sith, although your herte be mad of stele,
 To you, withoute any disseveraunce,
Jay en vous toute ma fiaunce.

Wher might I love ever better besette 15
 Than in this lilie, lyking to beholde?
 The lace of love, the bond so wel thou knette,
 That I may see thee or myn herte colde,
 And or I passe out of my dayes olde,
 Tofore singing evermore utterly— 20
 'Your eyën two wol slee me sodainly.'

For love I langour, blissed be such seknesse,
 Sith it is for you, my hertely suffisaunce;
 I can not elles saye, in my distresse,
 So fair oon hath myn herte in governaunce; 25
 And after that I †ginne on esporaunce

From Th. (Thynne, ed. 1532); I note rejected spellings.

With feble entune, though it thyn herte perce,
 Yet for thy sake this lettre I do reherce.
 God wot, on musike I can not, but I gesse,
 (Alas! why so?) that I might say or singe, 30
 So love I you, myn own souverain maistresse,
 And ever shal, withouten départinge.
 Mirrour of beauté, for you out shuld I ringe,
 In rémembraunce eke of your eyen clere,
 Thus fer from you, my souverain lady dere! 35
 So wolde god your love wold me slo,
 Sith, for your sake, I singe day by day;
 Herte, why nilt thou [never] breke 'a-two,
 Sith with my lady dwellen I ne may?
 Thus many a roundel and many a virelay 40
 In fresshe Englysshe, whan I me layser finde,
 I do recorde, on you to have minde!
 Now, lady myn! sith I you love and drede,
 And you unchaunged finde, in o degree,
 Whos grace ne may flye fro your womanhede, 45
 Disdayneth not for to remembre on me!
 Myn herte bledeth, for I may nat you see;
 And sith ye wot my mening désirous,
Pleurez pur moi, si vous plaist amoureux!
 What marveyle is, though I in payne be? 50
 I am departed from you, my souveraine;
 Fortune, alas! dont vient la destenee,
 That in no wyse I can ne may attayne
 To see the beauté of your eyen twayne.
 Wherefore I say, for tristesse doth me grame, 55
Tant me fait mal departir de ma dame!
 Why nere my wisshing brought to suche exploit
 That I might say, for joye of your presence,
 'Ore a mon cuer ce quil veuilloit,
 Ore a mon cuer the highest excellence 60
 That ever had wight;' and sith myn advertence

Is in you, reweth on my paynes smerte,
I am so sore wounded to the herte.

To live wel mery, two lovers were y-fere,
So may I say withouten any blame ; 65
If any man [per cas] to wilde were,
I coude him [sonë] teche to be tame ;
Let him go love, and see wher it be game !
For I am brydled unto sobernesse
For her, that is of women cheef princesse. 70

But ever, whan thought shulde my herte embrace,
Than unto me is beste remedye,
Whan I loke on your goodly fresshe face ;
So mery a mirrour coude I never espye ;
And, if I coude, I wolde it magnifye. 75
For never non was [here] so faire y-founde,
To reken hem al, and also Rosamonde.

And fynally, with mouthe and wil present
Of double eye, withoute repentaunce,
Myn herte I yeve you, lady, in this entent, 80
That ye shal hoolly therof have governaunce ;
Taking my leve with hertes obeysaunce,
'Salve, regina !' singing laste of al,
To be our helpe, whan we to thee cal !

Al our lovë is but ydelnesse 85
Save your aloon ; who might therto attayne ?
Who-so wol have a naïne of gentillesse,
I counsayle him in love that he not fayne.
Thou swete lady ! refut in every payne,
Whos [pitous] mercy most to me avayleth 90
To gye by grace, whan that fortune fayleth.

Nought may be told, withouten any fable,
Your high renome, your womanly beautè ;
Your governaunce, to al worship able,
Putteth every herte in ese in his degree. 95

Sith I am for you so amorous,
Estreynez moy, [lady,] de cuer joyous !

With fervent herte my brest hath broste on fyre ;
L'ardant espoir que mon cuer poynt, est mort, 100
D'avoir l'amour de celle que je desyre,

I mene you, swete, most plesaunt of port,
Et je sai bien que ceo n'est pas mon tort
 That for you singe, so as I may, for mone
 For your departing ; alone I live, alone. 105

Though I mighte, I wolde non other chese ;
 In your servyce, I wolde be founden sad ;
 Therfore I love no labour that ye lese,
 Whan, in longing, sorest ye be stad ;
 Loke up, ye lovers [alle], and be right glad 110
 Ayeines sëynt Valentynes day,
 For I have chose that never forsake I may !

XII. BALLAD OF GOOD COUNSEL.

CONSIDER wel, with every circumstance,
 Of what estat so-ever that thou be—
 Riche, strong, or mighty of puissaunce,
 Prudent or wyse, discrete or avisee,
 The doom of folke in soth thou mayst nat flee ; 5
 What-ever that thou do, trust right wel this,
 A wikked tonge wol alway deme amis.

For in thy port or in thyn apparayle
 If thou be clad or honestly be-seyn,
 Anon the people, of malice, wol nat fayle, 10
 Without advyce or reson, for to sayn
 That thyn array is mad and wrought in vayn ;
 What ! suffre hem speke !—and trust right wel this,
 A wikked tonge wol alway deme amis.

Thou wilt to kinges be equipolent, 15
 With gretē lordes even and peregal ;
 And, if thou be to-torn and al to-rent,
 Than wol they say, and jangle over-al,
 Thou art a slogard, that never thryvë shal ;
 Yet suffre hem speke !—and trust right wel this, 20
 A wikked tonge wol alway deme amis.

XIII. BEWARE OF DOUBLENESSE.

(Balade made by Lydgate.)

THIS world is ful of variaunce
In every thing, who taketh hede,
That faith and trust, and al constaunce,
Exyled ben, this is no drede;
And, save only in womanhede, 5
I can [nat] see no sikernesse;
But for al that, yet, as I rede,
Be-war alway of doublenesse.

Also these fresshe somer-floures
Whyte and rede, blewe and grene, 10
Ben sodainly, with winter-shoures,
Mad feinte and fade, withoute wene;
That trust is non, as ye may seen,
In no-thing, nor no stedfastnesse,
Except in women, thus I mene; 15
Yet ay be-war of doublenesse.

The croked mone, this is no tale,
Som whyle is shene and bright of hewe,
And after that ful derk and pale,
And every moneth chaungeth newe; 20
That, who the verray sothe knewe,
Al thing is bilt on brotelnesse,
Save that these women ay be trewe;
Yet ay be-war of doublenesse.

 Towardes night, they drawe away,
 And no lenger liste appere;
 That, in this present lyf now here
 Nothing abyt in his fairnesse, 30
 Save women ay be founde intere
 And devoid of doublesnesse.

The see eke, with his sterne wawes,
 Ech day floweth newe again,
 And, by concours of his lawes, 35
 The ebbe foloweth, in certain;
 After gret drought ther comth a rain,
 That farewel here al stabelnesse,
 Save that women be hole and plain;
 Yet ay be-war of doublesnesse. 40

Fortunes wheel goth round aboute
 A thousand tymes, day and night:
 Whos cours standeth ever in doute
 For to transmew; she is so light.
 For which adverteth in your sight 45
 Th'untrust of worldly fikelnesse,
 Save women, which of kindly right
 Ne have no tache of doublesnesse.

 Or holde a snake by the tail, 50
 Or a sliper eel constraine
 That it nil voide, withouten fail;
 Or who can dryve so a nail
 To make sure new-fangelnesse,
 Save women, that can gye hir sail 55
 To rowe hir boot with doublesnesse.

XIV. A BALADE: WARNING MEN TO BEWARE OF DECEITFUL WOMEN.

L OKE wel aboute, ye that lovers be ;
 Lat nat your lustes lede you to dotage ;
 Be nat enamoured on al thing that ye see.
 Sampson the fort, and Salamon the sage Deceived were, for al hir gret corage ; 5
 Men deme hit is right as they see at y ;
 Bewar therfore ; the blinde et many a fly.

I mene, in women, for al hir cheres queinte,
 Trust nat to moche ; hir trouthe is but geson ;
 The fairest outward ful wel can they peinte, 10
 Hir stedfastnes endureth but a seson ;
 For they feyn frendlines and worchen treson.
 And for they be chaungeable naturally,
 Bewar therfore ; the blinde et many a fly.

Though al the world do his besy cure 15
 To make women stonde in stablenes,
 Hit may nat be, hit is agayn nature ;
 The world is do whan they lak doublenes ;
 For they can laughe and love nat ; this is expres.
 To trust in hem, hit is but fantasy ; 20
 Bewar therfore ; the blind et many a fly.

XV. THREE SAYINGS.

(A). A SAYING OF DAN JOHN.

THER beth four thinges that maketh a man a fool,
 Hónour first putteth him in outrage,
 And alder-next solitarie and sool;
 The second is unwelgy croked age;
 Women also bring men in dotage; 5
 And mighty wyne, in many dyvers wyse,
 Distempreth folk which [that] ben holden wyse.

(B). YET OF THE SAME.

THER beth four thinges causing gret folye,
 Honour first, and [than] unwelgy age;
 Women and wyne, I dar eek specifye,
 Make wyse men [to] fallen in dotage;
 Wherefore, by counseil of philosophers sage, 5
 In gret honour, lerne this of me,
 With thyn estat have [eek] humilitee.

(C). BALADE DE BON CONSAIL.

IF it befallé, that god thee list visyte
 With any tourment or adversitee,
 Thank first the lord; and [than], thyself to quyte,
 Upon suffrauncē and humilitee
 Found thou thy quarrel, what-ever that it be; 5
 Mak thy defence (and thou shalt have no losse)

XVI. LA BELLE DAME SANS MERCY.

TRANSLATED OUT OF FRENCH BY SIR RICHARD ROS.

HALF in a dreme, not fully wel awaked,
The golden sleep me wrapped under his wing;
Yet nat for-thy I roos, and wel nigh naked,
Al sodaynly my-selve rémembring
Of a maté, leving al other thing 5
Which I shold do, with-uten more delay,
For hem to whom I durst nat disobey.

My charge was this, to translate by and by,
(Al thing forgive), as part of my penaunce,
A book called Belle Dame sans Mercy 10
Which mayster Aleyn made of rémembraunce,
Cheef secretarie with the king of Fraunce.
And ther-upon a whyle I stood musing,
And in my-self gretly imagening

What wyse I shuld performe the sayd processe, 15
Considering by good avysement
Myn unconning and my gret simplenesse,

And ayenward the strait commaundement
Which that I had; and thus, in myn entent,
I was vexed and tourned up and down; 20
And yet at last, as in conclusioun,

I cast my clothes on, and went my way,
This foresayd charge having in rémembraunce,
Til I cam to a lusty green valey
Ful of floures, to see, a gret plesaunce; 25
And so bolded, with their benygn suffraunce
That rede this book, touching this sayd matere,
Thus I began, if it plese you to here.

NAT long ago, ryding an esy paas,
I fel in thought, of joy ful desperate 30
With greet disese and payne, so that I was
Of al lovers the most unfortunate,
Sith by his dart most cruel, ful of hate,
The deeth hath take my lady and maistresse,
And left me sole, thus discomfit and mate, 35
Sore languissching, and in way of distresse.

Than sayd I thus, 'it falleth me to cesse Eyther to ryme or ditees for to make,
And I, surely, to make a ful promesse
To laugh no more, but wepe in clothes blake. 40
My joyful tyme, alas! now is it slake,
For in my-self I fele no maner ese;
Let it be written, such fortune I take,
Which neither me, nor non other doth plese.

If it were so, my wil or myn entent 45
Constrayned were a joyful thing to wryte,
Myn pen coud never have knowlege what it ment;
To speke therof my tonge hath no delyte.

These seke lovers, I leve that to hem longes,
 Which lede their lyf in hope of alegeaunce,
 That is to say, to make balades and songes, 55
 Every of hem, as they fele their grevaunce.
 For she that was my joy and my plesaunce,
 Whos soule I pray god of his mercy save,
 She hath my wil, myn hertes ordinaunce,
 Which lyeth here, within this tombe y-grave. 60

Fro this tyme forth, tyme is to hold my pees;
 It werieth me this mater for to trete;
 Let other lovers put hem-self in prees;
 Their seson is, my tyme is now forge-te. 65
 Fortune by strength the forcer hath unshet
 Wherin was sperd al my worldly richesse,
 And al the goodes which that I have gete
 In my best tyme of youthe and lustinesse.

Love hath me kept under his governaunce;
 If I misdid, god graunt me forgifnesse! 70
 If I did wel, yet felte I no plesaunce;
 It caused neither joy nor hevinesse.
 For whan she dyed, that was my good maistresse,
 Al my welfare than made the same purchas;
 The deeth hath set my boundes, of witnes, 75
 Which for no-thing myn hert shal never pas.'

In this gret thought, sore troubled in my mynde,
 Aloon thus rood I al the morow-tyde,
 Til at the last it happed me to fynde
 The place wherin I cast me to abyde 80

 And as I went my logging to purvey,
 Right sone I herde, but litel me besyde,
 In a gardeyn, wher minstrels gan to play.

With that anon I went me bakker-more ; 85
 My-self and I, me thought, we were y-now ;
 But twayn that were my frendes here-before
 Had me espyed, and yet I wot nat how.
 They come for me ; awayward I me drow,
 Somwhat by force, somewhat by their request, 90
 That in no wyse I coud my-self rescow,
 But nede I must come in, and see the feest.

At my coming, the ladies everichoon
 Bad me welcome, god wot, right gently,
 And made me chere, everich by oon and oon, 95
 A gret del better than I was worthy ;
 And, of their grace, shewed me gret curtesy
 With good disport, bicause I shuld nat mourne.
 That day I bood stille in their company,
 Which was to me a gracious sojourne. 100

The bordes were spred in right litel space ;
 The ladies sat, ech as hem semed best.
 Were non that did servyce within that place
 But chosen men, right of the goodliest :
 And som ther were, peravénture most fresshest, 105
 That sawe their juges, sitting ful demure,
 Without semblaunt either to most or lest,
 Notwithstanding they had hem under cure.

His countenaunce he kept with greet tourment,
 But his desyr fer passed his resoun;
 For ever his eye went after his entent 115
 Ful many a tyme, whan it was no sesoun.

To make good chere, right sore him-self he payned,
 And outwardly he fayned greet gladnesse;
 To singe also by force he was constrayned 120
 For no plesaunce, but very shamfastnesse;
 For the complaynt of his most hevinesse
 Com to his voice alwey without request,
 Lyk as the sowne of birdes doth expresse
 Whan they sing loude, in frith or in forest.

Other ther were, that served in the hal, 125
 But non lyk him, as after myn advyse;
 For he was pale, and somewhat lene with-al;
 His speche also trembled in fereful wyse;
 And ever aloon, but when he did servyse.
 Al blak he ware, and no devyce but playn. 130
 Me thought by him, as my wit coud suffyse,
 His hert was no-thing in his own demeyn.

To feste hem al he did his diligence,
 And wel he couth, right as it semed me.
 But evermore, whan he was in presence, 135
 His chere was don; it wold non other be.
 His scole-maister had suche auctoritè
 That, al the whyle he bood stille in the place,
 Speke coude he nat, but upon her beautè
 He loked stil, with right a pitous face. 140

With that, his heed he tourned at the last
 For to behold the ladies everichon;
 But ever in oon he set his ey stedfast
 On her, the which his thought was most upon.

And of his eyen the shot I knew anon 145
Which federed was with right humble requestes.
Than to my-self I sayd, 'By god aloon,
Suche oon was I, or that I saw these gestes.'

Out of the prees he went ful esely
To make stable his hevvy countenaunce; 150
And, wit ye wel, he syghed tenderly
For his sorowes and woful remembraunce.
Than in him-self he made his ordinaunce,
And forth-withal com to bringe in the mes;
But, for to juge his most ruful semblaunce, 155
God wot, it was a pitous entremes!

After diner, anon they hem avaunced
To daunce about, these folkes everichoon;
And forth-withal this hevvy lover daunced
Somytyme with twayn, and somtyme but with oon. 160
Unto hem al his chere was after oon,
Now here, now there, as fel by aventure;
But ever among, he drew to her aloon
Which he most dredde of living creature.

To myn advyse, good was his purveyaunce 165
Whan he her chase to his maistresse aloon,
If that her hert were set to his plesaunce
As moche as was her beauteous persone.

To see the feest, it wried me ful sore ;
 For hevy joy doth sore the hert travayle.
 Out of the prees I me withdrew therfore,
 And set me down aloon, behynd a trayle
 Ful of leves, to see, a greet mervayle, 185
 With grene withies y-bounden wonderly ;
 The leves were so thik, withouten fayle,
 That thorough-out might no man me espy.

To this lady he com ful curteisly
 Whan he thought tyme to daunce with her a trace ; 190
 Sith in an herber made ful pleasauntly
 They rested hem, fro thens but litel space.
 Nigh hem were none, a certayn of compace,

 And save the trayle, ther I had chose my place, 195
 Ther was no more betwix hem tweyne and me.

I herd the lover syghing wonder sore ;
 For ay the neer, the sorer it him sought.
 His inward payne he coud not kepe in store,
 Nor for to speke, so hardy was he nought. 200
 His leche was neer, the gretter was his thought ;
 He mused sore, to conquere his desyre ;
 For no man may to more penaunce be brought
 Than, in his hete, to bringe him to the fyre.

The hert began to swel within his chest, 205
 So sore strayned for anguish and for payne
 That al to peces almost it to-brest,

 Whan he ful long had put it in delay, 215
 To his lady right thus than gan he say
 With dredful voice, weping, half in a rage:—
 'For me was purveyd an unhappy day

 Ye set it nought, but make ther-of a game;
 And though I sewe so greet an entrepryse,
 It peyreth not your worship nor your fame.

Alas! what shulde be to you prejudyce
 If that a man do love you faithfully 230
 To your worship, eschewing every vyce?
 So am I yours, and wil be verily;
 I chalenge nought of right, and reson why,
 For I am hool submit to your servyse;
 Right as ye liste it be, right so wil I, 235
 To bynde my-self, where I was in fraunchyse!

La D. 'A lightsom herte, a folly of plesaunce 405
 Are moch better, the lesse whyl they abyde;
 They make you thinke, and bring you in a traunce;
 But that seknesse wil sone be remedyed.
 Respite your thought, and put al this asyde;
 Ful good disportes werieth men al-day; 410
 To help nor hurt, my wil is not aplied;
 Who troweth me not, I lete it passe away.'

 And lesse set by, than other that be straunge.' 420

La D. 'Though I make chere to every man aboute
 For my worship, and of myn own fraunchyse,
 To you I nil do so, withouten doute,
 In eschewing al maner prejudyse.
 For wit ye wel, love is so litel wyse, 425
 And in beleve so lightly wil be brought,
 That he taketh al at his own devyse,
 Of thing, god wot, that serveth him of nought.'

Lam. This your counsayl, by ought that I can see, 40
Is better sayd than don. to myn advyse:
Though I beleeve it may disagree to you,
Men haue it soyle so fast without feyres,
That it be may geue violence, on the wyse.

1. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the current situation and the goals that need to be achieved.

2. The second step is to analyze the problem. This involves breaking down the problem into smaller, more manageable parts and identifying the causes of the problem.

3. The third step is to develop a plan. This involves determining the steps that need to be taken to solve the problem and identifying the resources that will be needed.

4. The fourth step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the plan into action and monitoring the progress of the solution.

5. The fifth step is to evaluate the results. This involves assessing the effectiveness of the solution and identifying any areas for improvement.

La D. 'I holde him wyse that worketh folily
 And, whan him list, can leve and part therfro ;
 But in conning he is to lerne, trewly, 535
 That wolde him-self conduite, and can not so.
 And he that wil not after counsayl do,
 His sute he putteth in desespérance ;
 And al the good, which that shulde falle him to,
 Is left as deed, clene out of rémembraunce.' 540

Lam. 'Yet wil I sewe this mater faithfully
 Whyls I may live, what-ever be my chaunce ;
 And if it hap that in my trouthe I dy,
 That deeth shal not do me no displesaunce.
 But whan that I, by your ful hard suffraunce, 545
 Shal dy so trew, and with so greet a payne,
 Yet shal it do me moche the lesse grevaunce

 Of free hertes, geten by due raunsoun ; 560

More strong to bowe than is a mighty tree,
 What vayleth you to shewe so greet rigour? 720
 Plesse it you more to see me dy this hour
 Before your eyen, for your disport and play,
 Than for to shewe som comfort or socour
 To respite deth, that chaseth me alway!

THE TESTAMENT OF CRESSEID.

ANE dooly sesoun to ane cairfull dyte
 Suld correspond, and be equivalent.
 Richt sa it wes quhen I began to wryte
 This tragedy ; the wedder richt fervent,
 Quhen Aries, in middis of the Lent, 5
 Shouris of haill can fra the north descend ;
 That scantly fra the cauld I nicht defend.

Yit nevertheles, within myn orature
 I stude, quhen Tytan had his bemis bricht
 Withdrawin doun and sylit under cure ; 10
 And fair Venus, the bewty of the nicht,
 Uprais, and set unto the west full richt
 Hir goldin face, in oppositioun
 Of god Phebus direct descending doun.

Throwout the glas hir bemis brast sa fair 15
 That I nicht see, on every syde me by,
 The northin wind had purifyit the air,
 And shed the misty cloudis fra the sky.
 The froist freisit, the blastis bitterly
 Fra pole Artyk come quhisling loud and shill, 20
 And causit me remuf aganis my will.

For I traistit that Venus, luifis quene,
 To quhom sum-tyne I hecht obedience,
 My faidit hart of luf sho wald mak grene ;
 And therupon, with humbil reverence, 25
 I thoct to pray hir hy magnificence ;
 But for greit cald as than I lattit was,

Thocht luf be hait, yit in ane man of age
 It kendillis nocht sa sone as in youthheid, 30
 Of quhom the blude is flowing in ane rage ;
 And in the auld the curage † douf and deid,
 Of quhilk the fyr outward is best remeid,
 To help be phisik quhair that nature failit ;
 I am expert, for baith I have assailit. 35

I mend the fyr, and beikit me about,
 Than tuik ane drink my spreitis to comfort,
 And armit me weill fra the cauld thairout.
 To cut the winter-nicht, and mak it short,
 I tuik ane quair, and left all uther sport, 40
 Writtin be worthy Chaucer glorious,
 Of fair Cresseid and lusty Troilus.

And thair I fand, efter that Diomeid
 Ressavit had that lady bricht of hew,
 How Troilus neir out of wit abraid, 45
 And weipit soir, with visage pail of hew ;
 For quhilk wanhope his teiris can renew,
 Quhill †esperans rejoisit him agane ;
 Thus quhyl in joy he levit, quhyl in pane.

Of hir behest he had greit comforting, 50
 Traisting to Troy that sho suld mak retour,
 Quhilk he desyrit maist of eirdly thing,
 For-quhy sho was his only paramour.

This fair lady, in this wys destitut
 Of all comfort and consolatioun,
 Richt prively, but fellowship, on fut
 Disgysit passit far out of the toun 95
 Ane myle or twa, unto ane mansioun
 Beildit full gay, quhair hir father Calchas, Quhilk than amang the Greikis dwelland was.

 With goldin listis gilt on every gair ;
 Ane burely brand about his middill bair. 180
 In his right hand he had ane groundin speir,
 Of his father the wraith fra us to weir.

Nixt efter him com Mars, the god of ire,
 Of stryf, debait, and all dissensioun ;
 To chyde and fecht, als feirs as ony fyr ; 185
 In hard harnes, hewmound and habirgeoun,
 And on his hanche ane rousty fell fachioun :
 And in his hand he had ane rousty sword,
 Wrything his face with mony angry word.

Shaikand his sword, befor Cupide he com 190
 With reid visage and grisly glowrand ene ;
 And at his mouth ane bullar stude of fome,
 Lyk to ane bair quhetting his tuskis kene
 Richt tuilyour-lyk, but temperance in tene ;
 Ane horn he blew, with mony bosteous brag, 195
 Quhilk all this warld with weir hes maid to wag.

 This goldin cart with fyry bemes bricht
 Four yokkit steidis, full different of hew,
 But bait or tiring throw the spheiris drew. 210

The first was soyr, with mane als reid as rois,
 Callit Eöy, in-to the orient;
 The secund steid to name hecht Ethiös,
 Quhytly and paill, and sum-deill ascendent;
 The thrid Peros, richt hait and richt fervent; 215
 The feird was blak, callit + Philegoney,
 Quhilk rollis Phebus down in-to the sey.

Venus was thair present, that goddes gay,
 Hir sonnis querrel for to defend, and mak
 Hir awin complaint, cled in ane nyce array, 220
 The ane half grene, the uther half sabill-blak;
 Quhyte hair as gold, kemmit and shed abak;
 But in hir face semit greit variance,
 Quhyles perfit treuth, and quhylës inconstance.

Under smyling sho was dissimulait, 225
 Provocative with blenkis amorous;
 And suddanly changit and alterait,
 Angry as ony serpent venemous,
 Richt pungitive with wordis odious.
 Thus variant sho was, quha list tak keip, 230
 With ane eye lauch, and with the uther weip:—

In taikning that all fleshly paramour,
 Quhilk Venus hes in reull and governance,
 Is sum-tyme sweet, sum-tyme bitter and sour,
 Richt unstabill, and full of variance, 235
 Mingit with cairfull joy, and fals plesance;

With buik in hand than com Mercurius,
 Richt eloquent and full of rethory; 240
 With pólite termis and delicious;
 With pen and ink to réport all redy;
 Setting sangis, and singand merily.
 His hude was reid, heklit atour his croun,
 Lyk to ane poeit of the auld fassoun. 245

Boxis he bair with fine electuairis,
 And sugerit syropis for digestioun;
 Spycis belangand to the pothecairis,
 With mony hailsaum sweit confectioun;
 Doctour in phisik, cled in scarlot gown, 250
 And furrit weill, as sic ane aucht to be,
 Honest and gude, and not ane word coud le.

Nixt efter him com lady Cynthia,
 The last of all, and swiftest in hir spheir,
 Of colour blak, buskit with hornis twa, 255
 And in the nicht sho listis best appeir;
 Haw as the leid, of colour na-thing cleir.
 For all hir licht sho borrowis at hir brothir
 Titan; for of hir-self sho hes nane uther.

Befoir Cupide vailing his cap a lyte,
 Speiris the caus of that vocacioun;
 And he anon shew his intencioun.

'Lo!' quod Cupide, 'quha will blaspheme the name
 Of his awin god, outhir in word or deid, 275
 To all goddis he dois baith lak and shame,
 And suld have bitter panis to his meid.
 I say this by yonder wretchit Cresseid,
 The quhilk throw me was sum-tyme flour of lufe,
 Me and my mother starkly can reprufe. 280

Saying, of hir greit infelicitè
 I was the caus; and my mother Venus,
 Ane blind goddes hir cald, that nicht not see,
 With slander and defame injurious.
 Thus hir leving unclene and lecherous 285
 Sho wald returne on me and [on] my mother,

 Thairfoir ga help to révenge, I yow pray.'

Mercurius to Cupid gave answeir, 295
 And said, 'Shir king, my counsall is that ye
 Refer yow to the hiest planeit heir,
 And tak to him the lawest of degrè,
 The pane of Cresseid for to modify;

Than thus proceidit Saturn and the Mone,
 Quhen thay the mater rypely had degest;
 For the dispyt to Cupid sho had done,
 And to Venus oppin and manifest, 305
 In all hir lyf with pane to be opprest
 And torment sair, with seiknes incurábill,
 And to all lovers be abominábill.

This dulefull sentence Saturn tuik on hand,
 And passit doun quhair cairfull Cresseid lay; 310
 And on hir heid he laid ane frosty wand,
 Than lawfully on this wyse can he say;
 'Thy greit fairnes, and al thy bewty gay,
 Thy wantoun blude, and eik thy goldin hair,
 Heir I exclude fra thee for evermair. 315

I change thy mirth into melancholy,
 Quhilk is the mother of all pensivenes;
 Thy moisture and thy heit in cald and dry;
 Thyne insolence, thy play and wantones
 To greit diseis: thy pomp and thy riches 320
 In mortall neid; and greit penuritie
 Thow suffer sall, and as ane beggar die.'

O cruel Saturn, fraward and angry,
 Hard is thy dome, and to malicious!
 On fair Cresseid quhy hes thow na mercy, 325
 Quhilk was sa sweit, gentill, and amorous?
 Withdraw thy sentence, and be gracious
 As thow was never; so shawis thow thy deid,
 Ane wraikfull sentence gevin on fair Cresseid.

Than Cynthia, quhen Saturn past away, 330
 Out of hir sait descendit down belyve,
 And red ane bill on Cresseid quhair sho lay,

This dooly dream, this ugly visioun
Brocht to ane end, Cresseid fra it awoik, 345
And all that court and convocation
Vanischit away. Than rais sho up and tuik
Ane poleist glas, and hir shaddow coud luik;
And quhen sho saw hir face sa déformait,
Gif sho in hart was wa aneuch, god wait! 350

For knichtly pity and memoriall
 Of fair Cresseid, ane girdill can he tak, 520
 Ane purs of gold and mony gay jowáll,
 And in the skirt of Cresseid doun can swak ;
 Than raid away, and not ane word he spak,
 Pensive in hart, quhill he com to the toun,
 And for greit cair oft-syis almaist fell doun. 525

The lipper-folk to Cresseid than can draw,
 To see the equall distribucioun
 Of the almous ; but quhan the gold they saw,
 Ilk ane to uther prevely can roun,
 And said, 'Yon lord hes mair affectioun, 530
 However it be, unto yon lazarous
 Than to us all ; we know be his almous.'

'Quhat lord is yon?' quod sho, 'have ye na feill, Hes don to us so greit humanitie?'
 'Yes,' quod a lipper-man, 'I know him weill ; 535
 Shir Troilus it is, gentill and free'
 Quhen Cresseid understude that it was he,
 Stiffer than steill thair stert ane bitter stound
 Throwout hir hart, and fell doun to the ground.

Quhen sho, ourcom with syching sair and sad, 540
 With mony cairfull cry and cald—'Ochane !
 Now is my breist with stormy stoundis stad,
 Wrappit in wo, ane wretch full will of wane' ;
 Than swounit sho oft or sho coud refrane,
 And ever in hir swouning cryit sho thus : 545
 'O fals Cresseid, and trew knicht Troilus !

Thy luf, thy lawtee, and thy gentilnes
 I countit small in my prosperitie ;
 Sa elevait I was in wantones,

THE CUCKOO AND THE NIGHTINGALE ;

OR

THE BOOK OF CUPID, GOD OF LOVE.

THE god of love, a! benedicite !
 How mighty and how greet a lord is he!
 For he can make of lowe hertes hye,
 And of hye lowe, and lyke for to dye,
 And harde hertes he can maken free. 5

And he can make, within a litel stounde
 Of seke folk ful hole, fresshe and sounde,
 And of [the] hole, he can make seke;
 And he can binden and unbinden eke
 What he wol have bounden or unbounde. 10

To telle his might my wit may not suffyse;
 For he may do al that he wol devyse.
 For he can make of wyse folk ful nyce,
 And [eke] in lyther folk distroyen vyce;
 And proude hertes he can make agryse. 15

Shortly, al that ever he wol he may ;
 Ageines him ther dar no wight sey nay.
 For he can gladde and greve whom him lyketh ;
 And, who that he wol, he laugheth or he syketh ;
 And most his might he sheweth ever in May. 20

For every trewe gentil herte free
 That with him is, or thinketh for to be,
 Ageines May now shal have som steringe
 Other to joye, or elles to morninge,
 In no sesoun so greet, as thinketh me. 25

For whan they mowe here the briddes singe,
 And see the floures and the leves springe,
 That bringeth into hertes rémembraunce
 A maner ese, medled with grevaunce,
 And lusty thoughtes fulle of greet longinge. 30

And of that longing cometh hevinesse,
 And therof groweth ofte greet seknesse,
 And al for lak of that that they desyre ;
 And thus in May ben hertes sette on fyre,
 So that they brennen forth in greet distresse. 35

I speke this of feling, trewely ;
 For, althogh I be old and unlusty,
 Yet have I felt of that seknesse, in May,
 Bothe hoot and cold, an acces every day,
 How sore, y-wis, ther wot no wight but I. 40

I am so shaken with the fevers whyte,
 Of al this May yet slepte I but a lyte;
 And also it naught lyketh unto me,
 That any herte shulde slepy be
 In whom that Love his fyry dart wol smyte. 45

But as I lay this other night wakinge,
 I thoghte how lovers had a tokeninge,
 And among hem it was a comune tale,
 That it were good to here the nightingale
 Rather than the lewde cuckow singe. 50

And then I thoghte, anon as it was day,
 I wolde go som whider to assay
 If that I might a nightingale here;
 For yet had I non herd of al this yere,
 And hit was tho the thridde night of May. 55

And than, anon as I the day espyde,
 No lenger wolde I in my bedde abyde,
 But unto a wode, that was faste by,
 I wente forth alone, boldely,
 And held my way down by a broke-syde, 60

Til I com to a launde of whyte and grene;

Ther sat I doun among the faire floures ;
 And saw the briddes trippe out of her boures
 Ther-as they had hem rested al the night.
 They were so joyful of the dayes light
 That they +begonne of May to don hir houres ! 70

They coude that servyce al by rote ;
 Ther was many a lovely straunge note ;
 Some songe loudë, as they hadde pleynd,
 And some in other maner vois y-feyned,
 And some al out, with al the fulle throte. 75

They proyned hem, and made[n] hem right gay,
 And daunseden, and lepton on the spray,
 And evermore two and two in-fere ;
 Right so as they had chosen hem to-yere
 In Feverere, on seint Valentynes day. 80

And eke the river, that I sat upon,
 It made suche a noise, as it ron,
 Accordaunt with the briddes armonye,
 Me thoughte, it was the best[e] melodye
 That mighte been y-herd of any mon. 85

And for delyt ther-of, I wot never how,
 I fel in suche a slomber and a swow,
 Not al a-slepe, ne fully wakinge ;
 And in that swow me thoughte I herde singe
 That sory brid, the lew[e]de cuckow. 90

 But who was than evel apayd but I ?
 'Now god,' quod I, 'that dyed on the crois
 Yeve sorow on thee, and on thy lewde vois !
 For litel joye have I now of thy cry.'

95

And as I with the cuckow thus gan chyde,
 I herde, in the nexte bush besyde,
 A Nightingale so lustily singe
 That with her clere vois she made ringe
 Through-out al the grene wode wyde.

100

But now I wol you telle a wonder thing :
 As longë as I lay in that swowning,
 Me thoughte, I wiste what the briddes ment,
 And what they seyde, and what was her entent,
 And of her speche I hadde good knowing.

110

And than herde I the Nightingale say,
 'Now, gode Cuckow ! go som-where away,
 And let us that can singen dwellen here ;
 For every wight escheweth thee to here,
 Thy songes be so elenge, in good fay !'

Nightingale, thou spekest wonder fayre,
 But, for al that, the sooth is the contrayre;
 For loving is, in yonge folk, but rage,
 And in olde folk hit is a greet dotage;
 Who most hit useth, most he shal apeyre. 170

For therof comth disease and hevinesse,
 Sorowe and care, and mony a greet seknesse,
 Dispyt, debat, [and] anger, and envye,
 Repreef and shame, untrust and jelousye,
 Pryde and mischeef, povértee, and woodnesse. 175

What! Loving is 'an office of dispayr,
 And oo thing is ther-in that is not fayr;
 For who that geteth of love a litel blis,
 But-if he be alway therwith, y-wis,
 He may ful sone of age have his heyr. 180

And, Nightingale, therfor hold thee ny;
 For, leve me wel, for al thy queynte cry,
 If thou be fer or longe fro thy make,
 Thou shalt be as other that been forsake,
 And than[ne] thou shalt hoten as do I!' 185

'Fy!' quod she, 'on thy namè and on thee!
 The god of love ne let thee never y-thee!
 For thou art wors a thousand-fold than wood.
 For many on is ful worthy and ful good,
 That had be naught, ne hadde love y-be! 190

For Love his servaunts ever-more amendeth,
 And from al evel taches hem defendeth,
 And maketh hem to brenne right as fyr
 In trouthe and in worshipful desyr,
 And, whom him liketh, joye y-nough hem sendeth.' 195

'Thou Nightingale,' he seyde, 'hold thee stille;
 For Love hath no resoun but his wille;

XX. THE FLOWER AND THE LEAF.

WHEN that Phebus his chaire of gold so hy
Had whirled up the sterry sky aloft,
And in the Bole was entred certainly;
Whan shoures swete of rain discended †soft,
Causing the ground, felë tymes and oft, 5
Up for to give many an hoolsom air,
And every plain was [eek y-]clothed fair

With newe grene, and maketh smalë floures
To springen here and there in feld and mede;
So very good and hoolsom be the shoures 10
That it reneweth, that was old and deede
In winter-tyme; and out of every seede
Springeth the herbë, so that every wight
Of this sesoun wexeth [ful] glad and light.

And I, só glad of the seson swete, 15
Was happed thus upon a certain night;
As I lay in my bed, sleep ful unmete
Was unto me; but, why that I ne might Rest, I ne wist; for there nas erthly wight,
As I suppose, had more hertës ese 20
Than I, for I n'ad siknesse nor disese.

Wherefore I mervail gretly of my-selve,
 That I so long withouten sleepë lay ;
 And up I roos, three houres after twelve,
 About the [very] springing of the day, 25
 And on I put my gere and myn array ;
 And to a plesaunt grovë I gan passe,
 Long or the brightë sonne uprisen was,

In which were okës grete, streight as a lyne,
 Under the which the gras, so fresh of hew, 30
 Was newly spronge ; and an eight foot or nyne
 Every tree wel fro his felawe grew,
 With braunches brode, laden with leves new,
 That sprongen out ayein the sonnë shene,
 Som very rede, and som a glad light grene ; 35

Which, as me thought, was right a plesaunt sight.
 And eek the briddes song[ës] for to here
 Would have rejoised any erthly wight.
 And I, that couth not yet, in no manere,
 Here the nightingale of al the yere, 40
 Ful busily herkned, with herte and ere,
 If I her voice perceive coud any-where.

And at the last, a path of litel brede
 I found, that gretly had not used be,
 For it forgrowen was with gras and weede, 45
 That wel unneth a wight [ther] might it see.
 Thought I, this path som whider goth, pardè,
 And so I folowèd, til it me brought
 To right a plesaunt herber, wel y-wrought,

That benched was, and [al] with turves new 50
 Freshly turved, wherof the grenë gras
 So small, so thik, so short, so fresh of hew,
 That most lyk to grene twol, wot I, it was.

And as I stood and cast asyde myn y, 85
 I was ware of the fairest medle-tree
 That ever yet in al my lyf I sy,
 As full of blossomës as it might be.
 Therin a goldfinch leping pretily
 Fro bough to bough, and, as him list, he eet 90
 Here and there, of buddes and floures sweet.

And to the herber-syde was joining
 This fairë tree, of which I have you told ;
 And, at the last, the brid began to sing,
 Whan he had eten what he etë wold, 95
 So passing sweetly, that, by manifold,
 It was more plesaunt than I coud devyse ;
 And whan his song was ended in this wyse,

The nightingale with so mery a note
 Answéred him, that al the wodë rong 100
 So sodainly, that, as it were a sot,
 I stood astonied ; so was I with the song
 Through ravishèd, that, [un]til late and long Ne wist I in what place I was, ne where ;
 And ðay, me thought, she song even by myn ere. 105

Wherfore about I waited busily
 On every syde, if I her mightë see ;
 And, at the last, I gan ful wel aspy
 Wher she sat in a fresh green laurer-tree
 On the further syde, even right by me, 110
 That gave so passing a delicious smel
 According to the eglantere ful wel.

Wherof I had so inly greet plesyr
 That, as me thought, I surely ravished was

As for that day, and on the sotë gras
I sat me down; for, as for myn entent,
The birdës song was more convenient,

And more plesaunt to me, by many fold, 120
Than mete or drink, or any other thing;
Thereto the herber was so fresh and cold,
The hoolsom savours eek so comforting
That, as I demed, sith the beginning
Of the world, was never seen, or than, 125
So plesaunt a ground of non erthly man.

And as I sat, the briddës herkning thus,
Me thought that I herd voices sodainly,
The most sweetest and most delicious
That ever any wight, I trow trewly, 130
Herde in this lyf, for [that] the armony
And sweet accord was in so good musyk,
Thát the voice to angels most was lyk.

At the last, out of a grove even by, The Leaf.
That was right goodly and plesaunt to sight, 135
I sy where there cam singing lustily
A world of ladies; but to tell aright

XX. THE FLOWER AND THE LEAF. 367

With voice[s] swete entuned and so small, 180
That me thought it the sweetest melody
That ever I herdë in my lyf, soothly.

And thus they came[n], dauncing and singing,
Into the middes of the mede echone,
Before the herber, where I was sitting, 185
And, god wot, me thought I was wel bigon;
For than I might avyse hem, on by on,
Who fairest was, who coud best dance or sing,
Or who most womanly was in al thing.

They had not daunced but a litel throw 190
When that I herd, not fer of, sodainly
So greet a noise of thundring trumpës blow,
As though it shuld have départed the sky;
And, after that, within a whyle I sy
From the same grove, where the ladyes come out, 195
Of men of armës coming such a rout

As al the men on erth had been assembled
In that place, wel horsed for the nones,
Stering so fast, that al the erth[ë] trembled;
But for to speke of riches and [of] stones, 200
And men and hors, I trow, the largë wones
Of Prester John, ne al his tresory
Might not unneth have bought the tenth party!

Of their array who-so list herë more,
I shal rehearse, so as I can, a lyte. 205
Out of the grove, that I spak of before,
I sy come first, al in their clokes whyte,
A company, that ware, for their delyt,
Chapélets fresh of okës cereal
Newly spronge, and trumpets they were al. 210

 Of fyn tartarium, were ful richly bete ;
 Every trumpet his lordës armës †bere ;
 About their nekkës, with gret perlës set,
 Colers brode ; for cost they would not lete, 215
 As it would seme ; for their scochones echoon
 Were set about with many a precious stoon.

Their hors-harneys was al whyte also ;
 And after hem next, in on company,
 Cãmë kingës of armës, and no mo, 220
 In clokës of whyte cloth of gold, richly ;
 Chapelets of greene on their hedes on hy,
 The crownës that they on their scochones bere
 Were set with perlë, ruby, and saphere,

And eek gret diamondës many on ; 225
 But al their hors-harneys and other gere
 Was in a sute according, everichon,
 As ye have herd the foresayd trumpets were ;
 And, by seeming, they were nothing to lere ;
 And their gyding they did so manerly. 230
 And after hem cam a greet company

Of heraudës and pursevauntës eke
 Arrayed in clothës of whyt veluët ;
 And hardily, they were nothing to seke
 How they [up]on hem shuld the harneys set ; 235
 And every man had on a chapëlet ;
 Scóchones and eke hors-harneys, indede,
 They had in sute of hem that before hem yede.

With cloth of gold, and furred with ermyne
 Were the trappurës of their stedës strong,
 Wyde and large, that to the ground did hong; 245

And every bosse of brydel and peitrel
 That they had, was worth, as I would wene,
 A thousand pound; and on their hedës, wel
 Dressed, were crownës [al] of laurer grene,
 The best [y-]mad that ever I had seen; 250
 And every knight had after him ryding
 Three henshmen, [up]on him awaiting;

Of whiche †the first, upon a short tronchoun,
 His lordës helme[t] bar, so richly dight,
 That the worst was worth[y] the raunsoun 255
 Of a[ny] king; the second a sheld bright
 Bar at his nekke; the thridde bar upright
 A mighty spere, ful sharpe [y-]ground and kene;
 And every child ware, of leves grene,

A fresh chapelet upon his heres bright; 260
 And clokes whyte, of fyn veluet they ware;
 Their stedës trapped and [a]rayed right
 Without[en] difference, as their lordës were.
 And after hem, on many a fresh co[u]rsere,
 There came of armed knightës such a rout 265
 That they besprad the largë feld about.

And al they ware[n], after their degrees,
 Chapëlets new, made of laurer grene,
 Some of oke, and some of other trees;
 Some in their handës berë boughës shene, 270
 Some of laurer, and some of okës kene,
 Some of hawthorn, and some of woodbind,
 And many mo, which I had not in mind.

 With bloody sownës of hir trompës loud ; 275
 Ther sy I many an uncouth disgysing
 In the array of these knightës* proud ;
 And at the last, as evenly as they coud,
 They took their places in-middes of the mede,
 And every knight turned his horse[s] hede 280

To his felawe, and lightly laid a spere
 In the [a]rest, and so justës began
 On every part about[en], here and there ;
 Som brak his spere, som drew down hors and man ;
 About the feld astray the stedës ran ; 285
 And, to behold their rule and governaunce,
 I you ensure, it was a greet plesaunce.

And so the justës last an houre and more ;
 But tho that crowned were in laurer grene
 Wan the pryse ; their dintës were so sore 290
 That ther was non ayenst hem might sustene ;
 And [than] the justing al was left of clene ;
 And fro their hors the †nine alight anon ;
 And so did al the remnant everichon.

And forth they yede togider, twain and twain, 295
 That to behold, it was a worldly sight,
 Toward the ladies on the grenë plain,
 That song and daunced, as I sayd now right.
 The ladies, as soone as they goodly might,
 They breke[n] of both the song and dance, 300
 And yede to mete hem, with ful glad semblance.

And every lady took, ful womanly,
 Bý the hond a knight, and forth they yede

For underneth it there might wel have be

An hundred persons, at their own plesauce,
Shadowed fro the hete of Phebus bright 310
So that they shuld have felt no [greet] grevaunce
Of rain, ne hail, that hem hurt[ë] might.
The savour eek rejoyce would any wight
That had be sick or melancolious,
It was so very good and vertuous. 315

And with gret reverence they tenclyned low
[Un]to the tree, so sote and fair of hew ;
And after that, within a litel throw,
†Bigonne they to sing and daunce of-new ;
Some song of love, some playning of untrew, 320
Environing the tree that stood upright ;
And ever yede a lady and a knight.

And at the last I cast myn eye asyde, The Flower.
And was ware of a lusty company
That came, roming out of the feld wyde, 325
Hond in hond, a knight and a lady ;
The ladies alle in surcotes, that richly
Purfyled were with many a riche stoon ;
And every knight of greene ware mantles on,

Embrouded wel, so as the surcotes were, 330
And everich had a chapelet on her hede ;
Which did right wel upon the shyning here,
Made of goodly floures, whyte and rede.
The knightës eke, that they in hond lede,
In sute of hem, ware chapelets everichon ; 335

Where[un]to they enclyned everichon
 With greet reverence, and that ful humblely ; 345
 And, at the last[ë], there began anon
 A lady for to sing right womanly
 A bargaret in praising the daisy ;
 For, as me thought, among her notës swete,
 She sayd, 'Si douce est la Margarete.' 350

Thén they al answéred her infere,
 So passingly wel, and so plesauntly,
 Thát it was a blisful noise to here.
 But I not [how], it happed sodainly,
 As, about noon, the sonne so fervently 355
 Wex hoot, that [al] the prety tender floures
 Had lost the beauté of hir fresh coloures,

For-shronk with hete ; the ladies eek to-brent,
 That they ne wist where they hem might bestow.
 The knightës swelt, for lak of shade ny shent ; 360
 And after that, within a litel throw,
 The wind began so sturdily to blow,
 That down goth al the flourès everichon
 So that in al the mede there laft not on,

Save suche as socoured were, among the leves, 365
 Fro every storme, that might hem assail,
 Growing under hegges and thikke greves ;
 And after that, there came a storm of hail
 And rain in-fere, so that, withouten fail,
 The ladies ne the knightës n'ade o threed 370

And after that, of herbës that there grew,
They made, for blisters of the sonne brenning,
Very good and hoolsom ointments new,
Where that they yede, the sick fast anointing; 410
And after that, they yede about gadring
Plesaunt saladës, which they made hem ete,
For to refresh their greet unkindly hete.

The lady of the Leef then gan to pray
Her of the Flour, (for so to my seeming 415
They should[ë] be, as by their [quaint] array),
To soupe with her; and eek, for any thing,
That she should with her al her people bring.
And she ayein, in right goodly manere,
Thanketh her of her most frendly chere, 420

Saying plainly, that she would obey
With al her hert al her commaundement.
And then anon, without lenger delay,
The lady of the Leef hath oon y-sent
For a palfray, [as] after her intent, 425
Arayed wel and fair in harneys of gold,
For nothing lakked, that to him long shold.

And after that, to al her company
She made to purvey hors and every thing
That they needed; and then, ful lustily, 430
Even by the herber where I was sitting,
They passed al, so plesantly singing,
That it would have comfórted any wight;
But then I sy a passing wonder sight:—

 And to the lady of the Leef forthright
 She flew, and set her on her hond softly, 440
 Which was a thing I marveled of gretly.

The goldfinch eek, that fro the medle-tree
 Was fled, for hete, into the bushes cold,
 Unto the lady of the Flour gan flee,
 And on her hond he set him, as he wold, 445
 And plesantly his wingës gan to fold;
 And for to sing they pained hem both as sore
 As they had do of al the day before.

And so these ladies rood forth a gret pace,
 And al the rout of knightës eek in-fere; 450
 And I, that had seen al this wonder case,
 Thought [that] I would assay, in some manere,
 To know fully the trouth of this matere,
 And what they were that rood so plesantly.
 And, when they were the herber passed by, 455

I drest me forth, and happed to mete anon
 Right a fair lady, I you ensure;
 And she cam ryding by herself aloon,
 Al in whyte, with semblance ful demure.
 I salued her, and bad good aventure 460
 †Might her befall, as I coud most humbly;
 And she answered, 'My doughter, gramercy!'

'Madam,' quod I, 'if that I durst enquire
 Of you, I wold fain, of that company,
 Wit what they be that past by this herbere?' 465
 And she ayein answéred right freendly:
 'My fair daughter, al tho that passed hereby
 In whyte clothing, be servants everichoon

XXI. THE ASSEMBLY OF LADIES.

— .. —

IN Septembre, at the falling of the leef,
 The fressh sesoun was al-togider doon,
 And of the corn was gadered in the sheef;
 In a gardyn, about twayn after noon,
 Ther were ladyes walking, as was her wone, 5
 Foure in nombre, as to my mynd doth falle,
 And I the fite, the simplest of hem alle.

Of gentilwomen fayre ther were also,
 Disporting hem, everiche after her gyse,
 In crosse-aleys walking, by two and two, 10
 And some alone, after her fantasies.
 Thus occupied we were in dyvers wyse;
 And yet, in trouthe, we were not al alone;
 Ther were knightës and squyers many one.

‘Wherof I served?’ oon of hem asked me; 15
 I sayde ayein, as it fel in my thought,
 ‘To walke about the mase, in certayntè,
 As a woman that [of] nothing rought.’
 He asked me ayein—‘whom that I sought,
 And of my colour why I was so pale?’ 20
 ‘Forsothe,’ quod I, ‘and therby lyth a tale.’

'That must me wite,' quod he, 'and that anon;
 Tel on, let see, and make no taryng.'
 'Abyd,' quod I, 'ye been a hasty oon,
 I let you wite it is no litel thing. 25
 But, for bicause ye have a greet longing
 In your desyr, this proces for to here,
 I shal you tel the playn of this matere.—

It happed thus, that, in an after-noon,
 My felawship and I, by oon assent, 30
 Whan al our other besynesse was doon,
 To passe our tyme, into this mase we went,
 And toke our wayes, eche after our entent;
 Some went inward, and †wend they had gon out,
 Some stode amid, and loked al about. 35

And, sooth to say, some were ful fer behind,
 And right anon as ferforth as the best;
 Other ther were, so mased in her mind,
 Al wayes were good for hem, bothe eest and west.
 Thus went they forth, and had but litel rest; 40
 And some, her corage did hem sore assayle,
 For very wrath, they did step over the rayle!

And as they sought hem-self thus to and fro,
 I gat myself a litel avauntage;
 Al for-weried, I might no further go, 45
 Though I had won right greet, for my viage.
 So com I forth into a strait passage,
 Which brought me to an herber fair and grene,
 Mad with benches, ful craftily and clene,

That, as me thought, ther might no crëature 50
 Devyse a better, by dew proporcoun;

To do after your ávyse and counsayl."

Thus parted she, and I lefte al aloon; 190
With that I saw, as I beheld asyde,
A woman come, a verray goodly oon;
And forth withal, as I had her aspyed,
Me thought anon, [that] it shuld be the gyde;
And of her name anon I did enquire. 195
Ful womanly she yave me this answer.

"I am," quod she, "a simple créature
Sent from the court; my name is Diligence.
As sone as I might come, I you ensure,
I taried not, after I had licence; 200
And now that I am come to your presence,
Look, what servyce that I can do or may,
Commaundë me; I can no further say."

I thanked her, and prayed her to come nere,

 And for nothing I wold that we were last.”

Than parted we, at springing of the day,
 And forth we wente [a] soft and esy pace,
 Til, at the last, we were on our journey 220
 So fer onward, that we might see the place.
 “Now let us rest,” quod I, “a litel space,
 And say we, as devoutly as we can,
 A pater-noster for saint Julian.”

“With al my herte, I assent with good wil; 225

 Than taried we, and sayd it every del.
 And whan the day was fer gon after noon,
 We saw a place, and thider cam we sone,
 Which rounde about was closed with a wal, 230
 Seming to me ful lyke an hospital.

Ther found I oon, had brought al myn aray,
 A gentilwoman of myn aquaintaunce.

So than I dressed me in myn aray,
And asked her, whether it were wel or no?
"It is right wel," quod she, "unto my pay; 255
Ye nede not care to what place ever ye go."
And whyl that she and I debated so,
Cam Diligence, and saw me al in blew:
"Sister," quod she, "right wel brouk ye your new!"

Than went we forth, and met at aventure 260
A yong woman, an officer seming:
"What is your name," quod I, "good crëature?"
"Discrecioun," quod she, "without lesing."

"Fair love," quod I, "in al your ordenaunce,
 What is her name that is the herbegere?"
 "For sothe," quod she, "her name is Acquaintaunce,
 A woman of right gracious manere." 270
 Than thus quod I, "What straungers have ye here?"
 "But few," quod she, "of high degree ne low;
 Ye be the first, as ferforth as I know."

Thus with talës we cam streight to the yate;
 This yong woman departed was and gon; 275
 Cam Diligence, and knocked fast therat;
 "Who is without?" quod Countenaunce anon.
 "Trewly," quod I, "fair sister, here is oon!"
 "Which oon?" quod she, and therewithal she lough;
 "I, Diligence! ye know me wel ynough." 280

Than opened she the yate, and in we go;
 With wordës fair she sayd ful gentilly,
 "Ye are welcome, ywis! are ye no mo?"
 "Nat oon," quod she, "save this woman and I."
 "Now than," quod she, "I pray yow hertely, 285

I thanked her, and forth we gon echon
 Til her chambre, without[en] wordës mo.
 Cam Diligence, and took her leve anon; 290
 "Wher-ever you list," quod I, "now may ye go;
 And I thank you right hertely also
 Of your labour, for which god do you meed;
 I can no more, but Jesu be your speed!"

Than Countenauncë asked me anon, 295

Thus as we stood togider, she and I, 365
 Even at the yate my felawes were echon.
 So met I hem, as me thought was goodly,
 And bad hem welcome al, by on and on.
 Than forth cam [lady] Countenaunce anon;
 "Ful hertely, fair sisters al," quod she, 370
 "Ye be right welcome into this countree.

I counsail you to take a litel rest
 In my chambre, if it be your plesaunce.
 Whan ye be there, me thinketh for the best
 That I go in, and cal Perséveraunce, 375
 Because she is oon of your aquaintaunce;
 And she also wil tel you every thing

And furthermore, about than loked we
 On eche corner, and upon every wal,
 The which was mad of berel and cristal ; 455

Wherein was graven of stories many oon ;
 First how Phyllis, of womanly pitè,
 Deyd pitously, for love of Demophoon.
 Nexte after was the story of Tisbee,
 How she slew her-self under a tree. 460
 Yet saw I more, how in right pitous cas
 For Antony was slayn Cleopatras.

That other syde was, how Hawes the shene
 Untrewly was disceyved in her bayn.
 There was also Annelida the quene, 465
 Upon Arcyte how sore she did complayn.
 Al these stories were graved there, certayn ;
 And many mo than I reherce you here ;
 It were to long to tel you al in-fere.

And, bicause the wallës shone so bright, 470

And fyve stages it was set fro the ground,
 Of cassidony ful curiously wrought ;
 With four pomelles of golde, and very round,
 Set with saphyrs, as good as coud be thought ; 480

For, wite ye wel, I was right nere that,
 So as I durst, beholding by and by; 485
 Above ther was a riche cloth of estate,
 Wrought with the nedle ful straungely,
 Her word thereon; and thus it said trewly,
*A endure*r, to tel you in wordës few,
 With grete letters, the better I hem knew. 490

Thus as we stode, a dore opened anon;
 A gentilwoman, semely of stature,
 Beringe a mace, cam out, her-selfe aloon;
 Sothly, me thought, a goodly crëature!
 She spak nothing to lowde, I you ensure, 495
 Nor hastily, but with goodly warning:
 "Mak room," quod she, "my lady is coming!"

With that anon I saw Persëveraunce,
 How she held up the tapet in her hand.
 I saw also, in right good ordinaunce, 500
 This greet lady within the tapet stand,
 Coming outward, I wol ye understand;
 And after her a noble company,
 I coud nat tel the nombre sikerly.

Of their namës I wold nothing enquire 505
 Further than suche as we wold sewe unto,
 Sauf oo lady, which was the chauncellere,
 Attemperaunce; sothly her name was so.
 For us nedeth with her have moch to do
 In our maters, and alway more and more. 510
 And, so forth, to tel you furthermore,

Of this lady her beautè to discryve,
 My conning is to simple, verely;

 In her estate, assured utterly,
 There wanted naught, I dare you wel assure,
 That longed to a goodly créature.

And furthermore, to speke of her aray,
 I shal you tel the maner of her gown; 520
 Of clothe of gold ful riche, it is no nay;
 The colour blew, of a right good fasoun;
 In tabard-wyse the slevës hanging down;
 And what purfyl there was, and in what wyse,
 So as I can, I shal it you devyse. 525

After a sort the coller and the vent,
 Lyk as ermyne is mad in purfeling;
 With grete perlës, ful fyne and orient,
 They were couchèd, al after oon worching,
 With dyamonds in stede of powdering; 530
 The slevës and purfilles of assyse;
 They were [y-]mad [ful] lyke, in every wyse.

Aboute her nekke a sort of fair rubyes,
 In whyte floures of right fyne enamayl;
 Upon her heed, set in the freshest wyse, 535
 A cercle with gret balays of entayl;
 That, in earnest to speke, withouten fayl,
 For yonge and olde, and every maner age,
 It was a world to loke on her visage.

Thus coming forth, to sit in her estat, 540
 In her presence we kneled down echon,
 Presentinge up our billes, and, wot ye what,
 Ful humb[el]ly she took hem, by on and on;

 And did the same, eche after her manere, 545
 Knelinge at ones, and rysinge al in-fere.

Whan this was don, and she set in her place,
 The chamberlayn she did unto her cal;
 And she, goodly coming til her a-pace,
 Of her entent knowing nothing at al, 550
 "Voyd bak the prees," quod she, "up to the wal;
 Mak larger roun, but look ye do not tary,
 And tak these billës to the secretary."

The chamberlayn did her commaundement,
 And cam agayn, as she was bid to do; 555
 The secretary there being present,
 The billës were delivered her also,
 Not only ours, but many other mo.
 Than the lady, with good advyce, agayn
 Anon withal called her chamberlayn. 560

"We wol," quod she, "the first thing that ye do,
 The secretary, make her come anon
 With her billës; and thus we wil also,
 In our presence she rede hem everichon,
 That we may takë good advyce theron 565
 Of the ladyes, that been of our counsayl;
 Look this be don, withouten any fayl."

The chamberlayn, whan she wiste her entent,
 Anon she did the secretary cal:
 "Let your billës," quod she, "be here present, 570
 My lady it wil." "Madame," quod she, "I shal."
 "And in presence she wil ye rede hem al."
 "With good wil; I am redy," quod she,

And upon that was mad an ordinaunce, 575
 They that cam first, hir billës shuld be red.
 Ful gentelly than sayd Perséveraunce,
 "Resoun it wold that they were sonest sped."
 Anon withal, upon a tapet spred,
 The secretary layde hem doun echon; 580
 Our billës first she redde hem on by on.

The first lady, bering in her devyse
Sans que jamais, thus wroot she in her bil;
 Complayning sore and in ful pitous wyse
 Of promesse mad with faithful hert and wil 585
 And so broken, ayenst al maner skil,
 Without desert alwayes on her party;
 In this mater desyring remedy.

Her next felawës word was in this wyse,
Une sanz chaungier; and thus she did complayn, 590
 Though she had been guerdoned for her servyce,
 Yet nothing lyke as she that took the payn;
 Wherefore she coude in no wyse her restrayn,
 But in this cas sewe until her presence,
 As reson woldë, to have recompence. 595

 And, as I can remembre this matere,
 I shal you tel the proces, al in-fere.

 As until her that might redresse it best;
 For in her mind thus might she finde it sone, 620
 The remedy of that, which was her boon;
 Rehersing [that] that she had sayd before,
 Beseching her it might be so no more.

And in lyk wyse as they had don before,
 The gentilwomen of our company 625
 Put up hir billës; and, for to tel you more,
 Oon of hem wroot cest sanz dire, verily;
 And her matere hool to specify,

Moch more there was, wherof she shuld complayn,
But she thought it to greet encomb[e]raunce
So moch to wryte; and therfore, in certayn,
In god and her she put her affiaunce 655
As in her worde is mad a remembraunce;
Beseching her that she wolde, in this cace,
Shewe unto her the favour of her grace.

The third, she wroot, rehersing her grevaunce,
Ye! wot ye what, a pitous thing to here; 660
For, as me thought, she felt gret displeaunce,
Oon might right wel perceyve it by her chere,
And no wonder; it sat her passing nere.

XXII. A GOODLY BALADE.

¶ M ODER of norture, best beloved of al,
 And fresshest flour, to whom good thrift god sende.
 Your child, if it list you me so to cal,
 Al be I unable my-self so to pretende,
 To your discrecioun I recomende 5
 Myn herte and al, with every circumstaunce,
 Al hoolly to be under your governaunce.

Most desyre I, and have, and ever shal
 Thing, whiche might your hertës ese amende;
 Have me excused, my power is but smal; 10
 Natheles, of right ye ought[e] to commende
 My good[e] will, which fayn wolde entende
 To do you service; for al my suffisaunce
 Is hoolly to be under your governaunce.

Meulx un: in herte, which never shal apal, 15
 Ay fresshe and newe, and right glad to dispende
 My tyme in your servyce, what-so befall,
 Beseching your excéllence to defende
 My simplenesse, if ignoraunce offende
 In any wyse; sith that myn affiaunce 20
 Is hoolly to be under your governaunce.

¶ Daisy of light! very ground of comfort!
 The sonnes doughter ye hight, as I rede;
 For when he westreth, farwel your disport!
 By your nature anon, right for pure drede 25
 Of the rude night, that with his boystous wede
 Of derkness shadoweth our emispere,
 Than closen ye, my lyves lady dere!

Dawing the day to his kinde resort,
 Phebus your fader, with his stremes rede, 30
 Adorneth the morow, cónsuming the sort
 Of misty cloudës, that wolde overlede
 Trewe humble hertës with hir mistihede,
 Nere comfort a-dayes, whan eyën clere
 Disclose and sprede my lyves lady dere. 35

[A stanza lost; lines 36-42.]

¶ Je wouldray:—but [the] gret[e] god disposeth
 And maketh casuel by his providence
 Such thing as mannës frelë wit purposeth; 45
 Al for the best, if that our conscience
 Nat grucche it, but in humble pacience
 It receyve; for god saith, without[e] fable,
 A faithful hertë ever is acceptáble.

Cautels who useth gladly, gloseth; 50
 To eschewe suche it is right high prudence;
 What ye said[e] onës, [now] myn herte opposeth,
 “That my wryting japës, in your absence,
 Plesed you moche bet than my presence!”
 Yet can I more, ye be nat excusáble; 55
 A faithful hertë ever is acceptáble.

Quaketh my penne; my spirit supposeth

XXIV. THE COURT OF LOVE.

WITH timorous hert and trembling hand of drede,
 Of cunning naked, bare of eloquence,
 Unto the flour of port in womanhede
 I write, as he that non intelligence
 Of metres hath, ne floures of sentence ; 5
 Sauf that me list my writing to convey,
 In that I can to please her hygh nobley.

The blosmes fresshe of Tullius garden soote
 Present thaim not, my mater for to borne :
 Poemes of Virgil taken here no rote, 10
 Ne crafte of Galfrid may not here sojorne :
 Why nam I cunning? O well may I morne,
 For lak of science that I can-not write
 Unto the princes of my life a-right

No termes digne unto her excellence, 15
 So is she sprong of noble stirpe and high :
 A world of honour and of reverence
 There is in her, this wil I testifie.
 Calliope, thou sister wise and sly,
 And thou, Minerva, guye me with thy grace, 20
 That langage rude my mater not deface.

Thy suger-dropes swete of Elicon
 Distill in me, thou gentle Muse, I pray ;
 And thee, Melpomene, I calle anon,
 Of ignoraunce the mist to chace away ; 25
 And give me grace so for to write and sey,

From MS. Trin. R. 3. 19, fol. 128; collated with the print of the same in (S.) Stowe's edition (1561). I note some rejected readings of the MS.

That she, my lady, of her worthinesse,
Accepte in gree this litel short tretesse,

That is entitled thus, 'THE COURT OF LOVE.'
And ye that ben metriciens me excuse, 30
I you besech, for Venus sake above;
For what I mene in this ye need not muse :
And if so be my lady it refuse
For lak of ornāt speche, I wold be wo,
That I presume to her to writen so. 35

But myn entent and all my besy cure
Is for to write this tretesse, as I can,
Unto my lady, stable, true, and sure,
Feithfull and kind, sith first that she began
Me to accept in service as her man : 40
To her be all the plesure of this boke,
That, whan her like, she may it rede and loke.

WHEN I was yong, at eighteen yere of age,
Lusty and light, desirous of pleasaunce,
Approching on full sadde and ripe corage, 45
Love arted me to do myn observaunce
To his astate, and doon him obeysaunce,
Commaunding me the Court of Love to see,
A lite beside the mount of Citharee,

There Citherea goddesse was and quene 50
Honoured highly for her majestee;
And eke her sone, the mighty god, I wene,
Cupid the blind, that for his dignitee
A thousand lovers worship on their knee;
There was I bid, on pain of death, t'apere, 55
By Mercury, the winged messengere.

So than I went by straunge and fer contrees,
Enquiring ay what costes †to it drew,
The Court of Love : and thiderward, as bees,
At last I sey the peple gan pursue : 60
Anon, me thought, som wight was there that knew
Where that the court was holden, ferre or ny,
And after thaim ful fast I gan me hy.

Anone as I theim overtook, I said,
 'Hail, frendes! whider purpose ye to wend?' 65
 'Forsooth,' quod oon that answered lich a maid,
 'To Loves Court now go we, gentill frend.'
 'Where is that place,' quod I, 'my felowe hend?'
 'At Citheron, sir,' seid he, 'without dowte,
 The King of Love, and all his noble rowte, 70

Dwelling within a castell ryally.'
 So than apace I jorned forth among,
 And as he seid, so fond I there truly.
 For I beheld the towres high and strong,
 And high pinacles, large of hight and long, 75
 With plate of gold bespred on every side,
 And presious stones, the stone-werk for to hide.

No saphir ind, no rubè riche of price,
 There lakked than, nor emeraud so grene,
 Baleis Turkeis, ne thing to my devise, 80
 That may the castell maken for to shene:
 All was as bright as sterres in winter been;
 And Phebus shoon, to make his pees agayn,
 For trespass doon to high estates tweyn,

Venus and Mars, the god and goddesse clere, 85
 Whan he theim found in armes cheined fast:
 Venus was then full sad of herte and chere.
 But Phebus bemes, streight as is the mast,
 Upon the castell ginneth he to cast,
 To plesse the lady, princesse of that place, 90
 In signe he loketh aftir Loves grace.

For there nis god in heven or helle, y-wis,
 But he hath ben right soget unto Love:
 Jove, Pluto, or what-so-ever he is,
 Ne creature in erth, or yet above; 95
 Of thise the révers may no wight approve.
 But furthermore, the castell to descry,
 Yet saw I never non so large and high.

For unto heven it streccheth, I suppose,
 Within and out depeynted wonderly, 100

With many a thousand daisy, rede as rose,
 And white also, this saw I verily:
 But what tho daises might do signify,
 Can I not tell, sauf that the quenes flour
 Alceste it was that kept there her sojour; 105

Which under Venus lady was and quene,
 And Admete king and soverain of that place,
 To whom obeyed the ladies gode ninetene,
 With many a thowsand other, bright of face.
 And yong men fele came forth with lusty pace, 110
 And aged eke, their homage to dispose;
 But what thay were, I could not well disclose.

Yet ner and ner furth in I gan me dresse
 Into an halle of noble apparaile,
 With arras spred and cloth of gold, I gesse, 115
 And other silk of esier availe:
 Under the cloth of their estate, saunz faile,
 The king and quene ther sat, as I beheld:
 It passed joye of Helisee the feld.

There saintes have their comming and resort, 120
 To seen the king so ryally beseyn,
 In purple clad, and eke the quene in sort:
 And on their hedes saw I crownes tweyn,
 With stones fret, so that it was no payn,
 Withouten mete and drink, to stand and see 125
 The kinges honour and the rialtee.

And for to trete of states with the king,
 That been of counsell chief, and with the quene,
 The king had Daunger ner to him standing,
 The Quene of Love, Disdain, and that was seen: 130
 For by the feith I shall to god, I wene,
 Was never straunger [non] in her degree
 Than was the quene in casting of her ee.

And as I stood perceiving her apart,
 And eke the bemes shyning of her yen, 135

A yarde in length : and soothly than I spak :— 140

‘O bright Regina, who made thee so fair?
Who made thy colour vermelet and white?
Where woneth that god? how fer above the eyr?
Greet was his craft, and greet was his delyt.
Now marvel I nothing that ye do hight 145
The Quene of Love, and occupy the place
Of Citharee : now, sweet lady, thy grace.’

In mewet spak I, so that nought astert,
By no condicion, word that might be herd ;
B[ut] in myn inward thought I gan advert, 150
And oft I seid, ‘My wit is dulle and hard :’
For with her bewtee, thus, god wot, I ferd
As doth the man y-ravissshed with sight,
When I beheld her cristall yen so bright,

No respect having what was best to doon ; 155
Till right anon, beholding here and there,
I spied a frend of myne, and that full soon,
A gentilwoman, was the chamberer
Unto the quene, that hote, as ye shall here,
Philobone, that lovëd all her life : 160

And me demaunded how and in what wise
I thider com, and what myne erand was?
‘To seen the court,’ quod I, ‘and all the guyse ;
And eke to sue for pardon and for grace, 165
And mercy ask for all my greet trespass,

Foryeve me this, ye goddes all above !’

‘That is well seid,’ quod Philobone, ‘in-dede :
But were ye not assomoned to apere 170
By Mercury? For that is all my drede.’
‘Yes, gentil fair,’ quod I, ‘now am I here ;

Thise wordes seid, she caught me by the lap,
 And led me furth intill a temple round,
 Large and wyde: and, as my blessed hap 220
 And good avénture was, right sone I found
 A tabernacle reised from the ground,
 Where Venus sat, and Cupid by her syde ;
 Yet half for drede I gan my visage hyde.

And eft again I loked and beheld, 225
 Seeing full sundry peple in the place,
 And mister folk, and som that might not weld
 Their limmes well, me thought a wonder cas ;
 The temple shoon with windows all of glas,
 Bright as the day, with many a fair image ; 230
 And there I sey the fresh queene of Cartage,

To rede and see what thing we must observe 300
In Loves Court, till that we dye and sterue.

AND, for that I was lettred, there I red
The statuts hole of Loves Court and hall:
The first statut that on the boke was spred,
Was, To be true in thought and dedes all 305
Unto the King of Love, the Lord ryall;
And to the Quene, as feithful and as kind,
As I coud think with herte, and will and mind.

The second statut, Secretly to kepe
Councell of love, nat blowing every-where 310
All that I know, and let it sink for flete;
It may not sown in every wightes ere:
Exyng slaunder ay for dred and fere,
And to my lady, which I love and serve,
Be true and kind, her grace for to deserve. 315

The thrid statut was clerely write also,
Withouten chaunge to live and dye the same,

 And so, verily, this statut was to kepe,
 To turne and walowe in my bed and wepe,
 When that my lady, of her cruelte, 335
 Wold from her herte exylen all pitè.

The sixt statut, it was for me to use,
 Alone to wander, voide of company,
 And on my ladys bewtee for to muse,
 And to think [it] no force to live or dye ; 340
 And eft again to think the remedy,
 How to her grace I might anon attain,
 And tell my wo unto my souverain.

The seventh statut was, To be pacient,
 Whether my lady joyfull were or wroth ; 345
 For wordes glad or hevvy, diligent,
 Wheder that she me helden lefe or loth :
 And hereupon I put was to myn oth,
 Her for to serve, and lowly to obey,
 Shewing my chere, ye, twenty sith a-day. 350

The eighth statut, to my rememb[e]raunce,
 Was, To speke, and pray my lady dere,
 With hourly labour and gret attendaunce,
 Me for to love with all her herte entere,
 And me desyre, and make me joyfull chere, 355

The ninth statut, with lettres writ of gold,
This was the sentence, How that I and all Shuld ever dred to be to over-bold 360
Her to displese; and truly, so I shall;
But ben content for thing[es] that may falle,
And meekly take her chastisement and yerd,
And to offende her ever ben aferd.

The tenth statut was, Egally discern 365
By-twene thy lady and thyn abilitee,
And think, thy-self art never like to yern,
By right, her mercy. nor of equitee,
But of her grace and womanly pitee:
For though thy-self be noble in thy strene, 370
A thowsand-fold more nobill is thy quene,

Thy lyves lady, and thy souverayn,
That hath thyn herte all hole in governaunce.
Thou mayst no wyse hit taken to disdayn,
To put thee humbly at her ordinaunce, 375
And give her free the rein of her plesaunce;
For libertee is thing that women loke,
And truly, els the mater is a-croke.

The eleventh statut, Thy signes for to †con
With y and finger, and with smyles soft, 380
And low to cough, and alway for to shon,
For dred of spyes, for to winken oft:
But secretly to bring a sigh a-loft,
And eke beware of over-moch resort;
For that, paraventure, spilleth al thy sport. 385

The twelfth statut remember to observe:
For al the pain thow hast for love and wo,
All is to lite her mercy to deserve,
Thow must then think, where-ever thou ryde or go;
And mortall woundes suffer thow also, 390
All for her sake, and thinke it well beset Upon thy love, for it may be no bet.

The thirteenth statut, Whylom is to thinke,
 What thing may best thy lady lyke and plese,
 And in thyn hertes botom let it sinke : 395
 Som thing devise, and take [it] for thyn ese,
 And send it her, that may her herte tapse :
 Some hert, or ring, or lettre, or device,
 Or precious stone ; but spare not for no price.

The fourteenth statut eke thou shalt assay 400
 Fermly to kepe the most part of thy lyfe :
 Wish that thy lady in thyne armes lay,
 And nightly dreme, thow hast thy hertes wyfe
 Swetely in armes, straining her as blyfe :
 And whan thou seest it is but fantasy, 405
 See that thow sing not over merily,

For to moche joye hath oft a wofull end.
 It longith eke, this statut for to hold,
 To deme thy lady evermore thy frend,
 And think thyself in no wyse a cocold. 410
 In every thing she doth but as she shold :
 Construe the best, beleve no tales newe,
 For many a lie is told, that semeth full trewe.

But think that she, so bounteous and fair,
 Coud not be fals : imagine this algate ; 415
 And think that tonges wikke wold her appair,
 Slaundering her name and worshipfull estat,
 And lovers true to setten at debat :
 And though thow seest a faut right at thyne y,
 Excuse it blyve, and glose it pretily. 420

The fifteenth statut, Use to swere and stare,
 And counterfet a lesing hardely,
 To save thy ladys honour every-where,
 And put thyself to fight [for her] boldly :
 Sey she is good, virtuous, and gostly, 425

 And ay what thing that she thee will forbede,
 Eschew all that, and give her sovereintee,
 Her appetyt folow in all degree.

The sixteenth statut, kepe it if thow may :— 435
 Seven sith at night thy lady for to plese,
 And seven at midnight, seven at morow-day ;
 And drink a cawdell erly for thyn ese.
 Do this, and kepe thyn hede from all disese,
 And win the garland here of lovers all, 440
 That ever come in court, or ever shall.

Ful few, think I, this statut hold and kepe ;
 But truly, this my reson giveth me fele,
 That som lovers shuld rather fall aslepe,
 Than take on hand to plese so oft and wele. 445
 There lay non oth to this statut a-dele,
 But kepe who might, as gave him his corage :
 Now get this garland, lusty folk of age.

Now win who may, ye lusty folk of youth,
 This garland fresh, of floures rede and whyte, 450
 Purpill and blewe, and colours †ful uncouth,
 And I shal croune him king of all delyt !
 In al the court there was not, to my sight,
 A lover trew, that he ne was adred,
 When he expresse hath herd the statut red. 455

The seventeenth statut, Whan age approchith on,
 And lust is leid, and all the fire is queint,
 As freshly than thou shalt begin to fon,
 And dote in love, and all her image paint

 For that shall make thyn hert rejoise and daunce.
 And when thou mayst no more the game assay,
 The statut †bit thee pray for hem that may.

The eighteenth statut, hoolly to commend, 470
 To plesse thy lady, is, That thou eschewe
 With sluttishness thy-self for to offend;
 Be jolif, fresh, and fete, with thinges newe,
 Courtly with maner, this is all thy due,
 Gentill of port, and loving clenlinesse; 475
 This is the thing that lyketh thy maistresse.

And not to wander lich a dulled ass,
 Ragged and torn, disgyssed in array,
 Ribaud in speche, or out of mesure pass,
 Thy bound exceding; think on this alway: 480
 For women †been of tender hertes ay,
 And lightly set their plesire in a place;
 Whan they misthink, they lightly let it passe.

The nineteenth statut, Mete and drink forgete:
 Ech other day, see that thou fast for love, 485
 For in the court they live withouten mete,
 Sauf such as cometh from Venus all above;
 They take non heed, in pain of greet reprove,
 Of mete and drink, for that is all in vain;
 Only they live by sight of their sovereign. 490

The twentieth statut, last of everichoon,
 Enroll it in thyn hertes privitee;
 To wring and wail, to turn, and sigh and grone,
 When that thy lady absent is from thee;
 And eke renew the wordes [all] that she 495
 Bitween you twain hath seid, and all the chere
 That thee hath mad thy lyves lady dere.

And see thyn herte in quiet ne in rest

Be diligent, till tyme thy lyfe be reft,
In that thou mayst, thy lady for to see;
This statut was of old antiquitee.

An officer of high auctoritee, 505
Cleped Rigour, made us swere anon:
He nas corrupt with parcialitee,
Favour, prayer, ne gold that cherely shoon;
'Ye shall,' quod he, 'now sweren here echoon,
Yong and old, to kepe, in that tye may, 510
The statuts truly, all, afir this day.'

O god, thought I, hard is to make this oth!
But to my pouer shall I thaim observe;
In all this world nas mater half so loth,
To swere for all; for though my body sterue, 515
I have no might the hole for to reserve.
But herkin now the cace how it befell:
After my oth was mad, the trowth to tell,

I turned leues, loking on this boke,
Where other statuts were of women shene; 520
And right furthwith Rigour on me gan loke
Full angrily, and seid unto the quene
I traitour was, and charged me let been:
'There may no man,' quod he, 'the statut[s] know,
That long to woman, hy degree ne low. 525

In secret wyse thay kepten been full close,
They sowne echon to libertie, my frend;
Plesaunt thay be, and to their own purpose;
There wot no wight of thaim, but god and fend,
Ne naught shall wit, unto the worldes end. 530
The quene hath yeve me charge, in pain to dye,
Never to rede ne seen thaim with myn ye.

For men shall not so nere of counsell ben,
With womanhode, ne knowen of her gyse,
Ne what they think, ne of their wit th'engyn; 535
I me report to Salamon the wyse,
And mighty Sampson, which begyled thryes
With Dalida was: he wot that, in a throw,
There may no man statut of women knowe.

For it paraventure may right so befall, 540
 That they be bound by nature to disceive,
 And spinne, and wepe, and sugre strewe on gall,
 The hert of man to ravissch and to reyvye,
 And whet their tong as sharp as swerd or gleyve :
 It may betyde, this is their ordinaunce ; 545
 So must they lowly doon the observaunce,

 And kepe the statut yeven thaim of kind,
 Or such as love hath yeve hem in their lyfe.
 Men may not wete why turneth every wind,
 Nor waxen wyse, nor ben inquisityf 550
 To know secret of maid, widow, or wyfe ;
 For they their statutes have to thaim reserved,
 And never man to know thaim hath deserved.

 Now dress you furth, the god of Love you gyde !'
 Quod Rigour than, 'and seek the temple bright 555

 Beseche her, by [the] influence and might
 Of al her vertue, you to teche a-right,
 How for to serve your ladies, and to plesse,

 And ye that ben unpurveyed, †pray her eke
 Comfort you soon with grace and destinee,
 That ye may set your hert there ye may lyke,
 In suche a place, that it to love may be Honour and worship, and felicitee 565
 To you for ay. Now goth, by one assent.'
 'Graunt mercy, sir !' quod we, and furth we went

 Devoutly, soft and esy pace, to see
 Venus the goddes image, all of gold :
 And there we founde a thousand on their knee, 570
 Sum freshe and feire, som dedely to behold,
 In sondry mantils new, and som were old,
 Som painted were with flames rede as fire,
 Outward to shew their inward hoot desire :

 With dolefull chere, full fele in their complaint 575
 Cried 'Lady Venus, rewe upon our sore !

And ponish, Lady, grevously, we pray,
 The false untrew with counterfet plesaunce,
 That made their oth, be trew to live or dey,
 With chere assured, and with countenaunce ; 585
 And falsly now thay foten loves daunce,
 Barein of rewth, untrue of that they seid,
 Now that their lust and plesire is alleyd.'

Yet eft again, a thousand milion,
 Rejoycing, love, leding their life in blis : 590
 They seid :—' Venus, redresse of all division,
 Goddes eterne, thy name †y-heried is !
 By loves bond is knit all thing, y-wis,
 Best unto best, the erth to water wan,
 Bird unto bird, and woman unto man ; 595

This is the lyfe of joye that we ben in,
 Resembling lyfe of heavenly paradyse ;
 Love is exyler ay of vice and sin ;
 Love maketh hertes lusty to devyse ;
 Honour and grace have thay, in every wyse, 600
 That been to loves law obedient ;
 Love makith folk benigne and diligent ;

For what she is, ne her dwelling I not,
And yet I fele that love distraineth me : 660
Might ich her know, that wold I fain, god wot,
Serve and obey with all benigneitee.
And if that other be my destinee,
So that no wyse I shall her never see,
Than graunt me her that best may lyken me, 665

With glad rejoyse to live in parfit hele,

Come on with me, demene you liche a maid,
 With shamefast dred, for ye shall spede, y-wis,
 With her that is the mir[th] and joy and blis :
 But sumwhat straunge and sad of her demene
 She is, be ware your countenance be sene, 735

Nor over light, ne recheless, ne to bold,
 Ne malapert, ne rinning with your tong;
 For she will you abeisen and behold,
 And you demaund, why ye were hens so long
 Out of this court, without resort among : 740
 And Rosiall her name is hote aright,
 Whose harte tas yet [is] yeven to no wight.

And ye also ben, as I understand,
 With love but light avaunced, by your word;
 Might ye, by hap, your fredom maken bond, 745
 And fall in grace with her, and wele accord,
 Well might ye thank the god of Love and lord;
 For she that ye sawe in your dreame appere,
 To love suche one, what are tye than the nere?

Yit wot ye what? as my rememb[e]raunce 750
 Me yevith now, ye fayn, where that ye sey
 That ye with love had never acquaintance,
 Sauf in your dreame right late this other day :
 Why, yis, parde! my life, that durst I lay,
 That ye were caught upon an heth, when I 755
 Saw you complain, and sigh full pitously;

Within an erber, and a garden fair
 With floures growe, and herbes vertuous,
 Of which the savour swete was and the eyr,
 There were your-self full hoot and amorous : 760
 Y-wis, ye ben to nice and daungerous;
 A! wold ye now repent, and love som new?—
 ‘Nay, by my trouth,’ I seid, ‘I never knew

The goodly wight, whos I shall be for ay :
 Guyde me the lord that love hath made and me.’ 765

But furth we went in-till a chambre gay,
 There was Rosiall, womanly to see,
 Whose stremes sotell-persing of her ee
 Myn hart gan thrill for bewtie in the stound :
 'Alas,' quod I, 'who hath me yeve this wound?' 770

And than I dred to speke, till at the last
 I gret the lady reverently and wele,
 Whan that my sigh was gon and over-past ;
 And down on knees full humbly gan I knele,
 Beseching her my fervent wo to kele, 775
 For there I took full purpose in my mind,
 Unto her grace my painfull hart to bind.

For if I shall all fully her discryve,
 Her hede was round, by compace of nature,
 Her here as gold,—she passed all on-lyve,— 780
 And lily forhede had this crëature,
 With lovelich browes, flawe, of colour pure,
 Bytwene the which was mene disseveraunce
 From every brow, to shewe[n] a distaunce.

Her nose directed streight, and even as lyne, 785
 With fourm and shap therto convenient,
 In which the goddes milk-whyte path doth shine ;
 And eke her yen ben bright and orient
 As is the smaragde, unto my juggement,
 Or yet thise sterres hevenly, smale and bright ; 790
 Her visage is of lovely rede and whyte.

Her mouth is short, and shit in litell space,
 Flaming somdele, not over-rede, I mene,
 With pregnant lippes, and thik to kiss, percas ;
 (For lippes thin, not fat, but ever lene, 795
 They serve of naught, they be not worth a bene ;
 For if the basse ben full, there is delyt,
 Maximian truly thus doth he wryte.)

But to my purpose :—I sey, whyte as snow
 Ben all her teeth, and in order thay stond 800
 Of oon stature ; and eke hir breth, I trow, Surmounteth alle odours that ever I fond
 In sweetnes ; and her body, face, and hond
 Ben sharply slender, so that from the hede
 Unto the fote, all is but womanhede. 805

 A bend of gold and silk, full fressh and gay ; 810
 With here in tresse[s], browdered full well,
 Right smothly kept, and shyning every-del.

About her nek a flour of fressh devyse
 With rubies set, that lusty were to sene ;
 And she in gown was, light and somer-wyse, 815
 Shapen full wele, the colour was of grene,
 With aureat seint about her sydes clene,
 With dyvers stones, precious and riche :—
 Thus was she rayed, yet saugh I never her liche.

For if that Jove had [but] this lady seyn, 820
 Tho Calixto ne [yet] Alcmenia,

 Ye, ne yet Dane ne Antiopa !
 For al their bewtie stood in Rosiall ; 825
 She semed lich a thing celestiall

In bowntè, favor, port, and semliness,
 Plesaunt of figure, mirroure of delyt,
 Gracious to sene, and rote of gentilness,
 With angel visage, lusty rede and white : 830
 There was not lak, sauf daunger had a lite

 But ye must that relese or modifie.'
 'I graunt,' quod she, 'and so I will truly.' 1015

And softly than her colour gan appeare,
 As rose so rede, through-out her visage all,
 Wherefore me think it is according here,
 That she of right be cleped Rosiall.
 Thus have I won, with wordes grete and small, 1020
 Some goodly word of hir that I love best,
 And trust she shall yit set myne harte in rest.

 Ye, than cam Hope and said, 'My frend, let be!
 Beleve him not: Dispair, he ginneth dote.'
 'Alas,' quod I, 'here is both cold and hot:
 The tone me biddeth love, the toder nay;
 Thus wot I not what me is best to say. 1050

Blind appetyt of lust doth often stere,
 And that is sin : for reson lakketh there,
 For thow [dost] think thy neighbours wyfe to win : 1070
 Yit think it well that love may not be sin ;

For god and seint, they love right verely,
 Void of all sin and vice : this knowe I wele,
 Affeccion of flessch is sin, truly ;
 But verray love is vertue, as I fele, 1075
 For love may not thy freil desire akele :
 For [verray] love is love withouten sin.
 'Now stint,' quoth Lust, 'thow spekest not worth a pin.'

And there I left thaim in their arguing,
 Roming ferther in the castell wyde, 1080
 And in a corner Lier stood talking
 Of lesings fast, with Flattery there besyde ;
 He seid that women were attire of pryde,
 And men were founde of nature variaunt,
 And coud be false, and shewen beau semblaunt. 1085

Than Flattery bespake and seid, y-wis :
 'See, so she goth on patens faire and fete,
 Hit doth right wele : what prety man is this
 That rometh here? Now truly, drink ñe mete
 Nede I not have ; myne hart for joye doth bete 1090
 Him to behold, so is he goodly fressh :

This is the court of lusty folk and glad,
 And wel becometh their habit and array :
 O why be som so sorry and so sad, 1095
 Complaining thus in blak and whyte and gray ?
 Freres they ben, and monkes, in good fay :
 Alas, for rewth ! greet dole it is to seen,
 To see thaim thus bewaile and sory been.

See how they cry and wring their handes whyte, 1100

 But all the sin mote on our frendes be.

For, Venus wot, we wold as fayn as ye,
 That ben attired here and wel besene,

 Ferme and feithfull, right as wold the quene : 1110
 Our frendes wikke, in tender youth and grene,
 Ayenst our will made us religious ;
 That is the cause we morne and wailen thus.'

Than seid the monks and freres in the tyde,
 'Wel may we curse our abbeys and our place, 1115
 Our statuts sharp, to sing in copes wyde,
 Chastly to kepe us out of loves grace,
 And never to fele comfort ne solace ;
 Yet suffre we the hete of loves fire,
 And after than other haply we desire. 1120

O Fortune cursed, why now and wherefore
 Hast thow,' they seid, 'beraft us libertè,
 Sith nature yave us instrument in store,
 And appetyt to love and lovers be?
 Why mot we suffer suche adversitè, 1125
 Diane to serve, and Venus to refuse ?
 Ful often sith this matier doth us muse.

 They banne and curse, and wepe, and sein, 'Alas,
 That poverte hath us hent that whylom stode
 At hartis ese, and free and in good case ! 1145
 But now we dar not shew our-self in place,
 Ne us embolde to duelle in company,
 There-as our hart wold love right faithfully.'

And yet againward shryked every nonne,
 The prang of love so straineth thaim to cry : 1150
 'Now wo the tyme,' quod thay, 'that we be boun !
 This hateful ordre nyse will don us dy !
 We sigh and sobbe, and bleden inwardly,
 Freting our-self with thought and hard complaint,
 That ney for love we waxen wode and faint.' 1155

And as I stood beholding here and there,
 I was war of a sort full languisshing,
 Savage and wild of loking and of chere,
 Their mantels and their clothës ay tering ;
 And oft thay were of nature complaining, 1160
 For they their members lakked, fote and hand,
 With visage wry and blind, 'I understand.

They lakked shap, and beautie to preferre
 Theim-self in love : and seid, that god and kind
 Hath forged thaim to worshippen the sterre, 1165
 Venus the bright, and leften all behind
 His other werkes clene and out of mind :
 'For other have their full shape and bewtee,
 And we,' quod they, 'ben in deformitè.'

And nye to thaim there was a company, 1170
 That have the susters waried and misseid ;
 I mene, the three of fatall destinè,
 That be our †werdes ; and sone, in a brayd,
 Out gan they cry as they had been affrayd,
 'We curse,' quod thay, 'that ever hath nature 1175
 Y-formed us, this wofull lyfe t'endure !'

And there he was contrite, and gan repent,
 Confessing hole the wound that Citherè
 Hath with the dart of hot desire him sent,
 And how that he to love must subyet be : 1180

‘Bereve †me, goddesse,’ quod he, ‘[of] thy might,
My skornes all and skoffes, that I have 1185

That in thy service dwell: for I did rave:
This know I well right now, so god me save,
And I shal be the chief post of thy feith,
And love uphold, the révers who-so seith.’ 1190

Dissemble stood not fer from him in trouth,
With party mantill, party hood and hose;
And said, he had upon his lady rowth,
And thus he wound him in, and gan to glose
Of his entent full doble, I suppose: 1195
And al the world, he seid, he loved it wele;
But ay, me thoughte, he loved her nere a dele.

Eek Shamefastness was there, as I took hede,
That blusshed rede, and durst nat ben a-knowe
She lover was, for thereof had she drede; 1200
She stood and hing her visage down alowe;
But suche a sight it was to sene, I trow,
†As of these roses rody on their stalk:
There coud no wight her spy to speke or talk

In loves art, so gan she to abasshe, 1205
Ne durst not utter all her privité:
Many a stripe and many a grevous lasshe
She gave to thaim that wolden loveres be,
And hindered sore the simpill comonaltè,
That in no wyse durst grace and mercy crave; 1210
For were not she, they need but ask and have;

Where if they now approchin for to speke,
Than Shamefastness returnith thaim again:
Thay think, if †we our secret councell breke,
Our ladies will have scorn on us, certain, 1215
And [per]aventure thinken greet disdain:
Thus Shamefastness may bringin in Dispeir,

 He loked blak as fendes doth in hell:—
 'The first,' quod he, 'that ever [I] did twowe,
 Within a word she com, I wot not how,
 So that in armes was my lady free;
 And so hath ben a thousand mo than she. 1225

In Englund, Bretain, Spain, and Pycardie,
 Arteys, and Fraunce, and up in hy Holand,
 In Burgoyne, Naples, and [in] Italy,
 Naverne, and Grece, and up in hethen land,
 Was never woman yit that wold withstand 1230
 To ben at myn commaundement, whan I wold:
 I lakked neither silver, coin, ne gold.

And there I met with this estate and that;
 And here I broched her, and here, I trow:
 Lo! there goth oon of myne; and wot ye what? 1235
 Yon fresssh attired have I leyd full low;
 And such oon yonder eke right well I know:
 I kept the statut whan we lay y-fere;
 And yet yon same hath made me right good chere.'

Thus hath Avaunter blowen every-where 1240
 Al that he knowith, and more, a thousand-fold;
 His auncetrye of kin was to Lière,
 For firste he makith promise for to hold
 His ladies counsell, and it not unfold;
 Wherefore, the secret when he doth unshit, 1245
 Than lyeth he, that all the world may wit.

 And than the wren gan skippen and to daunce.

'Jube, Domine, Lord of Love, I pray

 Marters for love ; god yive the sowles spede !
 And to thee, Venus, tising we, out of drede,
 By influence of all thy vertue grete,
 Beseching thee to kepe us in our hete.'

The second lesson robin redebrest sang, 1380
 'Hail to the god and goddess of our lay !'
 And to the lectorn tamorously he sprang :—
 'Hail,' quod [he] eke, 'O fresh seson of May,
 Our moneth glad that singen on the spray !
 Hail to the floures, rede, and whyte, and blewe, 1385
 Which by their vertue make our lustes newe !'

The thrid lesson the turtill-dove took up,
 And therat lough the mavis [as] in scorn :
 He said, 'O god, as mot I dyne or sup,
 This folissh gode will give us all an horn ! 1390
 There been right here a thousand better born,
 To rede this lesson, which, as well as he,
 And eke as hot, can love in all degree.'

The turtill-dove said, 'Welcom, welcom, May,
 Gladsom and light to loveres that ben trewe ! 1395
 I thank thee, Lord of Love, that doth purvey
 For me to rede this lesson all of dewe ;

1410

'Laudate,' sang the lark with voice full shrill ;
 And eke the kite, 'O admirabile ;
 This quere will throgh myne eris pers and thrill ;
 But what ? welcom this May seson,' quod he ;
 'And honour to the Lord of Love mot be,
 That hath this feest so solemn and so high :'
 'Amen,' seid all ; and so seid eke the pye.

1420

And furth the cokkow gan procede anon,
 With 'Benedictus' thanking god in hast,
 That in this May wold visite thaim echon,
 And gladden thaim all whyl the fest shall last :
 And therewithall a-loughter out he brast,
 'I thank it god that I shuld end the song,
 And all the service which hath been so long.'

1425

Thus sang thay all the service of the fest,
 And that was don right erly, to my dome ;
 And furth goth all the Court, both most and lest,

NOTES.

I. THE TESTAMENT OF LOVE.

THE text is from Thynne's first edition (1532); the later reprints are of inferior value. No MS. of this piece is known. Rejected spellings are given at the bottom of each page. Conjectural emendations are marked by a prefixed obelus (†). In many places, words or letters are supplied, within square brackets, to complete or improve the sense. For further discussion of this piece, see the Introduction.

BOOK I.

Prologue. 1. The initial letters of the chapters in Book I. form the words MARGARETE OF. See the Introduction.

3. by queynt knitting coloures, by curious fine phrases, that 'knit' or join the words or verses together. For colours=fine phrases, cf. Ch., HF. 859; C. T., E 16, F 726.

7. for, because, seeing that; boystous, rough, plain, unadorned; cf. l. 12. The Glossary in vol. vi should be compared for further illustration of the more difficult words.

19. for the first leudnesse, on account of the former lack of skill.

21. yeve sight, enable men to see clearly.

30. conne jumpere suche termes, know how to jumble such terms together. Jumpere should rather be spelt jumpre; cf. jomppe in the Gloss. to Chaucer. For such words, see the Glossary appended to the present volume.

but as, except as the jay chatters English; i. e. without understanding it; cf. Ch. Prol. 642.

43. necessaries to cac'he, to lay hold of necessary ideas. Throughout this treatise, we frequently find the verb placed after the substantive which it governs, or relegated to the end of the clause or sentence. This absurd affectation often greatly obscures the sense.

45. The insertion of the words perfeccion is is absolutely necessary to the sense; cf. ll. 47, 50. For the general argument, cf. Ch. Boeth. iii.

proses 10 and 11, where 'perfection' is represented by suffisaunce, as, e.g., in iii. pr. 11. l. 18.

50. Aristotle's Metaphysics begins with the words: πάντες ἄνθρωποι τοῦ εἰδέναι ὀρέγονται φύσει, all men by nature are actuated by the desire of knowledge. The reference to this passage is explicitly given in the Romans of Partenay, ll. 78-87; and it was doubtless a much worn quotation. And see l. 64 below.

58. sightful and knowing, visible and capable of being known.

61. David. The whole of this sentence is so hopelessly corrupt that I can but give it up. Possibly there is a reference to Ps. cxxxix. 14. me in makeinge may be put for 'in makinge me.' Tune is probably a misprint for time; lent may be an error for sent; but the whole is hopelessly wrong.

64. Apparently derived from Aristotle, De Animalibus, bk. i. c. 5. The general sense is that created things like to know both their creator and the causes of natural things akin to them (οἰκεῖα).

67. Considred; i. e. the forms of natural things and their creation being considered, men should have a great natural love to the Workman that made them.

68. me is frequently written for men, the unemphatic form of man, in the impersonal sense of 'one' or 'people'; thus, in King Horn, ed. Morris, 366, 'ne recche i what me telle' means 'I care not what people may say.' Strict grammar requires the form him for hem in l. 69, as me is properly singular; but the use of hem is natural enough in this passage, as me really signifies created beings in general. Cf. me in ch. i. l. 18 below.

80. Styx is not 'a pit,' but a river. The error is Chaucer's; cf. 'Stix, the put of helle,' in Troil. iv. 1540. Observe the expression—'Stygiamque paludem'; Vergil, Aen. vi. 323.

86. I. e. 'rend the sword out of the hands of Hercules, and set Hercules' pillars at Gades a mile further onward.' For the latter allusion, see Ch. vol. ii. p. lv; it may have been taken from Guido delle Colonne. And see Poem VIII (below), l. 349. Gades, now Cadiz.

89. the spere, the spear. There seems to be some confusion here. It was King Arthur who drew the magic sword out of the stone, after 150 knights had failed in the attempt; see Merlin, ed. Wheatley (E. E. T. S.), pp. 100-3. Alexander's task was to untie the Gordian knot.

90. And that; 'and who says that, surpassing all wonders, he will be master of France by might, whereas even King Edward III could not conquer all of it.' An interesting allusion.

96. unconninge, ignorance. There is an unpublished treatise called 'The Cloud of Unknowing'; but it is probably not here alluded to.

98. gadered, gathered. Thynne almost invariably commits the anachronism of spelling the words gader, fader, moder, togider. and the like, with th; and I have usually set him right, marking such corrections with a prefixed obelus (†). Cf. weder in l. 123 below.

100. rekes, ricks. The idea is from Chaucer, L. G. W. 73-4.

101, 102. his reson, the reason of him. hayne, hatred.

110. Boëce, Boethius. No doubt the author simply consulted Chaucer's translation. See the Introduction.

115. slye, cunning; evidently alluding to the parable of the unjust steward.

117. Aristotle. The allusion appears to be to the Nicomachean Ethics, bk. i. c. 7: δόξειε δ' ἂν παντὸς εἶναι προαγαγεῖν, . . . παντὸς γὰρ προσθεῖναι τὸ ἐλλείπον.

122. betiden, happened to me; the i is short. This sudden transition to the mention of the author's pilgrimage suggests that a portion of the Prologue is missing here.

Chap. I. 1. Copied from Ch. Boeth. bk. i. met. 1. ll. 1, 2.

12. thing seems to mean 'person'; the person that cannot now embrace me when I wish for comfort.

15. prison; probably not a material prison. The author, in imitation of Boethius, imagines himself to be imprisoned. At p. 144, l. 132, he is 'in good plite,' i. e. well off. Cf. note to ch. iii. 116.

16. caitived, kept as a captive; the correction of caytised (with f for s) to caytifused (better spelt caitived) is obvious, and is given in the New E. Dict., s. v. Caitive.

17, 18. Straunge, a strange one, some stranger; me, one, really meaning 'myself'; he shulde, it ought to be.

21, 22. berwent, turned aside; see New E. Dict., s. v. Bewend. The reading bewet, i. e. profusely wetted, occurs (by misprinting) in later editions, and is adopted in the New E. Dict., s. v. Bewet. It is obviously wrong.

23. of hem, by them; these words, in the construction, follow enlumined. The very frequent inversion of phrases in this piece tends greatly to obscure the sense of it.

24. Margarite precious, a precious pearl. Gems were formerly credited with 'virtues'; thus Philip de Thau, in his Bestiary (ed. Wright, l. 1503), says of the pearl—

'A mult choses pot valier, ki cestes peres pot aveir,' &c., or, in Wright's translation: 'For him who can have this stone, it will be of force against many things; there will never be any infirmity, except death, from which a person will not come to health, who will drink it with dew, if he has true faith.' See l. 133 below.

28. twinkling in your disese, a small matter tending to your discomfort. Here disese=dis-ease, want of ease. Cf. l. 31 below.

42. 'It is so high,' &c. The implied subject to which it refers is paradise, where the author's Eve is supposed to be. Hence the sense is:—'paradise is so far away from the place where I am lying and from the common earth, that no cable (let down from it) can reach me.'

59. ferdnes is obviously the right word, though misprinted frendes. It signifies 'fear,' and occurs again in ch. ii. ll. 9, 16; besides, it is again misprinted as frendes in the same chapter, l. 13.

63. weyved is an obvious correction for veyned; see the Glossary.

70. mercy passeth right, your mercy exceeds your justice. This was a proverbial phrase, or, as it is called in the next clause, a 'proposition.'

79. flitte, stir, be moved; 'not even the least bit.'

80. souded (misprinted sonded by Thynne), fixed; cf. Ch. C.T., B 1769. From O. F. souder, Lat. solidare.

83. do, cause; 'cause the lucky throw of comfort to fall upward'; alluding to dice-play.

96. wolde conne, would like to be able to.

99, 100. me weninge, when I was expecting. ther-as, whereas.

116. no force, it does not matter; no matter for that.

117-20. Evidently corrupt, even when we read flowing for folowing, and of al for by al. Perhaps ther in l. 119 should be they; giving the sense:—'but they (thy virtues) are wonderful, I know not which (of them it is) that prevents the flood,' &c. Even so, a clause is lacking after vertues in l. 118.

126. Thynne has ioleynynge for ioleyuyng, i.e. joleyving, cheering, making joyous. The word is not given in Stratmann or in Mätzner, but Godefroy has the corresponding O. F. verb joliver, to caress.

Chap. II. 18. a lady; this is evidently copied from Boethius; see Ch. Boeth. bk. i. pr. 1. l. 3. The visitor to the prison of Boethius was named Philosophy; the visitor in the present case is Love, personified as a female; see l. 53 below.

20. blustringe, glance. But the word is not known in this sense, and there is evidently some mistake here. I have no doubt that the right word is blushinge; for the M.E. blusshen was often used in the sense of 'to cast a glance, give a look, glance with the eye'; as duly noted in the New E. Dict., s.v. Blush. The word was probably written blushinge in Thynne's MS., with a c exactly (as often) like a t. If he misread it as blusthinge, he may easily have altered it to blustringe.

32. neighe, approach; governing me.

37. O my nory, O my pupil! Copied from Ch. Boeth. bk. i. pr. 3. l. 10; cf. the same, bk. iii. pr. 11. l. 160. In l. 51 below, we have my disciple.

60. by thyn owne vyse, by thine own resolve; i.e. of thine own accord; see Advice in the New E. Dict. § 6. Vyse is put for avyse, the syllable a being dropped. Halliwell notes that vice, with the sense of 'advice,' is still in use.

64. 'Because it comforts me to think on past gladness, it (also) vexes me again to be doing so.' Clumsily expressed; and borrowed from Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 4. ll. 4-7.

74-84. From Matt. xviii. 12; Luke, xv. 4; John, x. 11.

92. Love was kind to Paris, because he succeeded in gaining Helen. Jason was false to Love, because he deserted Hypsipyle and Medea. It is probable that false is misprinted for faire in l. 93; otherwise there is no contrast, as is implied by for.

93. Sesars sonke (sic) should probably be Cesars swink, i.e. Caesar's toil. I adopt this reading to make sense; but it is not at all clear why Caesar should have been selected as the type of a successful lover.

95. loveday, a day of reconciliation; see note to Ch. C. T., A 258.

96. 'And chose a maid to be umpire between God and man'; alluding to the Virgin Mary.

114-5. cause, causing, the primary cause, originating these things and many others besides. See note to Troil. iv. 829.

123-4. wo is him; Lat. ve soli, Eccl. iv. 10; quoted in Troil. i. 694.

125. Cf. 'weep with them that weep'; Rom. xii. 15.

138. Here the author bemoans his losses and heavy expenses.

143. For wolde endeynous I here read wolde ben deynous, i.e. would be disdainful; see Deynous in the Gloss. to Chaucer. The New E. Dict. adopts the reading wolde [be] endeynous, with the same sense; but no other example of the adj. endeynous is known, and it is an awkward formation. However, there are five examples of the verb endeign, meaning 'to be indignant'; see Wyclif, Gen. xviii. 30; Ex. xxxii. 22; Is. lvii. 6; Job, xxxii. 2; Wisd. xii. 27.

166. Copied from Troil. iv. 460-1:—

'But canstow playen raket, to and fro,
Nette in, dokke out, now this, now that, Pandare?'

See the note on the latter line.

Wethercocke is a late spelling; the proper M.E. spelling is weder-cokke, from a nom. wedercock, which appears in the poem Against Women Unconstant, l. 12.

173. a, an unemphatic form of have; 'thou wouldest have made me.'

180. voyde, do away with. webbes; the web, also called the pin and web, or the web and pin, is a disease of the eyes, now known as cataract. See Nares, s.v. Pin; Florio's Ital. Dict., s.v. Cateratta; the New E. Dict., s.v. Cataract; King Lear, iii. 4. 122; Winter's Tale, i. 2. 291.

191, 192. truste on Mars, trust to Mars, i.e. be ready with wager of battle; alluding to the common practice of appealing to arms when a speaker's truthfulness was called in question. See ch. vii. 10 below (p. 31).

Chap. III. 14. Come of, lit. come off; but it is remarkable that this phrase is used in M.E. where we should now say rather 'come on!' See note to Troil. ii. 1738.

21. mayst thou, canst thou do (or act)?

25-7. 'I never yet set any one to serve anywhere who did not succeed in his service.'

32. 'the nut in every nook.' Perhaps on should be in.

37-8. There is some corruption here. I insert Tho gan I to help out the sense, but it remains partially obscure. Perhaps the sense is:— 'Often one does what one does not wish to do, being stirred to do so by the opinion of others, who wanted me to stay at home; whereupon I suddenly began to wish to travel.' He would rather have stayed at home; but when he found that others wanted him to do so, he perversely began to wish to travel.

39. the wynding of the erthe; an obscure expression; perhaps 'the envelopment of the earth in snow.'

40. 'I walked through woods in which were broad ways, and (then) by small paths which the swine had made, being lanes with by-paths for seeking (there) their beech-mast.'

42. ladels, by-paths (?). No other example of the word appears. I guess it to be a diminutive of M.E. lade, a path, road, which occurs in the Ormulum; see Stratmann. Perhaps it is a mere misprint for lades.

44, 45. gonne to wilde, began to grow wild; cf. ginne ayen waxe ramage, in l. 48, with the like sense. I know of no other example of the verb to wilde.

52. shippe, ship; not, however, a real ship, but an allegorical one named Travail, i.e. Danger; see ll. 55, 75 below. many is here used in place of meynee, referring to the ship's company; some of whom had the allegorical names of Sight, Lust, Thought, and Will. The 'ship' is a common symbol of this present life, in which we are surrounded by perils; compare the parable of 'the wagging boat' in P. Plowm. C. xi. 32, and the long note to that line.

58. old hate; probably borrowed from Ch. Pers. Tale, I 562; see the note.

64. avowing, vowing; because persons in peril used to vow to perform pilgrimages.

75. my ship was out of mynde, i.e. I forgot all about my previous danger.

84. the man, the merchant-man in Matt. xiii. 45.

105. enmoysed, comforted. Enmoise or emmoise is a variant of M.E. ameise, ameise, from O.F. amaiser, amaisier, to pacify, appease, render gentle (Godefroy); answering to the Low Lat. type ad-mitiare* from mitis, gentle. See Amese in the New E. Dict. No other example of the form *enmoys*e is known.

111. of nothing now may serve, is now of no use (to you).

116. prison; the author has forgotten all about his adventure in the ship, and is now back in prison, as in ch. i.

118. renyant forjued, a denier (of his guilt) who has been wrongfully condemned.

121. suche grace and non hap, such favour and no mere luck.

124. let-games; probably from Troil. iii. 527; spoilers of sport or happiness. wayters, watchers, watch-men, guards.

131. nothing as ye shulde, not at all as you ought to do.

148. feld, felled, put down, done away with.

153-4. For he . . . suffer, a perfect alliterative line; imitated from P. Plowm. C. xxi. 212:—'For wot no wight what wele is, that never wo suffrede.' Clearly quoted from memory; cf. notes to bk. ii. ch. 9. 178, and ch. 13. 86.

157. happy hevinesse, fortunate grief; a parallel expression to lyking tene, i.e. pleasing vexation, in l. 158. These contradictory phrases were much affected by way of rhetorical flourish. For a long passage of this character, cf. Rom. Rose, 4703-50.

158. harse is almost certainly a misprint for harme; then goodly harme means much the same as lyking tene (see note above). So, in Rom. Rose, 4710, 4733, 4743, we find mention of 'a sweet peril,' 'a joyous pain,' and 'a sweet hell.'

Chap. IV. 2. semed they boren, they seemed to bore; boren being in the infin. mood.

18. For or read for, to make sense; for of disese, for out of such distress come gladness and joy, so poured out by means of a full vessel, that such gladness quenches the feeling of former sorrows. Here gladnesse and joy is spoken of as being all one thing, governing the singular verb is, and being alluded to as it.

25. commensal, table-companion; from F. commensal, given in Cotgrave. See the New E. Dict.

27. soukinges, suckings, draughts of milk; cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. i. pr. 2. l. 4.

36. clothe, cloth. This circumstance is copied from Ch. Boeth. bk. i. pr. 2. l. 19.

42. This reference to Love, as controlling the universe, is borrowed from Boeth. bk. ii. met. 8.

47. Read werne (refuse) and wol (will); 'yet all things desire that you should refuse help to no one who is willing to do as you direct him.'

56. every thing in coming, every future thing. contingent, of uncertain occurrence; the earliest known quotation for this use of the word in English.

61-2. many let-games; repeated from above, ch. iii. ll. 124-8. thy moeble; from the same, ll. 131-2.

64. by the first, with reference to your first question; so also by that other, with reference to your second question, in l. 71.

Chap. V. 8. Acrisius shut his daughter Danaë up in a tower, to keep her safe; nevertheless she became the mother of Perseus, who afterwards killed Acrisius accidentally.

14. entremellen, intermingle hearts after merely seeing each other.

16. beestes, animals, beings; not used contemptuously; equivalent to living people in ll. 17, 18.

20. esployte, success, achievement; see Exploit in the New E. Dict.

29. Supply don; 'and I will cause him to come to bliss, as being one of my own servants.'

35. and in-to water, and jumps into the water and immediately comes up to breathe; like an unsuccessful diver.

37. A tree, &c.; a common illustration; cf. Troil. i. 964.

43. this countrè; a common saying; cf. Troil. ii. 28 (and note), 42. And see l. 47 below.

45. 'the salve that he healed his heel with.' From HF. 290.

71. jangelers; referring to l. 19 above. lokers; referring to overlokers; in ch. iii. l. 128.

72. wayters; referring to ch. iii. l. 128.

77. 'It is sometimes wise to feign flight.' Cf. P. Plowman, C. xxii. 103.

85. cornes, grains of corn. I supply bare, i. e. empty.

86-7. Who, &c. ; a proverb ; from Troil. v. 784.

87-8. After grete stormes ; see note to P. Plowman, C. xxi. 454.

92. grobbed, grubbed ; i. e. dug about. Cf. Isaiah, v. 2.

95. a, have (as before). Lya, Leah ; Lat. Lia, in Gen. xxix. 17 (Vulgate).

103. eighteth, eighth ; an extraordinary perversion of the notion of the sabbatical year. So below, in l. 104, we are informed that the number of workdays is seven ; and that, in Christian countries, the day of rest is the eighth day in the week ! kinrest, rest for the kin or people ; a general day of rest. I know of no other example of this somewhat clumsy compound.

110. sothed, verified ; referring to Luke, xiv. 29.

113. conisance, badge. Badges for retainers were very common at this date. See Notes to Richard the Redeless, ii. 2.

117-9. Copied from P. Plowman, C. vii. 24, 25 :—

‘Lauhyng al aloude, for lewede men sholde
Wene that ich were witty, and wyser than another ;
Scorner and unskilful to hem that skil shewed.’

As these lines are not found in the earlier versions, it follows that the author was acquainted with the latest version.

124. a bridge ; i. e. to serve by way of retreat for such as trust them. wolves, destroyers ; here meant as a complimentary epithet.

127. This idea, of Jupiter’s promotion, from being a bull, to being the mate of Europa, is extremely odd ; still more so is that of the promotion of Aeneas from being in hell (l. 129). Cf. Europe in Troil. iii. 722.

128. lowest degrè ; not true, as Caesar’s father was praetor, and his aunt married Marius. But cf. C. T., B 3862.

Chap. VI. 3. enfame, infamy, obloquy ; from Lat. infamia. Godefroy gives enfamer, to dishonour. The word only occurs in the present treatise ; see ll. 6, 7, 15.

12. From Prov. xxvii. 6 : ‘Meliora sunt vulnera diligentis quam fraudulenta oscula odientis.’

17. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 6. ll. 5-13.

23. Cf. the same ; bk. iv. pr. 7. ll. 34-42.

27. Cf. the same ; bk. ii. pr. 5. ll. 121, 122.

30. Cf. the same ; bk. iv. pr. 6. ll. 184-191.

48. Zedeoreys (or zedeoreys). I can find nothing resembling this strange name, nor any trace of its owner’s dealings with Hannibal.

53. The (possibly imaginary) autobiographical details here supplied have been strangely handled for the purpose of insertion into the life of Chaucer, with which they have nothing to do. See Morris’s Chaucer, vol. i. p. 32 (Aldine edition). The author tells us very little, except that tumults took place in London, of which he was a native, and that he had knowledge of some secret which he was pressed to betray, and did so in order to serve his own purposes.

77-8. From Chaucer, Troil. v. 6, 7:—

—‘shal dwelle in pyne
Til Lachesis his threed no lenger twyne.’

107. Referring to John, xiv. 27.

114. Athenes; Athene was the goddess who maintained the authority of law and order, and in this sense was ‘a god of peace.’ But she was certainly also a goddess of battles.

139. mighty senatoures. It has been conjectured that the reference is to John of Gaunt. In the Annals of England, under the date 1384, it is noted that ‘John of Northampton, a vehement partisan of the duke, is tried and sentenced to imprisonment and forfeiture. An attempt is also made to put the duke on his trial.’ John of Northampton had been mayor of London in 1382, when there was a dispute between the court and the citizens regarding his election; perhaps the words comen eleccion (common election), in l. 125 above, may refer to this trouble; so also free eleccion in l. 140. In l. 143 we must read fate, not face; the confusion between c and f is endless. Perhaps governours in l. 144 should be governour, as in l. 147. Note that the author seems to condemn the disturbers of the peace.

157. coarted by payninge dures, constrained by painful duress (or torture).

165. sacrament, my oath of allegiance. Note that the author takes credit for giving evidence against the riotous people; for which the populace condemned him as a liar (l. 171).

178. passed, surpassed (every one), in giving me an infamous character.

181. reply, i. e. to subvert, entirely alter, recall; lit. to fold or bend back.

189. Here the author says, more plainly, that he became unpopular for revealing a conspiracy.

193. out of denwere, out of doubt, without doubt. Such is clearly the sense; but the word denwere is rejected from the New E. Dict., as it is not otherwise known, and its form is suspicious. It is also omitted in Webster and in the Century Dictionary. Bailey has ‘denwere, doubt,’ taken from Speght’s Chaucer, and derived from this very passage. Hence Chatterton obtained the word, which he was glad to employ. It occurs, for instance, in his poem of Goddwyn, ed. Skeat, vol. ii. p. 100:

—‘No denwere in my breast I of them feel.’

The right phrase is simply out of were; cf. ‘without were’ in the Book of the Duchess, 1295. I think the letters den may have been prefixed accidentally. The line, as printed in Thynne, stands thus: ‘denwere al the sothe knowe of these thinges.’ I suggest that den is an error for don, and the word don ought to come at the end of the line (after thinges) instead of at the beginning. This would give the readings

'out of were' and 'these thinges don in acte'; both of which are improvements.

194. but as, only as, exactly as.

198. clerkes, i. e. Chaucer, HF. 350; Vergil, Aen. iv. 174.

200. of mene, make mention of. Cf. 'hit is a schep[h]erde that I of mene'; Ancient Metrical Tales, ed. Hartshorne, p. 74.

Chap. VII. 10. profered, offered wager of battle; hence the mention of Mars in l. 11. Cf. note to ch. ii. 191 above, p. 455.

23. he, i. e. thine adversary shall bring dishonour upon you in no way.

34. Indifferent, impartial. who, whoever.

38. discovered, betrayed; so that the author admits that he betrayed his mistress.

46. that sacrament, that the oath to which you swore, viz. when you were charged upon your oath to tell the truth. That is, his oath in the court of justice made him break his private oath.

49. trew is certainly an error for trewthe; the statement is copied from Jer. iv. 2:—'Et iurabis . . . in veritate, et in iudicio, et in iustitia.' So in l. 58 below, we have: 'in jugement, in trouthe, and rightwisenesse'; and in l. 53—'for a man to say truth, unless judgement and righteousness accompany it, he is forsworn.'

54. serment, oath; as in l. 52: referring to Matt. xiv. 7.

56. 'Moreover, it is sometimes forbidden to say truth rightfully—except in a trial—because all truths are not to be disclosed.'

60. that worde: 'melius mori quam male vivere'; for which see P. Plowman, C. xviii. 40. Somewhat altered from Tobit, iii. 6:—'expedit mihi mori magis quam vivere.'

61, 62. al, although. enfame, dishonour; as in vi. 3 (see note, p. 458).

63. whan, yet when.

73. legen, short for alegen; 'allege against others.'

75. Here misprinted; read:—'may it be sayd, "in that thinge this man thou demest,"' &c. From Rom. ii. 1; 'in quo enim iudicas alterum, teipsum condemnas.'

83. shrewe, wicked man, i. e. Ham; Gen. ix. 22.

101. emprisonned; so in Thynne; better, emprisouned.

104. brige, contention, struggle, trouble; see note to Ch. C. T., B 2872.

105. after thyne helpes, for your aid; i. e. to receive assistance from you.

108. Selande, Zealand, Zeeland. The port of Middleburg, in the isle of Walcheren, was familiar to the English; cf. note to C. T., Prol. 277. The reference must be to some companions of the author who had fled to Zealand to be out of the way of prosecution. rydinge, expedition on horseback, journey.

109, 110. for thy chambre, to pay the rent of your room. renter, landlord; 'unknown to the landlord.'

112. helpe of unkyndnesse, relieve from unkind treatment.

115-6. fleddest, didst avoid. privè to counsayle, knowledge of a secret.

120-1. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 8. ll. 31-3.

Chap. VIII. 1. Eft, again. Thynne prints Ofte, which does not give the sense required. Fortunately, we know that the first letter must be E, in order that the initial letters of the Prologue and chapters I. to VIII. may give the word MARGARETE. The reading Ofte would turn this into MARGARETO.

4, 5. From Ch. Troil. iv. 3; Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 8. ll. 19-21.

13. and thou, if thou. Cf. Matt. xviii. 12.

27. in their mouthes, into their mouths; Matt. xii. 34.

31. leve for no wight, cease not on any one's account.

32. use Jacobs wordes. The allusion seems to be to the conciliatory conduct of Jacob towards Esau; Gen. xxxiii. 8, 10, 11. Similarly the author is to be patient, and to say—'I will endure my lady's wrath, which I have deserved,' &c.

41. sowe hem, to sew them together again. at his worshippe, in honour of him; but I can find no antecedent to his. Perhaps for his we should read her.

44. The text has forgoing al errour distroyeng causeth; but distroyeng (which may have been a gloss upon forgoing) is superfluous, and al should be of. But forgoing means rather 'abandonment.'

55. passest, surpassest. 59. by, with reference to.

61. Hector, according to Guido delle Colonne, gave counsel against going to war with the Greeks, but was overborne by Paris. See the alliterative Destruction of Troy, ed. Panton and Donaldson (E. E. T. S.), Book VI; or Lydgate's Siege of Troye, ch. xii.

65. leveth, neglects to oppose what is wrong.

66. The modern proverb is: 'silence gives consent.' Ray gives, as the Latin equivalent, 'qui tacet consentire videtur (inquiet iuris consulti).' This is the exact form which is here translated.

73. Alluding to the canticle 'Exultet' sung upon Easter Eve, in the Sarum Missal:—'O certe necessarium Ade peccatum.' See note to P. Plowman, C. viii. 126 (or B. v. 491).

80. lurken, creep into lurking-holes, slink away.

95. centre, central point; from Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 7. ll. 18-20. The whole passage (ll. 94-105) is imitated from the same 'prose' of Boethius.

103. London is substituted for 'Rome' in Chaucer's Boethius. Chaucer has—'may thanne the glorie of a singuler Romaine streccchen thider as the fame of the name of Rome may nat climben or passen?' See the last note.

112-6. From Ch. Boethius, bk. ii. pr. 7. 58-62.

116-25. From the same, ll. 65-79. Thus, in l. 123, the word ofte (in Thynne) is a misprint for of the; for Chaucer has—'For of thinges that han ende may be makid comparisoun.' The whole passage shews that the author consulted Chaucer's translation of Boethius rather than the Latin text.

127. and thou canst nothing don aright; literally from Chaucer: 'Ye men, certes, ne conne don nothing aright'; Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 7. 79. but thou desyre the rumour therof be heled and in every wightes ere; corresponds to Chaucer's—'but-yif it be for the audience of the people and for ydel rumours'; Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 7. 80. Hence heled (lit. hidden) is quite inadmissible; the right reading is probably deled, i. e. dealt round.

134. The words supplied are necessary; they dropped out owing to the repetition of vertue.

135-6. Again copied from Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 7. 106: 'the sowle . . unbounden fro the prison of the erthe.'

Chap. IX. 13. than leveth there, then it remains.

15. for thy moebles, because thy goods.

20. This proverb is given by Hazlitt in the form—

'Who-so heweth over-high,
The chips will fall in his eye.'

Cf. 'one looketh high as one that feareth no chips'; Lyly's Euphues, ed. Arber, p. 467. And see IX. 158 (p. 270).

34. From Chaucer, Boeth. bk. i. pr. 4. 186. The saying is attributed to Pythagoras; see the passage in Chaucer, and the note upon it.

39. a this halfe god, on this side of God, i. e. here below; a strange expression. So again in bk. ii. ch. 13. 23.

46. the foure elementes, earth, air, fire, and water; see notes to Ch. C. T., A 420, 1247, G 1460. Al universitee, the whole universe; hence man was called the microcosm, or the universe in little; see Coriolanus, ii. 1. 68.

64. I sette now, I will now suppose the most difficult case; suppose that thou shouldst die in my service.

71. in this persone; read on this persone; or else, perhaps, in this prisoun.

86. til deth hem departe; according to the phrase 'till death us depart' in the Marriage Service, now ingeniously altered to 'till death us do part.'

96. 'and although they both break the agreement.'

98, 99. accord, betrothal. the rose, i. e. of virginity; as in the Romance of the Rose, when interpreted.

99, 100. Marye his spouse. But the Vulgate has; 'Surge, et accipe puerum et matrem eius'; Matt. ii. 13. The author must have been thinking of Matt. i. 18: 'Cum esset desponsata mater eius Maria Ioseph.'

113. al being thinges, all things that exist.

118. prophete; David, in Ps. xcvi. 5: (xcv. 5 in the Vulgate): 'omnes dii gentium daemonia.'

129. This refers back to ch. iv. 71-2, ch. ix. 14, 20, 56.

Chap. X. 5. last objection; i. e. his poverty, see ch. iii. 131, iv. 73, ix. 14.

12-8. Imitated from Ch. Boeth. bk. i. pr. 4. 200-17.

18. sayd, i. e. it is said of him.

19. aver, property, wealth; 'lo! how the false man, for the sake of his wealth, is accounted true!'

20. dignitees; cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 6.

21. were he out, if he were not in office; cf. l. 23.

26-37. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. i. met. 5. 22-39. Thus, slydinge chaunges in l. 31 answers to Chaucer's slydinge fortune (l. 24); and that arn a fayr parcel of the erthe, in l. 32, to a fayr party of so grete a werk (l. 38); and yet again, thou that knittest, in l. 35, to what so ever thou be that knittest (l. 36).

37-40. From Ch. Boeth. bk. i. met. 5. 27-30.

64-7. From the same; bk. ii. pr. 2. 7-12.

71-6. From the same; bk. ii. pr. 2. 23-5.

76-80. Cf. the argument in the same; bk. iii. pr. 3.

85-120. From Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 8. For literal imitations, compare the other haleth him to vertue by the hookes of thoughtes (l. 104-5) with Chaucer's 'the contrarious Fortune... haleth hem ayein as with an hooke' (l. 21); and Is nat a greet good... for to knowe the heries of thy sothfast frendes (ll. 107-9) with Chaucer's 'wenest thou thanne that thou oughtest to leten this a litel thing, that this... Fortune hath discovered to thee the thoughtes of thy trewe frendes' (l. 22). Also ll. 114-6 with Chaucer (ll. 28-31).

126. let us singen; in imitation of the Metres in Boethius, which break the prose part of the treatise at frequent intervals. Cf. 'and bigan anon to singen right thus'; Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 9. 149.

BOOK II.

Chap. I. The initials of the fourteen Chapters in this Book give the words: VIRTW HAVE MERCI. Thynne has not preserved the right division, but makes fifteen chapters, giving the words: VIRTW HAVE MCTRCI. I have set this right, by making Chap. XI begin with 'Every.' Thynne makes Chapter XI begin with 'Certayn,' p. 86, l. 133, and another Chapter begin with 'Trewly,' p. 89, l. 82. This cannot be right, because the latter word, 'Trewly,' belongs to the last clause of a sentence; and the Chapter thus beginning would have the unusually small number of 57 lines.

1. Chapter I really forms a Prologue to the Second Book, interrupting our progress. At the end of Book I we are told that Love is about to sing, but her song begins with Chap. II. Hence this first Chapter must be regarded as a digression, in which the author reviews what has gone before (ll. 10-3), and anticipates what is to come (l. 61).

9. steering, government (of God). otherwysed, changed, varied; an extraordinary form.

12, 13. after as, according as. hildeth, outpours.

14-8. There is clearly much corruption in this unintelligible and imperfect sentence. The reference to 'the Roman emperor' is mysterious.

21. worweth; so in Thynne, but probably an error for waweth, i. e. move, shift; see wazien in Stratmann.

23. phane, vane; cf. 'chaunging as a vane'; Ch. C. T., E 996.

34. irrecuperable, irrecoverable; irrecuperabilis is used by Tertulian (Lewis and Short).

40. armes; this refers, possibly, to the struggle between the pope and anti-pope, after the year 1378.

51-2. lovers clerk, clerk of lovers; but perhaps an error for Loves clerk; cf. Troil. iii. 41.

62-3. ryder and goer, rider on horseback and walker on foot.

77. Translated from 'Fides non habet meritum ubi humana ratio praebet experimentum'; as quoted in P. Plowman, C. xii. 160. This is slightly altered from a saying of St. Gregory (xl. Homil. in Evangelium, lib. ii. homil. 26) — 'nec fides humana habet meritum cui humana ratio praebet experimentum.' See note to P. Plowman (as above).

83. as by a glasse, as in a mirror; 1 Cor. xiii. 12.

93. cockle, tares. This seems to refer to the Lollards, as puns upon the words Lollard and lolia were very rife at this period. If so, the author had ceased to approve of Lollard notions. In l. 94, love seems to mean Christian charity, in its highest sense; hence it is called, in l. 95, the most precious thing in nature.

96, 97. The passage seems corrupt, and I cannot quite see what is meant. Perhaps read: 'with many eke-names, [and] that [to] other things that the soule [seketh after, men] yeven the ilke noble name.' The comma after kynde in l. 96 represents a down-stroke (equivalent to a comma) in Thynne; but it is not wanted.

99. to thee, i. e. to the 'Margaret of virtue' whose name appears as an acrostic at the head of the Chapters in Book I. and Chapters I-V of Book II; moreover, we find at last that Margaret signifies Holy Church, to which the treatise is accordingly dedicated. tytled of Loves name, entitled the Testament of Love.

103. inseëres, lookers into it, readers.

104. Every thing; with respect to everything to which appertains a cause which is wrought with a view to its accomplishment, Aristotle supposes that the doing of everything is, in a manner, its final cause. 'Final cause' is a technical term, explained in the New E. Dict. as 'a term introduced into philosophical language by the schoolmen as a translation of Aristotle's fourth cause, τὸ οὐ ἐνεκα or τέλος, the end or purpose for which a thing is done, viewed as the cause of the act; especially as applied in Natural Theology to the design, purpose, or end of the arrangements of the universe.' The phrase 'the end in view' comes near to expressing it, and will serve to explain 'A final cause' in the next clause.

107. is finally to thilke ende, is done with a view to that result.

109. After so, understand 'is it with regard to.'

110. the cause, the cause whereby I am directed, and that for which I ought to write it, are both alike noble.

113. this leude, &c.; I have set about learning this alphabet; for I cannot, as yet, go beyond counting up to three.

115. in joininge, &c.; by proceeding to the joining together of syllables.

124. in bright whele, in (its) bright circuit. Chaucer has wheel in the sense of orbit; HF. 1450.

126. another tretyse. As to this proposed treatise nothing is known. Perhaps it never was written.

Chap. II. 2. in Latin. This suggests that the present chapter may be adapted from some Latin original; especially as the author only gives the sentence or general drift of it. But the remark may mean nothing, and the tone of the chapter is wholly medieval.

24. Saturnes sphere, Saturn's orbit; the supposed outer boundary of the spheres of the seven planets.

27. me have, possess me (i. e. love), since Love is the speaker; i. e. they think they can procure men's love by heaping up wealth.

28. Perhaps place the comma after sowed (sown), not after sakke.

29. pannes, better spelt panes; see pane in Stratmann. From O.F. pan, panne, Lat. pannus, a cloth, garment, robe. mouled, become mouldy; the very form from which the mod. E. mould-y has been evolved; see murwlen in Stratmann, and mouldy in my Etym. Dict. (Supplement). whicche, chest, from A.S. hwæcca; see P. Plowm. A. iv. 102, where some copies have huche, a hutch, a word of French origin. Thus pannes mouled in a whicche signifies garments that have become mouldy in a chest. See note to C. T., C 734.

30. presse, a clothes-press; observe the context.

35. seventh; perhaps an error for thirde; cf. 'percussa est tertia pars solis'; Rev. viii. 12. He is referring to the primitive days of the Church, when 'the pope went afoot.'

40. defended, forbade (opposed) those taxations. See Taylage in Ch. Glossary.

42. maryed, caused to be married; cf. P. Plowman, B. vii. 29.

47. symonye, simony; cf. note to P. Plowman, C. iiii. 63.

48. Observe the rimes: achates, debates; wronges, songes.

49. for his wronges, on account of the wrongs which he commits. personer, better parsoner or parcener, participant, sharer; i. e. the steward, courtier, escheator, and idle minstrel, all get something. See parcener in Stratmann.

50. 'And each one gets his prebend (or share) all for himself, with which many thrifty people ought to profit.'

51. behynde, behindhand; even these wicked people are neglected, in comparison with the losengeour, or flatterer.

52. Note the rimes, firsake, take. it acordeth, it agrees, it is all consistent; see note to l. 74 below.

* * *

55. at matins; cf. P. Plowm. C. i. 125, viii. 27.

56. bene-breed, bean-bread; cf. P. Plowm. C. ix. 327.

57, 58. Cf. P. Plowman, C. vi. 160-5.

60. shete, a sheet, instead of a napkin to cover the bread; god refers to the eucharist.

62. a clergion, a chorister-boy; see Ch. C. T., B 1693, and the note.

65. broken, torn; as in P. Plowm. B. v. 108, ix. 91.

66. good houndes; cf. P. Plowm. C. vi. 161-5.

69. dolven, buried; 'because they (the poor) always crave an alms, and never make an offering, they (the priests) would like to see them dead and buried.'

69. legistres, lawyers; 'legistres of bothe the lawes,' P. Plowm. B. vii. 14.

71. 'For then wrong and force would not be worth a haw anywhere.' Before plesen something seems lost; perhaps read—'and [thou canst] plesen,' i. e. and you can please no one, unless those oppressive and wrong-doing lawyers are in power and full action.'

74. ryme, rime. The reference is not to actual jingle of rime, but to a proverb then current. In a poem by Lydgate in MS. Harl. 2251 (fol. 26), beginning—'Alle thyng in kynde desirith thyng i-like,' the refrain to every stanza runs thus:—'It may wele ryme, but it accordith nought'; see his Minor Poems, ed. Halliwell, p. 55. The sense is that unlike things may be brought together, like riming words, but they will not on that account agree. So here: such things may seem, to all appearance, congruous, but they are really inconsistent. Cf. note to l. 52 above.

79. beestly wit, animal intelligence.

99. cosinage, those who are my relatives.

104. behynde, behindhand, in the rear. passe, to surpass, be prominent.

109. comeden is false grammar for comen, came; perhaps it is a misprint. The reference is to Gen. ix. 27: 'God shall enlarge Japheth . . . and Canaan shall be his servant.' The author has turned Canaan into Cayn, and has further confused Canaan with his father Ham!

112. gentilesse; cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 6. 31-4; C. T., D 1109.

116. Perdicas, Perdiccas, son of Orontes, a famous general under Alexander the Great. This king, on his death-bed, is said to have taken the royal signet-ring from his finger and to have given it to Perdiccas. After Alexander's death, Perdiccas held the chief authority under the new king Arrhidaeus; and it was really Arrhidaeus (not Perdiccas) who was the son of a tombestere, or female dancer, and of Philip of Macedonia; so that he was Alexander's half brother. The dancer's name was Philinna, of Larissa. In the Romance of Alexander, the dying king bequeaths to Perdiccas the kingdom of Greece; cf. note to bk. iii. c. ii. l. 25. Hence the confusion.

122. Copied from Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. met. 6 :—‘ Al the linage of men that ben in erthe ben of semblable birthe. On allone is fader of thinges . . . Why noisen ye or bosten of your eldres? For yif thou loke your biginninge, and god your auctor and maker,’ &c.

135. one; i. e. the Virgin Mary.

139. After secte, supply I:—‘that, in any respect, I may so hold an opinion against her sex.’ Secte is properly ‘suite’; but here means sex; cf. l. 134.

140. in hem, in them, i. e. in women. And so in l. 141.

Chap. III. 8. victorie of strength; because, according to the first book of Esdras, iv. 14, 15, women are the strongest of all things.

9. Esdras, accus. of Esdras, with reference to the first book of Esdras, called ‘liber Esdrae tertius’ in the Vulgate.

9, 10. whos lordship al lignes. Something is lost here; lordship comes at the end of a line; perhaps the insertion of passeth will give some sort of sense; whos lordship [passeth] al lignes, whose lordship surpasses all lines. But lignes is probably a corrupt reading.

10. who is, i. e. who is it that? The Vulgate has: ‘Quis est ergo qui dominatur eorum? Nonne mulieres genuerunt regem,’ &c. But the A. V. has: ‘Who is it then that ruleth them, or hath the lordship over them? Are they not women? Women have borne the king,’ &c. This translates a text in which mulieres has been repeated.

17–21. From I Esdras, iv. 15–7: ‘Women have borne the king and all the people that bear rule by sea and land. Even of them came they: and they nourished them up that planted the vineyards, from whence the wine cometh. These also make garments [Lat. stolas] for men; these bring glory unto men; and without women cannot men be.’

21–5. Adapted from I Esdras, iv. 18, 19.

30. ‘That by no way can they refuse his desire to one that asks well.’

32. of your sectes, of your followers, of those of your sex. Cf. chap. 2. 139 above, and the note.

38. wenen, imagine that your promises are all gospel-truth; cf. Legend of Good Women, 326 (earlier version).

41. so maked; ‘and that (i. e. the male sex) is so made sovereign and to be entreated, that was previously servant and used the voice of prayer.’ Men begin by entreating, and women then surrender their sovereignty.

43. trew; used ironically; i. e. untrue.

45, 46. what thing to women it is, what a thing it is for women. Ll. 45–58 are borrowed, sometimes word for word, from Ch. HF. 269–85. See note to l. 70 below, and the Introduction, § 11.

47. ‘All that glisters is not gold’; see Ch. C. T., G 962, and the note. But it is here copied from Ch. HF. 272.

55. whistel, pipe. Cf. note to P. Plowm. B. xv. 467.

60. is put, i. e. she (each one of them) is led to suppose.

- 63, 64. Copied from Ch. HF. 305-10.
 67. they, i. e. women ; cf. l. 58. So also in l. 68.
 68. ye, i. e. ye men ; so also you in l. 69.
 70-81. Expanded from Ch. HF. 332-59 ; observe how some phrases are preserved.
 91. ' Faciamus ei adiutorium simile sibi ' ; Gen. ii. 18.
 92. this tree, i. e. Eve, womankind. So in l. 96.
 100. ' What is heaven the worse, though Saracens lie concerning it ? '
 111. dames, mothers ; cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. met. 6. 1-9.
 114. way, path ; it lightly passe, easily go along it.
 115. This proverb is copied from Ch. HF. 290-1 ; just as the proverb in l. 47 is from the same, l. 272. Compare p. 22, ll. 44-5.
 131-2. Obscure ; and apparently imperfect.
Chap. IV. 2. Either my or to me should be struck out.
 4-8. From Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 2. 3-8. 14-6. From the same, 8-12.
 20-1. by wayes of riches ; cf. richesses in Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 2. 20 ; so also dignite answers to digne of reverence in the same, l. 21 ; power occurs in the same, l. 24 ; and renomè answers to renoun in l. 26.
 21. wening me, seeing that I supposed.
 22. turneth ; ' it goes against the hair. ' We now say—' against the grain. '
 45. The words between square brackets must be supplied.
 55. holden for absolute, considered as free, separate, or detached ; as in Ch. Boeth. bk. v. pr. 6. 169.
 56. leveth in, there remain in, i. e. remain for consideration, remain to be considered. When ' bestial ' living is set aside, ' manly ' and ' reasonable ' are left.
 61. riches, &c. ; from Boethius. See riches discussed in Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 5 ; dignitè, in pr. 6 ; renomè, or fame, in pr. 7 ; and power, along with dignitè, in pr. 6.
 99. as a litel assay, as if for a short trial, for a while.
 100. songedest, didst dream ; from F. songer. I know of no other example of this verb in English. However, Langland has songewar'ie, interpretation of dreams, P. Plowman, C. x. 302.
 113. thy king ; presumably, Richard II ; cf. l. 120.
 116. to oblige, to subject thy body to deeds of arms, to offer to fight judicially ; as already said above ; cf. bk. i. c. 7. 10.
 138. ' Love and the bliss already spoken of above (cf. ' the parfit blisse of love, ' bk. ii. c. 1. 79) shall be called " the knot " in the heart. ' This definition of " the knot, " viz. as being the perfect bliss or full fruition of love, should be noted ; because, in later chapters, the author continually uses the phrase " the knot, " without explaining what he means by it. It answers to ' sovereyn blisfulnesse ' in Chaucer's Boethius.
 141. inpossession is all one word, but is clearly an error. The right word is certainly imposition. The Lat. impositio was a grammatical term, used by Varro, signifying the imposing of a name, or the application of a name to an object; and the same sense of O. F. imposition appears in a quotation given by Godefroy. It is just the word required. When Love declares that she shall give the name of "the knot" to the perfect bliss of love, the author replies, 'I shall well understand the application of this name,' i. e. what you mean by it; cf. l. 149.

147. A goddes halfe, lit. on the side of God; with much the same sense as in God's name; see Ch. C. T., D 50.

Chap. V. 3. richesse is singular; it was probably Thynne who put the following verbs into plural forms.

5. Aristotle. Perhaps the reference is to the Nicomachean Ethics, i. 1.

15-20. The argument is from Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 5. 84, 122.

57, 58. From Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 5. 45-7.

65. Cf. 'Why embracest thou straunge goodes as they weren thyne?' Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 5. 50.

67-77. From Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 5. 52-69.

79-110. From the same; ll. 71-80; 88-133.

Chap. VI. Suggested by Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 6.

11-4. From the same, 57, 58; 54-7; 62-4.

25. dignites . . . is as the sonne; the verb is agrees with the latter substantive sonne.

26-9. From the same as above, 4-6; the author substitutes wilde fyre for Chaucer's flaumbe of Ethna.

30. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 6. 75-8.

38. Perhaps read dignitè in suche thing tene y-wrought; 'as dignity in such a case wrought harm, so, on the contrary, the substance in dignity, being changed, rallied (so as) to bring in again a good condition in its effect.' Obscure, 'Dignities' are further discussed in Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 4.

74-7. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 4. 64-70.

78. Nero. The name was evidently suggested by the mention of Nero immediately after the end of Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 4 (viz. in met. 4); but the story of Nero killing his mother is from an earlier passage in Boethius, viz. bk. ii. met. 6.

81. king John. By asserting his 'dignity' as king against prince Arthur, he brought about a war in which the greater part of the French possessions of the crown were lost.

82. nedeth in a person, are necessary for a man.

99. such maner planettes, planets such as those; referring to the sun and moon mentioned just above; ll. 87, 91. The sun and moon were then accounted as being among the seven planets.

100-1. 'That have any desire for such (ill) shining planets to appear any more in that way.'

117-8. I not, I do not know. and thou see, if thou shouldst see. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 4. 22-7.

123-8. From Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 4. 31-9.

127. besmyteth, contaminates, defiles. Note that the author is here reproducing Chaucer's bispotten and defoulen (pr. 4. 38). The word is noted in Stratmann, because the A. S. besmitan, in this sense, occurs in Mark, vii. 15. The form besmitten is commoner, four examples of it being given in the New E. Dict., s. v. besmit. The verb besmite has escaped recognition there, because the present passage has not been noted. So also, in the next line, smyteth has a like sense. Smitted occurs in Troilus, v. 1545.

129. fyr, fire; from Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 4. 47.

132-4. From the same; ll. 48-53.

138. The sentence is incomplete and gives no sense; probably a clause has dropped out after the word goodnesse. I cannot set it right.

143-5. Imitated from Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 4. 55-7.

153-6. Suggested by the same; ll. 64-70.

164. Cf. 'leve hem in [or on] thy lift hand'; P. Plowman, C. viii. 225.

Chap. VII. Suggested by Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 5.

8. Nero; from the same, bk. iii. met. 4. 4, 5.

14. ensamples; answers to ensaumples in the same, bk. iii. pr. 5. 4.

17. Henry Curtmantil, Henry II. 'Henry short mantell, or Henry the seconde'; Fabyan, ed. Ellis, p. 260. 'In his fifty-fifth year he thus miserably expired, and his son Geoffrey of Lincoln with difficulty found any one to attend to his funeral; the attendants had all fled away with everything valuable that they could lay their hands on'; Miss Yonge, Cameos from English History (1869); p. 180.

20. Copied without material alteration from Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 5. 5-7.

23. power of réalmes; from the same, l. 7.

30-9. Copied, in part literally, from Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 5. 8-17.

39-42. From the same; ll. 20-5.

50-2. Cf. 'Holdest thou thanne thilke man be mighty, that thou seest that he wolde don that he may nat don?' the same; ll. 23-5.

72. overthrowen would be better grammar.

74-8. From the same prose, ll. 25-9.

78. warnisshed, guarded. warnishe, guard; the hour of warnishe, the time of his being guarded.

81. famulers, household servants; borrowed from Chaucer's familieres in the same prose, l. 29.

82. sypher, cipher in arithmetic. Though in itself it signifies nothing, yet appended to a preceding figure it gives that figure a tenfold value. Cf. Richard the Redeless, iv. 53-4:—

'Than satte summe as siphre doth in awgrym
'That noteth a place, and no-thing availeth.'

92. the blynde; alluding to a common fable.

95-6. From Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 5. 32-4.

98-9; 101-3. From the same; ll. 41-6.

105-8. From the same, ll. 48-51.

109-12. From Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. met. 5.

114-6. Here the author suddenly dashes off to another book of Boethius; see bk. ii. pr. 6. 44-5.

117. Buserus; Chaucer has Busirides in his text of Boethius, bk. ii. pr. 6. 47 (whose text our author here follows); but Busirus in the Monkes Tale, B 3293. The true name is Busiris, of which Busiridis is the genitive case. Chaucer evolved the form Busirides out of the accusative Busiridem in Boethius. See note in vol. ii. p. 433.

118. Hugest; substituted for the example of Regulus in Boethius. Hugest is probably an error for Hengest, i.e. Hengist. The story of his slaughter of the Britons at Stonehenge by a shameful treachery is famous; he certainly 'betrayed many men.' See Fabyan, ed. Ellis, p. 66; Rob. of Gloucester, l. 2651 (ed. Hearne, p. 124). The story of his death is not inconsistent with the text. Rob. of Gloucester, at l. 2957 (ed. Hearne, p. 140) tells how he was suddenly seized, in a battle, by Eldol, earl of Gloucester, who cried out for help; many came to his assistance, and Hengist was taken alive. Shortly afterwards, at the instance of Eldad, bishop of Gloucester, Eldol led him out of the town of Corneboru, and smote his head off. Eldad's verdict was:—

'Also doth by this mon that so moche wo ath y-do,
So mony child y-mad faderles, dighteth him al-so.'

The name of his betrayer or capturer is given as Collo in our text; but proper names take so many forms that it is not much to go by. Thus, the very name which is given as Eldol in one MS. of Robert of Gloucester (l. 2679) appears as Cadel in another. Fabyan calls him Edolf (p. 66), and makes him Earl of Chester. Layamon (ed. Madden, ii. 268) calls him Aldolf.

120. 'Omnes enim, qui acceperint gladium, gladio peribunt'; Matt. xxvi. 52.

122. huisht, hushed, silent; cf. hust in Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. met. 5. 16.

130-2. Cf. the same, bk. iv. pr. 2. 31-4.

132. 'But then, as for him who could make you wretched, if he wished it, thou canst not resist it.' The sentence appears to be incomplete.

135. flye, fly; substituted for Chaucer's mous; see his Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 6. 22-4.

139-42. From the same, ll. 25-9.

148-9. Why there, i.e. 'wherefore (viz. by help of these things) there is no way,' &c. Cf. 'Now is it no doute thanne that thise weyes ne ben a maner misledinges to blisfulnesse'; Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 8. 1-2.

Chap. VIII. 5. renomè, renown; answering to glori and renoun in Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 6. 1, 6. But there is not much imitation of Chaucer in the former part of this chapter.

37. abouten, round about ; i.e. you have proved a contradiction.

39. acorden, agree ; by lacking, with respect to blame and praise.

42. elementes, the four elements. Sir T. Elyot's Castel of Helthe (1539) presents the usual strange medieval notions on medicine. He begins by saying that we must consider the things natural, the things not natural, and the things against nature. The things natural are seven, viz. elements, complexions, humours, members, powers, operations, and spirits. 'The Elementes be those originall thynges vnmyxt and vncompoude, of whose temperance and myxture all other thynges, hauynge corporalle substance, be compacte : Of them be foure, that is to saye, Erthe, Water, Ayre, and Fyre.

ERTHE is the moost grosse and ponderouse element, and of her proper nature is colde and drye.

WATER is more subtyll and lyght thanne erthe, but in respect of Ayre and Fyre, it is grosse and heuye, and of hir proper Nature is colde and moyste.

AYRE is more lyghte and subtylle than the other two, and beinge not altered with any exterior cause, is properly hotte and moyste.

FYRE is absolutely lyght and clere, and is the clarifier of other elementes, if they be vyciate or out of their naturall temperaunce, and is properly hotte and drye.' Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. met. 9. 13-7.

50. oned, united ; see the last note.

52. erthe (see the footnote) is an obvious error for eyre ; so also in l. 53. But the whole of the argument is ridiculous.

68-9. Copied from Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 6. 3-4. From the Andromache of Euripides, l. 319 ; see the note in vol. ii. p. 439.

69-71. From Chaucer, as above, ll. 5-9.

75-81. From the same, ll. 9-17.

82. obstacles ; they are enumerated in bk. i. c. 8. l. 98 (p. 37).

85-7 ; 89-97. From Chaucer, bk. iii. pr. 6. ll. 21-34.

99. I do not know the source of this saying. Cf. C.T., D 1109-12.

102-7. From Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 8. 26-35.

104-5. fayre and foule, handsome and ugly men ; hewe, beauty.

107-10. thilke—knotte ; equivalent to 'they ne ben nat weyes ne pathes that bringen men to blisfulnesse' ; Ch., as above, ll. 42-3.

122. Cf. 'But alday fayleth thing that fooles wenden' ; certainly the right reading of Troil. i. 217 ; see note on the line ; vol. ii. p. 463.

124. the sterre, the star of the Southern pole ; so in the next line, the Northern pole-star.

126. out-waye-going, going out of the way, error of conduct ; which may be called, as it were, 'imprisonment,' or 'banishment.' It is called Deviacion in bk. iii. ch. i. 6, which see.

127. falsed, proved false, gave way.

130. Cf. 'It suffyseth that I have shewed hiderto the forme of false welefulness' ; Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 9. 1. With line 131, cf. the same, ll. 5-7.

Chap. IX. 1-5. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 9. 9-11.

9. The 'harmony' or music of the spheres; see Troil. v. 1812 3; Parl. Foules, 59-63, and the note in vol. i. p. 507.

37-8. sugre . . . soot; cf. 'sucre be or soot,' Troil. iii. 1194; and 'in her hony galle'; C. T., B 3537.

54. Flebring; omitted in the New E. Dict., as being a false form; there is no such word. Mr. Bradley suggests flekring or flekering, which is probable enough. The M. E. flekeren, also spelt flikeren, meant not only to flutter, but to be in doubt, to vacillate, and even to caress. We may take it to mean 'light speech' or 'gossip.'

65. 'Good and yvel ben two contraries'; Ch. Boeth. bk. iv. pr. 2. 10.

74. in that mores, in the possession of that greater thing.

77-8. Cf. l. 81 below. Hence the sense is: 'and that thing which belongs to it (i. e. to the knot, ought to incline to its superior cause out of honour and good-will.' But it is clumsy enough; and even to get this sense (which seems to have been that intended) we must alter mores to more. The form was probably miswritten mores here owing to the occurrence of mores just above (l. 74) and just below (l. 79). It proceeds thus:—'otherwise, it is rebellious, and ought to be rejected from protection by its superior.'

116. From Troil. iii. 1656-9.

129-38. Perhaps the finest passage in the treatise, but not very original. Cf. P. Plowman, C. xxi. 456-7; Ch. Boeth. bk. iv. met. 6. 20-3.

133. Cf. 'ones a yere al thinges renovelene'; Ch. C. T., I 1027.

134. Cf. 'To be gayer than the heven'; Book of the Duch. 407.

139. Imitated from Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 2. 54-5; but with the substitution of 'garmentes' for 'tonnes.'

143. proverbe, proverb. 'When bale is hext (highest), then bote is next'; Proverbs of Hending; see notes to Gamelyn, li. 32, 631, in vol. v. pp. 478, 486. For hext our author substitutes a nyebore, i. e. a neighbour, nigh at hand.

151. The truth of astrology is here assumed.

155-70. I suspect that this account of the days of the week (though no doubt familiar in those days to many) was really copied from Chaucer's Treatise on the Astrolabe, part ii. sect. 12 (vol. iii. p. 197). For it contains a remarkable blunder. The word noon in l. 163 should, of course, be midnight; but, as Chaucer omits to say when the first planetary hour of the day occurs, the author was left to himself in regard to this point. Few people understand why the day after Sunday must needs be Monday; yet it is very simple. The principle is given in the footnote to vol. iii. p. 197 (cf. vol. v. p. 86), but may here be stated a little more plainly. The earth being taken as the centre of the planetary system, the planets are arranged in the order of the radii of their orbits. The nearest planet is the Moon, then Mercury, Venus, the Sun, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn. These were arranged by the astrologers in the reverse order; viz. Saturn, Jupiter,

Mars, Sun, Venus, Mercury, Moon; after which the rotation began over again, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, &c.; as before. If we now divide Sunday into twenty-four hours, and assign the first of these to the Sun, the second to Venus (next in rotation), the third to Mercury, and so on, the eighth hour will again fall to the Sun, and so will the fifteenth and the twenty-second. Consequently, the twenty-third (like the second) belongs to Venus, the twenty-fourth to Mercury, and the twenty-fifth to the Moon. But the twenty-fifth hour is the first hour of the new day, which is therefore the day of the Moon. And so throughout.

Since the twenty-second hour belongs to the Sun, and the twenty-fifth to the Moon, the planetary interval from day to day is really obtained by pitching upon every third planet in the series, i.e. by skipping two. Hence the order of ruling planets for each day (which rule depends upon the assignment of the first hour) is obviously—the Sun, the Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus, Saturn; or, in Anglo-Saxon terminology, the Sun, the Moon, Tiw, Wōden, Thunor (Thur), Frige, and Sætern (Sæter).

178. Cf. 'here wo into wele wende mote atte laste'; P. Plowman, C. xxi. 210. See notes to ch. 13. 86 below, and bk. i. 3. 153.

180. Cf. Troil. iv. 836, and the note (vol. ii. p. 490).

196. slawe, slain; the usual expression; cf. Compl. of Mars, 186; Compl. unto Pitè, 112.

Chap. X. 1-6. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 9. 1-4; pr. 10. 1-4.

7. three lyves; as mentioned above, bk. ii. ch. 4. 44-6.

18. firste sayde; viz. in bk. ii. ch. 4. 56.

28-34. Borrowed from Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. met. 7.

37. a fair parcel. Similarly, Boethius recites his former good fortune; bk. ii. pr. 3. 20-43.

45. He insists that he was only a servant of conspirators; he would have nothing to do with the plot (l. 50); yet he repented of it (l. 49); and it is clear that he betrayed it (bk. i. ch. 6. l. 189).

58. farn, for faren, fared. Fortune; cf. the complaints of Boethius, bk. i. met. 1. 19; pr. 4. 8; bk. ii. met. 1.

68-71. From Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 4. 57-61.

81-3. From the same; bk. ii. pr. 4. 122; pr. 3. 61.

84-7. From the same; pr. 4. 127-32.

88-105. From the same; pr. 3. 48-63.

96. both, booth; Chaucer has tabernacle; pr. 3. 56.

105-10; 115-20. From the same; bk. ii. pr. 4. 33-42.

126-9. From the same; ll. 43-7.

133. Here begins a new chapter in Thynne; with a large capital C. See note to book ii. ch. i.

148-50. From Ch. Boeth. bk. ii. pr. 4. 97-101.

155. 'The soules of men ne mowe nat deyen in no wyse'; the same, ll. 122-3.

163. oon of three; see ch. 10. 10 above (p. 83).

Chap. XI. 11-3. Not in character; the author forgets that Love is supposed to be the speaker, and speaks in his own person.

40-8. From Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. met. 8. 3-7, 16-8; pr. ix. 12-16, 66-70; somewhat varied.

56. over his soule; cf. 'but only upon his body'; the same, bk. ii. pr. 6. 31.

56-69. The general idea corresponds with the same, bk. iii. pr. 9. I observe no verbal resemblance.

82. Thynne begins a new chapter here, with a large capital T. See note to bk. ii. ch. i.

93. Plato. This story is told of Socrates, and is given in the note to C. T., I 670, in vol. v. p. 466; from Seneca, De Ira, lib. i. c. 15.

111. conclude seems here to mean 'include,' as in C. T., G 429.

121. habit . . monk; 'Cucullus non facit monachum'; a common mediæval proverb; see Rom. Rose, 6192, and the note.

125. cordiacle is Thynne's misprint for cardiacle; cf. 'That I almost have caught a cardiacle'; C. T., C 313.

Chap. XII. 8. in place, i. e. present; chafinge, warming.

14. neigheth, approaches; and it . . be, if it can be.

17. Donet, primer, elementary book of instruction; named from Donatus, the grammarian; see note to P. Plowman, C. vii. 215.

32. muskle; referring to bk. i. ch. 3. 78.

35. excellence of coloures, its (outward) blue colour. Blue was the emblem of constancy and truth; see note to C. T., F 644 (vol. v. p. 386). For coloures we should rather read colour; the same error occurs in l. 43 below (see footnote).

45. 'When pleasant weather is above.'

46. 'Betokening steadfastness (continuance) in peace'; cf. note to l. 35 above.

47. The following is Pliny's account of the Pearl, as translated by Holland; bk. ix. c. 35.

'This shell-fish which is the mother of Pearle, differs not much in the manner of breeding and generation from the Oysters; for when the season of the yeare requireth that they should engender, they seeme to yawne and gape, and so do open wide; and then (by report) they conceive a certaine moist dew as seed, wherewith they swell and grow big; . . . and the fruit of these shell-fishes are the Pear[l]es, better or worse, great or small, according to the qualitie and quantitie of the dew which they received. For if the dew were pure and cleare which went into them, then are the Pearles white, faire, and Orient: but if grosse and troubled, the Pearles likewise are dimme, foule, and duskish; . . . according as the morning is faire, so are they cleere; but otherwise, if it were misty and cloudy, they also will be thicke and muddy in colour.'

50. The sense of Margaryte in this passage is the visible church of Christ, as the context shews. In book iii. ch. 9. 160, the author tells us that it signifies 'grace, lerning, or wisdom of god, or els holy church.'

52. mekenesse, humility; cf. l. 63. The church is descended from Christ, who is the heavenly dew.

56. reduced in-to good, connected with good; mene, intermediate.

58. beestes, living things that cannot move; the very word used by Chaucer, Boeth. bk. v. pr. 5. 20; compare the passage.

64. There is something wrong; either discendeth should be discended, or we should understand and before to; and perhaps downe should be dewe; cf. l. 68. The reference seems to be to the Incarnation.

68. Here the Protean word Margaryte means 'the wisdom of god,' judging by the context; see note to l. 50 above.

78. This does not mean 'I would have explained it better,' but 'I should like to have it better explained.'

86. Margaryte here means the visible church, as before (l. 50); to the end of the chapter.

91. welde, possess; and all that he now possesses is his life.

108. yvel spekers; this seems to allude to the Lollards, who ought (he says) to be 'stopped and ashamed.'

114. This shews that Margarete does not mean a woman; for it is declared to be as precious as a woman, to whom it is likened.

121. deedly, mortal. Hence Margarete does not mean the church in general, but the visible church at the time of writing, the church militant.

Chap. XIII. 11. 'To be evil, is to be nothing.' The general argument follows Ch. Boeth. bk. iv. pr. 2. 143-94, and pr. 4.

23. a this halfe, on this side of, under; cf. note to bk. i. ch. 9. 39.

30. determinison, determination; a correct form. Cf. venison from Lat. acc. uenationem. Accordingly, the O. F. forms were determinaison, -eson, -oison, as given by Godefroy. He supplies the example: 'Definicio, difinicion ou determineson,' from an old glossary. Hence determination is here used in the sense of 'definition,' as is obvious from the context. Thynne prints determinission, which makes nonsense; and there is no such word. The present passage is entered in the New E. Dict. under determinission, with the suggestion that it is an error; it might have been better to enter it under determinison (or -eson); but it is always difficult to know how to deal with these mistakes of printers and editors.

33. your-selfe sayd; referring to l. 4 above.

35. y-sayd good, called 'good.'

40. participacion; from Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 10. 110.

43. Austen, St. Augustin; and so Pope, Essay on Man, i. 294:—'One truth is clear, Whatever is, is right.'

49. Boece, Boethius; whom the author here mentions just once more; see his former allusion in bk. i. prologue, 110. The reference is to bk. iii. pr. 10. 153-84.

53. apeted to, sought after, longed for, desired. Apete is a correct form, as it represents an O. F. apeter*; but the usual O. F. form is appeter (Littré, s. v. appéter), from Lat. appetere. See New E. Dict., s. v. Appete, where a quotation is given from Chaucer, L. G. W. 1582.

But the right reading in that line is surely appetyteth, as appeteth will not scan; unless we strongly accent the initial As. See vol. ii. p. 137, l. 1582 and footnote, and the note to the line, at p. 328.

56. This stands for This is, as usual; see notes to C. T., A 1091, E 56.

71. betterer, better; not necessarily a misprint. The form bettyrer occurs in the Catholicon Anglicum.

72. his kyndely place, its natural position; cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 11. 100-2.

77. blacke; cf. Troil. i. 642.

82. yeven by the ayre, endowed by the air with little goodness and virtue; because the dew that produced the pearl fell through the air; see note to ch. xii. 47 above. Hence matier is material, viz. the dew.

86. unpees, war. The general argument, with the contrast of colours above mentioned, occurs in P. Plowman, C. xxi. 209-21; cf. also ll. 144-66. Of these lines, ll. 210 and 212 have already been explicitly cited above: see notes to bk. i. ch. 3. 153, and to bk. ii. ch. 9. 178.

92. Pallas; we should have expected 'Minerva'; however, Pallas occurs five times in Troilus.

94. and Mercurie, if Mercury; but it is obscure.

99. a dewe and a deblys. Under Adieu, in the New E. Dict., we find: 'fig. an expression of regret at the loss or departure of anything; or a mere exclamatory recognition of its disappearance; = away, no longer, no more, all is over with. c. 1400 Test. Love ii. (1560) 292/1. Adewe and adewe blis.'

Something has gone wrong here; the edition of 1561 (not 1560) has, at fol. 306, back (not 292) the reading 'a dewe and a deblys'; as in the text. The same reading occurs in all the earlier black-letter editions and in Chalmers; there being no other authority except Thynne. I do not understand the passage; the apparent sense is: 'his name is given a dieu and to devils'; i.e. (I suppose) is renounced. Deblis for 'devils' is a possible form; at any rate, we find deblet, deblerie, for devilet and diablerie; see New E. Dict., under Dablet and Deblerie.

115-6. 'That which is good, seems to me to be wholly good.' This is extremely significant. 'The church is good, and therefore wholly good,' is evidently intended. In other words, it needs no reform; the Lollards should let it alone. In ch. 14. 24, he plainly speaks of 'heretics,' and of the errors of 'mismeninge people.'

130. leve, believe. L. 120 shews that he hopes for mercy and pity; we may safely conclude that he had been a Lollard once. Cf. ch. 14. 2-4.

Chap. XIV. 6. Proverbes. He refers to Prov. vii. 7-22: 'Considero uecordem iuuenem, qui . . . graditur in obscuro, in noctis tenebris; et ecce occurrit illi mulier ornatu meretricio, praeparata ad capiendas animas, garrula et uaga, quietis impatiens . . . dicens . . . ueni, inebriemur uberibus, et fruamur cupitis amplexibus . . . statim eam sequitur quasi bos ductus ad uictimam.'

25. skleren and wimplen, veil and cover over. He probably found the word skleire, a veil, in P. Plowman, C. ix. 5 (cf. also B. vi. 7, A. vii. 7), as that is the only known example of the substantive. The verb occurs here only. Other spellings of skleire, sb., in the MSS., are sklayre, scleyre, slaire, skleir, sleire, sleyre. Cf. Du. sluier, G. Schleier.

29. by experience; i.e. the author had himself been inclined to 'heresy'; he was even in danger of 'never returning' (l. 38).

36. weyved, rejected; he had rejected temptations to Lollardry.

38. shewed thee thy Margarite; meaning (I suppose) shewn thee the excellence of the church as it is.

40. Siloë, Siloam. It is a wonder where the author found this description of the waters of the pool of Siloam; but I much suspect that it arose from a gross misunderstanding of Isaiah, viii. 6, 7, thus:— 'the waters of Shiloah that go softly . . . shall come up over all his channels, and go over all his banks.' In the Vulgate: 'aquas Siloë, quae uadunt cum silentio . . . ascendet super omnes riuos eius, et fluat super uniuersas ripas eius.' Hence cankes in l. 44 is certainly an error for bankes; the initial c was caught from the preceding circuit.

46. After Mercurius supply servaunts or children. The children or servants of Mercury mean the clerks or writers. The expression is taken from Ch. C. T., D 697:—

'The children of Mercurie and of Venus
Ben in hir wirking ful contrarious.'

47. Veneriens, followers of Venus; taken from Ch. C. T., D 609.

52. that ben fallas; that is to say, deceptions. See Fallace in the New E. Dict.

60. sote of the smoke, soot of the smoke of the fire prepared for the sacrificed ox; 'bos ductus ad uictimam'; Prov. vii. 22.

61. it founde, didst find it; referring, apparently, to thy langoring deth.

67-8. thilke Margaryte, the church; by serving which he was to be delivered from danger, by means of his amendment.

70. disese, misery, discomfort; because he had to do penance.

74. He had formerly sinned against the church.

80. 'And yet thou didst expect to have been rejected for ever.'

83. lache, loosen (it); from O. F. lascher, to loosen, relax. Or it may mean 'turn cowardly.'

85. 'Inueni Daud seruum meum; oleo sancto meo unxi eum'; Ps. lxxxix. 20 (lxxxviii. 21, Vulgate).

93. openly; hence the author had publicly recanted.

BOOK III.

Chap. I. This chapter is really a Prologue to the Third Book.

2. discrete, separate; tellinge, counting.

3. Three was considered a perfect number; see below.

6. Time was divided into three ages; first, the age of Error, before the coming of Christ; all that died then went to hell, whence some were rescued by Christ when He descended thither. The second, the age of Grace, from the time of Christ's coming till His second advent. The third, the age of Joy, enduring for ever in heaven.

Deviation; Thynne prints Demacion, an obvious error for Deuacion (m for u); in l. 26, it is replaced by Errour of misgoinge, which has the same sense, and in bk. ii. ch. 8. 126, it is called out-wayegoing. The New E. Dict. has no quotation for deviation older than 1603; but here we find it.

25. I. e. Book I treats of Error or Deviation; Book II, of Grace; and Book III, of Joy.

28. whiche is faylinge without desert, which is failure without merit;
these words are out of place here, and perhaps belong to the preceding clause (after shewed in l. 26). thilke, &c.; amending that first fault.

29. Perhaps for and read an; it refers to guidance into the right path.

37. He says that the English alter the name Margarite-perle into Margery-perle, whereas Latin, French, and many other languages keep the true form. Cf. Lat. margarita, O. F. marguerite, margarete, Gk. μαργαρίτης, Pers. marwārīd, Arab. marjān; all from Skt. manjarī, a pearl.

45. the more Britayne, greater Britain (England and Scotland), as distinguished from lesser Britain (Brittany); see note to bk. ii. ch.
12. 47 above. Pliny says (tr. by Holland, bk. ix. c. 35):—'In Brittain it is certain that some [pearls] do grow; but they be small, dim of colour, and nothing orient.'

56. conninge, certain knowledge; opinion, uncertain knowledge, supposition; as he proceeds to say.

62. We thus learn that it was at this date an open question, whether the sun was bigger than the earth; there were some who imagined it to be so.

68. He here mentions the quadrivium, or group of four of the seven sciences, viz. arithmetic, geometry, music, and astronomy; see note to
P. Plowman, C. xii. 98.

73. These are the four cardinal virtues, Prudence, Justice, Temperance, and Fortitude; see note to P. Plowman, C. i. 131.

79. Why 'two things' are mentioned, is not clear. It was usual to introduce here the trivium, or second group of the seven arts (see note to l. 68); which contained logic, grammar, and rhetoric. For the two former he has substituted 'art,' the general term.

99. twey, two; viz. natural and reasonable; cf. l. 53. The third is moral. Hence we have the following scheme.

Philosophy	relating to the body natural: the quadrivium. reasonable: the trivium. relating to the soul moral: the cardinal virtues.
Law	law natural. right reasonable. custom written: constitution. unwritten: usage.

122. I.e. 'so that harm, (as punishment) for harm, should restrain evil-doers by the bridle of fear.'

125. contrarioustee of, that which is contrary to.

130. and unworthy, even if they be unworthy.

professe and reguler; the 'professed' were such as, after a year of probation, had been received into a monastic order; the 'regular' were such as were bound by the three monastic vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience.

131. obediencer, bound by obedience; used adjectivally; cf. Low Lat. obedientarius.

134. Thus the author was himself bound by monastic vows, and was one of the 'regular' clergy.

146-7. abouten, about (me), near at hand. eche, to increase, lengthen.

156. refrete, refrain, burden of a song; O. F. refrait, refret (Godefroy). 'Sobs are a ready (ever-present) refrain in its meditations'; where his (its) refers to goost, or spirit, in l. 155.

157-8. comming about I not than, recurring I know not when. For than read whan, to make sense.

160. he, Christ; referring to Matt. xxi. 16.

161. whos spirit; 'Spiritus ubi uult spirat'; John, iii. 8; 'Spiritus, diuidens singulis prout uult'; I Cor. xii. 11.

170. wyte that, lay the blame for that upon. Such is the right idiom; cf. 'Wyte it the ale of Southwerk, I yow preye'; Ch. C. T., A 3140. Thynne prints with for wite or wyte, making nonsense of the passage.

Chap. II. 14. lybel of departicion, bill (or writ) of separation; taken from libellum repudiū in Matt. v. 31, which Wyclif translates by 'a libel of forsakyng.'

16. 'I find, in no law, (provision for) recompensing and rewarding in a bounteous way, those who are guilty, according to their deserts.'

19. *Pauly*n, Paulinus. But there is some mistake. Perhaps he refers to L. Aemilius Paulus, brother of M. Aemilius Lepidus the Triumvir. This Paulus was once a determined enemy of Caesar, but was won over to his side by a large bribe.

21-3. I cannot explain or understand this clause; something seems to be omitted, to which it refers.

23. Julius Caesar was accounted as following Cato in justice. The statement is obscure.

25. Perdicas, according to the romances, succeeded Alexander the Great; see note to Bk. ii. c. 2. 116. I do not find the anecdote referring to Porus. It is not improbable that the author was thinking of Philip the physician, who revealed to Alexander 'a privy hate' entertained against that monarch by Parmenion; see the Wars of Alexander, ed. Skeat, 2559-83.

49. right as mater. Cf. 'sicut ad formam de forma procedere materiam notum est'; an often quoted passage in Guido delle Colonne's Historia Troiae; see note to Legend of Good Women, 1582 (vol. iii. p. 329).

65. and right, if right-doing were not in the original working.

82. muste do good nedes, must necessarily do good.

87. ende, object. The reference seems to be to Aristotle, Nicomachean Ethics, bk. i. c. 1, c. 2, or c. 5.

90. goodly, with a good motive. In l. 99, it simply means 'a good motive.'

112. praying ne lacking, praise nor blame.

115. The Latin would be nemo inuite beatus; but I do not know where to find it.

128. free arbitrement, Lat. liberum arbitrium; introduced in order to lead up to a discussion of free will, necessity, and providence; as in Boeth. bk. v.

140. closing, including, implying.

154-60. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. v. pr. 3. 1-18.

Chap. III. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. v. pr. 3 and pr. 4.

26. Cf. the same, pr. iii. 29, and the context.

58. for I love, i. e. because (or since) I love.

74. commende, coming; probably the original MS. had command, the Northern form. We have a similar form lykende, in l. 133 below. In ll. 82, 83, the usual form comming appears.

82-3. In many places, comming is used nearly with the sense of 'future'; cf. ll. 177-8.

126. Here again we have the usual ridiculous contradictions; the sense is—'being wet, I burn; without wasting, I fade.' Cf. Rom. Rose, Eng. version, 4703-50.

128. Thynne has (here and in ch. 6. 147, p. 132) vnbyde, an obvious error for onbyde, i. e. abide, remain; see ch. 7. 161, 163.

131. 'God grant (that) that thing may soon draw nigh to thee.' Neigh is here a verb, as in Bk. ii. ch. 12. 14.

164. that, that which; with nothing, yet not so as to be constrained by anything else.

171. rysinge of the sonne, rising of the sun; this example is borrowed from Ch. Boeth. bk. v. pr. 6. 103, 165.

Chap. IV. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. v. pr. 6. 157-89.

29. and nedeful is, 'and it is necessary that, in order to desire (a thing), he may also not desire (it)'; otherwise, he does not make any choice.

30-1. The words 'But thilke . . . the samie to wilne' are repeated in Thynne's edition, to the destruction of the sense.

59. as now, present; cf. Boeth. bk. v. pr. 6. 28-32.

96-9. A clear case of reasoning in a circle.

112. 'Constituisti terminos eius, qui praeteriri non poterunt'; Job, xiv. 5.

121-6. See Rom. viii. 29, 30. conformes; the Vulgate has: 'Nam quos praesciuit, et praedestinavit conformes fieri imaginis Filii sui.'

129. Cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. v. pr. 6. 35, 71-8.

140. Cf. the same, 12-9, 28-33, &c.

152. Referring to ll. 121-6 above.

165. close and one, are closed and united; here close and one seem to be verbs.

169. by, with reference to.

198-9. no art, in no way (?); but surely an error for nat, as wrylest nat is repeated in l. 200.

206. defendeth, 'forbids something to be movable,' &c.

220. Too obscure to deserve the encomium for perspicuity which follows in ll. 222-5.

232. for right, &c.; 'for nothing at all exists there (i. e. in eternity) after the manner of that which is temporal.'

243. ben to ben, are to come because of God's knowledge.

249. philosophical poete; Chaucer, because he translated The Consolation of Philosophy, and introduced passages from it into his poem of Troilus, notably in Book iv. 963-6, 974-1078. In l. 254, Troilus is expressly mentioned. Most likely, the allusion is to Bk. iv. 974-1078; although this deals rather with predestination than with the origin of evil.

257. storiers, gen. pl. of storier, a teller of a story; cf. O. F. historieur, an historian (Godefroy). Thynne prints starieres; which gives no sense.

262. two the laste, the last two; chapters 13 and 14; but chapter 14 has little to do with the subject.

Chap. V. 4. 'Or as an ook comth of a litel spyr'; Troil. ii. 1335.

33-7. The word welked occurs twice in Chaucer, C. T., C 738, D 277; and wiver once, Troil. iii. 1010.

57. with yuel . . acomered, desires not to be encumbered with evil.

63. 'Why, as soon as one has sprung up on high, does not the other spring up also?' Here 'one' and 'the other' seem to refer to 'will' and 'bliss'; cf. ll. 16, 17, 70, 71.

73-6. Cf. HF. 737-46; Boeth. bk. iii. pr. 11. 98-101.

Chap. VI. 4-7. Imitated from Ch. Boeth. bk. i. met. 6. 5-11.

10. seconde boke; cf. Book ii. ch. 11. 51-69, 102.

12. setling; misprinted setteles; but see setling in ch. 5. l. 23.

17. He here contemplates the possibility of yielding to persecution and threats.

50-1. The five wits are the five senses; P. Plowman, C. ii. 15, and the note.

60. aptes, natural tendencies; used here only; see New E. Dict.

64. terme of equivocas, terms of like signification; terme being an error for termes. Answering to Lat. uerba aequiuoca, words of like signification; Isidore, Orig. ii. 26 (Lewis and Short). Equivocas is formed by adding the Eng. pl. -s to the Lat. neuter plural (New E. Dict.).

Cf. the passage in P. Plowman, where Liberum-arbitrium recites his names; C. xvii. 201. The first name, 'instrument of willing,' corresponds to animus: 'dum uult, animus est'; but the rest vary.

68. reson. Compare the same passage: 'dum iudicat, racio est.'

73. Compare the same: 'dum recolit, memoria est.'

77. affection: a disposition to wish for sleep.

90. that lambes, who scorn and despise lambs.

104. Thynne has vs, which is a not uncommon spelling of 'use.' I merely print 'us[e]' because us looks so unintelligible. In l. 103, the word is usage; in l. 110, we have use.

140. thinges; viz. riches, honour, and power; discussed in Book ii. chapters 5-7.

147. onbyde, misprinted unbyde; see note above, to ch. 3. 128.

Chap. VII. 11. The idea of this Tree is copied from P. Plowman, C. xix. 4-14. Thus in l. 11, the ground in which the tree grows is said to be 'ful in thyne herte'; and in P. Plowman, the tree grows in cor-hominis, the heart of man. In P. Plowman, the tree is called True-love, the blossoms are Benign-Speech (cf. l. 16), and the fruits are deeds of Charity. See note to l. 69 below.

38. Cf. 'As, wry the glee, and hotter is the fyr'; Legend of Good Women, 735.

50. pype; see Troil. v. 1433; C. T., A 1838 (and note).

53. no wode lay use, sing no mad song.

59. Aristotel. The reference appears to be to Aristotle, De Interpretatione (περὶ ἐρμηνείας), ch. 1. Voice seems to mean 'a word unrelated to a sentence,' i.e. not related to something else as forming part of a sentence.

69. So in P. Plowman, C. xix. 29, the tree is attacked by three wicked winds; especially 'in flouryng-tyme,' l. 35.

97. A marchaunt; so in Chaucer, C. T., G 945-50.

99. So ofte; from Ch. Troil. ii. 1380-3; note the epithet happy, the use of the sb. sweigh or swaye, and the phrase come al at ones, in both passages.

101. Cf. 'Gutta cauat lapidem'; Ovid, Ex Ponto, iv. 10. 5.

lethy, weak; see Prompt. Parv., and Gloss. to P. Plowman.

117-121. Compare Bk. iii. ch. 2. 122-9.

123. 'Quod debuimus facere, fecimus'; Luke, xvii. 10.

145. al is, it is all to be accounted to her wholly. To wyte usually has a bad sense; as implying blame.

160. this lady; i.e. Heavenly Love suddenly took up its place in his heart. This is rather inartistic; no wonder that the author was much astonished at such a proceeding (ch. 8. 2 below). This of course puts an end to the dialogue, but in Thynne's misarranged print the lady speaks to him again, as if it were out of his heart!

Chap. VIII. 7. lynnes, written lines of writing, which he imagines to be imprinted on his understanding; see ll. 8, 13, 14 below.

10. me might, one might; me for men=man, as often.

21. but for, except because ; so in l. 22. wol, desires.
 42. owe I not alowe, I ought not to applaud.
 46. it make, cause it (to be so) ; as in Troil. ii. 959.
 91. 'Quia Christi bonus odor sumus Deo, in iis qui salui fiunt ; . . . aliis quidem odor mortis in mortem' ; 2 Cor. ii. 15-6.
 120. ne had, had ; disregarding ne, which is inserted after the word denied.
 123. without . . . nede, without any kind of necessity.
 125. him nedeth, something is lacking to him.
 146. forward, thenceforward, afterwards.
 155-6. in his owne comodité, in what is suitable for him ; comodites, desires that are suitable. The examples of the word in this passage are older than any given, s.v. Commodity, in the New E. Dict. Cf. ll. 159, 165.
Chap. IX. 7. destenee, destiny ; cf. Ch. Boeth. bk. iv. pr. 6. 39, 44.
 12. non inconvenient, convenient ; i. e. befitting.
 21. chapitre, chapter ; viz. ch. 3 of Book iii.
 46. Here Thynne's text returns to the right order.
 52. The author now concludes his work with a prayer and a short recommendation of his book to the reader. Ll. 58-61 speak of its imperfections ; ll. 61-6 tell us that the effort of writing it has done him good. In ll. 67-75 he anticipates future freedom from anxiety, and continuance 'in good plight.' He was then evidently unaware that his death was near at hand.
 86. 'My dull wit is hindred by the stepmother named Forgetfulness.' A curious expression.
 92. horisons, put for orisons, prayers.
 98. sightful, visible ; an obvious allusion to the eucharist (l. 100). Similarly, a gem denotes a pearl, or 'margaret' ; and Margaret (a woman's name) denotes grace, learning, or wisdom of God, or else holy church.
 104. From John, vi. 63.
 107. From 2 Cor. iii. 6.
 109, 110. Printed as prose in Thynne ; but two riming verses seem to be intended. If so, al-le is dissyllabic.

II. THE PLOWMAN'S TALE.

Numerous references are given to Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, ed. Skeat (E.E.T.S.) ; a poem by the same author. See the Introduction.

9. tabard ; a ploughman's loose frock ; as in Ch. C. T., A 541.
 11. saynt Thomas ; i. e. his shrine at Canterbury.
 30. therwith to fynd, to provide for thereby.
 40. queynt, quenched ; because, in the solemn form of excommunication used in the Romish church, a bell was tolled, the book of offices for the purpose was used, and three candles were extinguished. See Nares, s. v. Bell, Book, and Candle. Cf. ll. 165, 1241.

44. Four lines are here lost, the stanza being incomplete. We might supply them thus:—

They have the loof and we the crust,
They eten more than kinde hath craved;
They been ungentle and unjust,
With sinners shullen such be graved.

53. stryf, strife. The struggle was between the secular and regular clergy on the one hand, and the Lollards on the other; see ll. 61-76. Each side accused the other of falseness, and the author hopes that the falsar of them may suffer shame. He evidently sides with the Lollards; but, not caring to decide so weighty a question for himself, he contrives that the dispute shall be carried on by two birds, the Griffin and the Pelican.

55. sedes, seeds. The Lollards were accused of sowing tares (lolias). The author hints that seeds were sown by both of the contending parties.

57. some; referring rather to the sowers than to the seeds. In any case, it refers to the two parties.

58. souple; the text has souble, which is an obvious error. The O. F. souple means 'humble,' which is the sense here intended.

71. a-cale, chilled, frozen; cf. note to P. Plowman, C. xxi. 439; and see the New E. Dict.

72. ever in oon, always in the same condition, without increasing in wealth.

73. I-cleped, called; the old text has Iclepeth, but some editions make this obvious correction. lollers, idle fellows; see the note to P. Plowman, C. x. 213.

74. 'Whoever looks on them (sees that) they are the reverse of tall.' Cf. 'a tall fellow,' and 'a tall man of his hands' in Shakespeare.

81. wro, nook; see wrā in Stratmann.

86. Griffon, griffin; a fabulous monster with the head and wings of an eagle, and the hinder parts of a lion; with probable reference to the Vulture. 'In that contre ben many griffounes . . . thei han the body upward as an egle, and benethe as a lyoun . . . But o griffoun is more strong thanne .vij. lyouns'; Mandeville's Travels; ch. xxvi. See l. 1317 below.

87. 'A Pelican laid his lure to (attracted to him) these lollers.' The Pelican was supposed to feed its young with blood which it drew from its own breast by wounding it, and was early considered as the type of Christian love or Charity, or of Christ himself; see l. 1293. See the illustration at p. 172 of Legends of the Holy Rood, ed. Morris. Hence it is here supposed to plead on behalf of meekness, in the long passages contained in ll. 95-716, 719-988, 991-1072, 1110-32, 1177-232, 1245-68. The Pelican is responsible for the greater part of the poem, as the author distinctly says in l. 1373. Anything that is amiss, we are told, must be put down to the Pelican; the author is irresponsible, as it is only a fable.

106. pelure, costly fur; also spelt pellour; but pylloure (as in the old text) is a bad spelling. See Gloss. to P. Plowman.

111. batail, battle. It was notorious that William Spenser, bishop of Norwich, used to lead military expeditions. Thus he led one such expedition into Flanders, in 1382. Cf. l. 128.

129. 'God is not the master of them that consider no man equal to them.'

130. peragall, equal; spelt 'peragal' or 'paragal' in Rich. the Redeless, i. 71. The old text has permagall, where the m is clearly for in; the spelling peringall being intended. Godefroy has O. F. parivel, also parigal, paregal, perigal, paringal [with intrusive n], 'adj. et s., tout à fait égal, tout à fait semblable.' From Lat. per-aqualis.

135. 'Painted and adorned with colours.' Cf. 'peynt and portred'; P. Pl. Crede, 192; 'portreid and paynt,' 121.

139. boystous, rough. The O. F. boistous meant 'lame' (F. boiteux); but Godefroy shews, in his Supplement, that it was also applied to a very rough road (as being likely to lame one); hence, generally, rough, and finally, rude, noisy, as in the E. boisterous; a word of which the etymology has not yet been fully accounted for, but may be thus explained.

159. perrey, precious stones, jewellery; see Perree in the Glossary (vol. vi). The old text has pyrrey.

162. gown, an obvious correction; old text, gold, repeated from l. 161. For 'grene gownes,' see l. 925 below.

178. This line seems to be corrupt.

186. crallit, curled, twisted; cf. crulle in Chaucer; see New E. Dict.

187. gold-mastling is a compound word, and should have been printed with a hyphen. It means the same as latoun, unless latoun was an imitation of an older and richer alloy. Thus, in Wright's A. S. Vocabularies, we find: 'Auricalcum, goldmæsclinc,' col. 334, 10; 'Auricalcum, goldmestling,' col. 550, 34; 'Auricalcum, Anglice latoun,' col. 567, 5. As to latoun, see note in vol. v. p. 270. Cf. A. S. mæstling, G. Messing; words of uncertain origin.

193-4. Cf. 1 John, iv. 3. admirall, prince, chief.

198. demed; an easy correction; old text, done, which will not scan.

201. All-holyest, i. e. Sanctissimus (l. 230); a title given to the head of a religious order.

208. 'The very thing which Christ forbad to the apostles.'

212. 'They regard him (the pope) as wholly omnipotent.'

213-6. He, the Pope. another, (apparently) a head of a religious order, an abbot or prior. mystere, ministry, office.

220. 'He reserves nothing at all'; opin, open, a thing that is free; joint, a thing that is connected.

226. An angell; see Rev. xxii. 9.

235. Read Christ his; 'Christ keep his people from them'; the printer evidently regarded Christ his as a form of the genitive case. The proper sense of wisse is guide, or direct.

242. which of hem, which of the two popes. The rival popes were Boniface IX, elected Nov. 2, 1389, and Benedict XIII, elected Sept. 28, 1394. Clement VIII, predecessor of the latter, died Sept. 16, 1394.

245. 'Omnes enim, qui acceperint gladium, gladio peribunt'; Matt. xxvi. 52.

255. Swearing was a dismembering of Christ; see note to C. T., C 474 (vol. v. p. 275).

264. 'But curse all that oppose them.'

275. 'But he, who so acquires it, shall part from it.'

281. rent, income, profit; the method of doing this is explained in The Freres Tale, D 1371-4.

282. 'They anoint the sheep's sore'; as a shepherd does with tar; see Tar-box in Halliwell; and cf. l. 707.

293. Maximien; Galerius Valerius Maximianus, usually called Galerius; emperor of Rome, 305-11; a cruel persecutor of the Christians.

297. 'They follow Christ (who went upward) to heaven, just as a bucket (that goes downward) into a well.' Said ironically; their ascent towards heaven is in a downward direction; cf. l. 402. wall for 'well' is rare, but not unexampled; cf. walle-stream, well-stream, in Layamon, vol. i. p. 121, and see walle in Stratmann.

: 05. 'The truth has (often) slain such men.'

306. 'They comb their "crockets" with a crystal comb.' A crocket was a curl or roll of hair, as formerly worn; see the New E. Dict. There is a lost romance entitled 'King Adelstane with gilden krocket'; see footnote to Havelok, ed. Skeat, p. vi. Sir F. Madden remarks that 'the term crocket points out the period [i. e. the earliest possible date] of the poem's composition, since the fashion of wearing those large rolls of hair so called, only arose at the latter end of the reign of Henry III.'

321. Cf. 'turpis luci'; Tit. i. 7, 11; 1 Pet. v. 2.

322. meynall, perhaps better spelt meyneall. It is the adj. formed from M. E. meynee, a household, and is the same word as mod. E. menial. Wyclif uses meyneal to translate Lat. domesticam in Rom. xvi. 5. The sense here is—the exaction of tithes is, with these masters, a household business, a part of their usual domestic arrangements.

325. Lit. 'They betake to farm to their sumners,' i. e. they farm out to their sumners the power of harming people as much as they can; they let their sumners make exactions. The method of doing this is fully exposed in Chaucer's Freres Tale. Cf. ll. 328, 725.

333. 'Such rascals are sure to slander men, in order to induce them to win their favour'; i. e. by compounding.

338. call, caul or head-dress, richly ornamented, and therefore expensive; see note to C. T., D 1018 (vol. v. p. 318).

375. 'Or, to commit such a tool (instrument) to such cursed men.'

402. 'As good a bishop as is my horse Ball.' Said ironically; 'no better a bishop than,' &c. Ball was, and still is, a very common name for a horse.

406. nothing, not at all, not a whit.

410. Old text, one fors, with s attached to the wrong word.

417-8. goodes, property. somme totall, sum total of wealth.

421, 431. for Christes love, for love of Christ. The words forsake in l. 421, and wake in l. 431, are used ironically.

434. Lamuall, Lemuel; who was a king; Prov. xxxi. 1.

443. the stoon, the rock; Matt. xvi. 18; cf. 1 Cor. x. 4.

445. croysery, crusade, as in Rob. of Glouc. 9938. No serious crusade was intended at this time; however, the author affirms that the rival popes discouraged the idea; for each wanted men to fight for him.

464. hye seet, sat aloft; the form seet occurs in Ch. C. T., A 2075.

471. fettes, fetch; observe the use of this Northern plural.

473. 'Their servants are unfaithful [or unserviceable] to them unless they can double their rental.'

477. The author can find no more rimes to rime with fall, so he proceeds to 'shew' or propose another word, viz. amend.

487. 'They tell men nothing, nor (explain) how; yet, in God's word, they tell of (or count) many a slip, or omission,' i. e. find errors in the Scriptures. See Balk in the New E. Dict.

490. offrend; O. F. offrende; cf. 'Offrande, an offering'; Cotgrave.

520. Read punishements, as in the old edition; it is a word of four syllables; from O. F. punissement (Godefroy), which often appears in verse as a word of four syllables.

531. 'They hate guests of the poor,' i. e. hate to entertain them; cf. l. 747.

542. careckes, characters, signs, marks; see the New E. Dict.

567. 'One, to curse to hell; the other, to slay men here (on earth)'; cf. Luke, xxii. 38.

575. 'A sword is no implement to guard sheep with, except for shepherds that would devour the sheep.' In later English, at any rate, a sheep-biter meant a thief (Halliwell). Cf. l. 583.

594. untrend, unrolled; not rolled up, but freshly pulled off.

605. Sathan, Satan; Heb. sātān, adversary, opponent.

610. Read reprende; cf. comprende in Chaucer.

625. ensyse, variant of assyse, fashion, sort; 'they are, surely, of the same sort.' See Assize, sect. 8, in the New E. Dict. Bailey gives: 'Ensise, quality, stamp; Old word'; with reference, doubtless, to this very line. Cf. assyse, fashion, manner, in l. 843 below.

626. frend, evidently put for fremde, strange, foreign, averse; which was difficult to pronounce.

633. Read maundements, i. e. commandments (trisyllabic). The form commaundementes is too long for the line. See mandement in Stratmann and in Chaucer.

642. to prison. Evidently written before 1401, when Lollards were frequently sent to the stake for heresy. Cf. l. 650; and see note to l. 827.

645. 'The king's law will judge no man angrily, without allowing the accused to answer.'

661. testament, a will; the friars had much to do with the making of wills.

681. 'For they (the people) are faster in their bonds, worse beaten, and more bitterly burnt than is known to the king.' For the word brent, see note to l. 827.

693. The emperour; Constantine, according to a legend which the Lollards loved to repeat; see the full note to P. Plowman, C. xviii. 220.

695. sely kyme, innocent (or silly) wretch. Kyme answers to an A.S. cȳma*=kūm-ja*, lit. 'one who laments,' from the verb found in O.H.G. kūmjan, to lament, chū-mo, a lament; cf. Gk. γῶος, wailing; Skt. gu, to sound. See O.H.G. cūm, cūmjan in Schade; and the Idg. root gu, in Fick.

723. 'A title of dignity, to be as a play-mate to them'; a curious expression. Godefroy gives O.F. 'personage, s.m., dignité, bénéfice ecclésiastique; en particulier personnat, dignité ecclésiastique qui donnait quelque prééminence au chanoine qui en était revêtu dans le chapitre auquel il appartenait.' Cotgrave has: 'Personat, a place, or title of honour, enjoyed by a beneficed person, without any manner of jurisdiction, in the church.'

724. Possibly copied from P. Plowman, B. prol. 92:—'Somme serve the king, and his silver tellen.' These ecclesiastics often busied themselves in the law-courts, to their great profit. Cf. l. 790.

725. 'And let out to farm all that business.'

743. bulde; so in P. Pl. Crede, 118: 'For we buldeth a burwgh, a brod and a large.' Cf. Wyclif's Works, ed. Arnold, iii. 380.

748. 'Nor (will they) send anything to Him who hath given them everything.'

759. gigges, concubines; see Stratmann. Roquefort has: 'Gigues, fille gaie, vive.' Cf. giglot in Shakespeare. (Initial g is here sounded as j.)

760. 'And provide them with fine clothes.'

773. Here all the 'seven sins' are mentioned except gluttony.

780. 'The wisdom of such willers is not worth a needle.'

791. jay; so also in Chaucer, C. T., A 642.

801. maynteyners, abettors of wrongdoers; see note to P. Plowman, B. iii. 90.

827. brent, burnt; still more strongly put in l. 1234. That heretics were sometimes burnt before 1401, is certain from Wyclif's Sermons, ed. Arnold, vol. i. pp. x, 205, as compared with p. 354. There is a case given in Bracton of a man who was burnt as early as in the reign of

Henry III. See the whole subject discussed in my edition of P. Plowman (E. E. T. S.), in the Pref. to B-text, p. v, Pref. to C-text, pp. xi-xiv, and the note to B. xv. 81, where Langland has 'ledeth me to brennyngē.' Observe that the king is here spoken of as not presuming to burn heretics.

855. The seven sacraments of the Romish church; cf. l. 875.

856. Compare—'And also y sey coveitise catel to fongen'; P. Pl. Crede, 146.

857. 'They want to meddle in everything, and to perform matters amiss is their amusement.'

868. sturte, variant of sterte, start up; stryve, struggle.

870. at the nale=at then ale, at the ale-house; cf. note to P. Plowman, C. i. 43.

871. Cf. 'At marketts and miracles we medleth us nevere'; P. Pl. Crede, 107.

872. 'They dance and hoot with the cry of "heave and hale."' Heave is here to use exertion; cf. Troil. ii. 1289; and hale is to haul or pull. Heave and hule, or heave and hoe, was a cry used for men to pull all together; hence with heve and hale just corresponds to the modern 'with might and main.' Cotgrave has (s.v. Cor) the phrase: 'À cor et à cry, by proclamation; also, by might and maine, with heave and hoe, eagerly, vehemently, seriously.'

878. they, i. e. the husbands; sory, aggrieved.

880. For, for fear of being summoned.

893. stocke, i. e. some image of a saint. An image of a favourite saint was honoured with many candles burning before it; whilst other saints were left in the dark, because they could work no miracles. The most favourite image was that of Mary; see l. 902, and cf. P. Pl. Crede, 79.

915. 'And alle povere in gost god himself blisseth'; P. Pl. Crede, 521.

918. Baudriks, belts; baselardes, short swords, sometimes curved. See note to P. Plowman, C. iv. 461.

927. counten . . of gownes, they think much (counten) of scarlet and green gowns, that must be made in the latest fashion, in order to embrace and kiss the damsels. An awkward sentence.

929. sewe, sue, suit, lit. follow; unless it be for schewe, i. e. shew.

930. pykes, peaks. Long-peaked shoes were much in fashion; cf. note to P. Plowman, C. xxiii. 219.

941. 'Such men will ask them (i. e. those that confess to them) for money for shriving them.' is=es, them; a curious form of the plural pronoun of the third person; see es in Stratmann.

942. 'And they desire men to creep to the cross.' 'Creeping to the cross' was an old ceremony of penance, most practised on Good Friday; see note to P. Plowman, C. xxi. 475.

943. askes, ashes; alluding to the sacrament of penance. For all other sacraments (as baptism, confirmation, holy orders, the eucharist, matrimony, and extreme unction) men had to pay.

955. sans . . dyre, without (saying) 'if I may say so.' That is, ose je dyre, (dare I say it) is an apologetic phrase for introducing an unpalatable remark.

957. 'Either they give the bishops (some reason) why.'

961. agryse, dread, here used in an imperative sense; 'let such men dread God's anger.' Cf. ll. 964, 1216.

979. for he, because he would fain earn something.

993. Benet, Benedict; cf. Ch. C. T., A 173, and note.

1002. Cf. 'Of double worstede y-dight'; P. Pl. Crede, 228.

1035. Compare—'And his syre a souter' (cobbler); P. Pl. Crede, 752.

1042-4. honged, hung upon, followed after. Cf. 'upon the plow hongen,' P. Pl. Crede, 421. And compare also the same, 784-8.

1050. The line is imperfect. I have supplied but, but the right word is not. For cherelich means 'expensive' or 'prodigal,' from O. F. cher, dear. This we know from the occurrence of the same rare form as an adverb in P. Pl. Crede, 582; where the sense is—'but to maintain his chamber as expensively (chereliche) as a chieftain.' See cherely in the New E. Dict. The parallel phrase not lordlych occurs in l. 1052.

1066. Crede, i.e. Pierce the Ploughman's Crede, written shortly before by the same author, and describing at length the four orders of friars.

1089. sad, sated, tired. The more usual old sense was 'staid.'

1097. 'If they were poor, filthy, and dirty.'

1102. honest, honourable, worthy of respect; cf. l. 1105.

1115. Maysters, masters; Matt. xxiii. 10. Cf. P. Pl. Crede, 574-6, 838; and C. T., D 2185, and the note (vol. v. p. 340).

1135. Read leve, not lyve; with hir leve, with what is permitted to them. For leve (leave), see l. 1238.

1153. For ye woll, because you wish to.

1166. distauce, disagreement, strife; see Mätzner.

1174. 'Why do ye meddle, who have nothing to do with it?'

1189. lette, to prevent men from living in that way.

1193. soule-hele, salvation for the soul.

1200. Pronounce this is as this.

1212. Wedding, matrimony; considered as a sacrament.

1222. 'subject or accident'; cf. note to C. T., C 539.

1231. The line should end with a semicolon.

1244. 'Unless ye will act otherwise.'

1271. cockes, euphemistic for godds.

1272. doule, small feather, down-feather. I derive it from O. F. douille, variant of douille, soft, something soft, from Lat. ductilis. Hence it meant something downy, and, in particular, the 'down-feather' of a bird. This is clearly the sense in Shakespeare also, where Ariel uses the expression—'one dowle that's in my plume'; Temp. iii. 3. 65; i.e. one down-feather (small feather) that is in my plumage. Dr. Schmidt is in doubt whether plume here means 'plumage,' but the stage-direction expressly says that 'Ariel enters like a harpy, and claps his wings upon the table.' It is very interesting to see how well this passage illustrates Shakespeare. See Mr. Wright's note for other passages where dowl means 'soft down.' Of course, the words dowl and down are in no way connected. See my note in Phil. Soc. Trans. 1888-90, p. 3.

1280. God wolde, i.e. oh! that it might be God's will. Cf. would God, Numb. xi. 29; Deut. xxviii. 67; 2 Kings, v. 3; Rich. II, iv. 1. 117.

1293. Christ was likened to the pelican; see note to l. 87.

1305. The foul, the former or bird-like part of the griffin; see note to l. 86, and cf. l. 1317.

1315. 'Because bribery may break God's prohibition.'

1317. Referring to the form of the griffin; see notes to ll. 86, 1305.

1336. Y-gurd, lit. girt; hence, prepared, ready.

1339. ly, lie, i.e. deceive; because the lapwing tries to delude those who search for its nest.

1340. for-gerd, destroyed, utterly done away with; from M. E. for-garen.

1343. the Phenix. The Phoenix is here supposed, as being an unique bird, to be the king or master of all birds, and to execute vengeance on evil-doers.

1359. The sense of of is here uncertain. Perhaps of flight means 'as regards my flight,' and so 'to protect my flight.'

1361. This line is somewhat 'set back,' as in the original. But there seems to be no reason for it.

1362. The original has: 'And the lambe that slayn was'; imperfect.

1367. Here the author speaks for himself, and excuses the Pelican's language.

III. JACK UPLAND.

To this piece, which is an attack upon the friars, a reply was made by one of them (probably a Dominican, see notes to ll. 100, 130), which is printed at length in Wright's Political Poems and Songs (Record Series), vol. ii. pp. 39-114; together with a rejoinder by Jack Upland, printed on the same pages. The friar's reply is often cited in the Notes below, where the number refers to the page of the above-named volume. See further in the Introduction.

1. Jack Uplande, Jack the Countryman, a nickname for one who is supposed to have had but little education; cf. the Plowman's Tale.

6. fellest folk, the wickedest people; referring to the friars.

7. The friar's reply copies several of these expressions: thus we find—'On wounder wise, seith Jak, freres, ye ben growun'; p. 42.

8. 'sowen in youre sectes of Anticristis hondes'; p. 42.

9. not obedient; 'unboxom to bishopis, not lege men to kynges'; p. 42. The friar asserts that they do obey the bishops; but carefully adds—'although not so fer forth as seculer preestes'; p. 44.

11. 'wede, corn, ne gras, wil ye not hewen' ; p. 42 ; repeated on p. 44. The friar retorts that they are not expected to cleanse ditches, like a Jack Upland ; p. 44. We thus learn that woode in l. 11 is almost certainly an error for wede.

15. where to been, where they will (hereafter) go to.

21. See 1 Cor. xiii. 1-3.

27. skilfully, reasonably ; skill often has the sense of reason.

28. The friar evades the question as to the number of orders, and replies that he is of Christ's order ; pp. 59-61.

35. Reply : St. James makes mention of two kinds of life, the active and the contemplative ; we belong to the latter ; pp. 63-6.

37. apostata, apostate ; a term applied to a friar who left his order (see l. 42) after his year of probation had been completed, or else (see l. 42) after a probation of three months. See ll. 273-5, and 310-2 below ; and the note to P. Plowman, C. ii. 98 (B. i. 104). The question here put was not answered.

40-1. Reply : it is shocking to speak of men leaving their wives like this ; we are not wedded to our habit any more than a priest is to his tonsure ; p. 67.

44. Reply : no. We are only punished for leaving off our habits because it implies forsaking of our rule. Our habits are not sendal, nor satin nor golden ; pp. 67-8.

50. Reply : what, Jack, does your tippet mean ? My wide cope signifies charity. My hood, patience in adversity. The scapulary denotes obedience to our superiors. As for the knotted girdle, ask the Franciscans ; pp. 68-71.

52. Reply : Why do most of the Lollards wear gray clothes ? p. 71.

58. No reply to this question.

60. Reply : see Eccles. iii. 7 ; Prov. xxv. 28 ; p. 71.

62. Reply : a question rather for monks than friars. Why do you not put your dining-table in your cow-house ? p. 72.

65. Reply : perhaps some of us go to Rome for dispensations, but most of us have need to stay at home, to keep watch over Lollards ; p. 73.

70. Reply : you have forgotten the text, 2 Cor. vi. 9 ; p. 74.

74. Reply : Christ, at His transfiguration, had only three witnesses from among His apostles. And He chose only twelve apostles, out of His many followers ; and see Prov. xii. 15 ; p. 75.

77. Reply : a man is better than a beast ; yet even for your beasts you make cattle-sheds and stables. Our houses are often poor ones. Did you ever see any that resembled the Tower, or Windsor Castle, or Woodstock ? Your lies are shameless ; pp. 77-8. I note here Jack Upland's rejoinder ; he says that he does not object to the friars having houses, but he objects to the needless grandeur of them ; for it does not follow that a man who drinks a quart of wine must therefore proceed to drink a gallon ; p. 76.

83. Reply : you say that we let the whole realm to farm. Why, it is not ours at all ! It belongs to the king. We have no more estate in the country than you have in heaven ; pp. 78-9. The incompleteness of this reply is amazing.

86. The original reading must have been different here. The friar puts the question thus : Why do you pay no tribute to the king, whereas Christ paid tribute to the emperor ? Reply : Christ did not pay it as a debt, but only to perform the law in meekness. The Jewish priests did not pay taxes like the commons. Priests may pay if they are willing, but not friars ; pp. 79, 80.

90. Reply : we are glad to have the prayers of the poor, if their letters of fraternity are genuine ; but we do not desire your paternosters ; p. 80.

92. Reply : we do not make men more perfect than their baptism makes them ; p. 81.

95. Reply : the golden trental, ' that now is purchasid of preestis out of freris hondis,' delivers no soul, except as it is deserved ; p. 81. See note to Ch. C. T., D 1717 (vol. v. p. 331).

100. Reply : you are quite mistaken. Perhaps some Carmelite told you this, or some Franciscan. The Austin friars and the Dominicans do not say so ; p. 82.

105. Reply : if you accuse us of stealing children, Christ practically did the same, by enticing disciples to follow him. See Matt. xix. 21 ; Luke, xiv. 33 ; John, xv. 19. To win souls is no robbery ; pp. 83-4.

109. undernime, reprove. Reply : according to you, not even the king should maintain any discipline. The pope has a prison ; and so has the bishop of Canterbury, and the bishop of London. But you do not like prisons, for you often experience them ; pp. 85-6.

114. Reply : burial is not a sacrament, as you say. You contradict yourself ; p. 86.

116. Reply : if, as you say, we never shrive the poor, why are parish-priests so angry with us for doing so ? p. 87. Cf. note to P. Plowman, C. xiii. 21. Questions 26, 27, and 28 are passed over.

127. Reply : we do right to live of the gospel ; see 1 Cor. ix. 14 ; Luke, x. 7 ; Rom. xv. 26.

130. Reply : God knows how much good the preaching of the friars has wrought ; p. 89. The Dominicans especially were proud of their preaching.

133. The friar here remarks that the Wycliffites are heretics, and ought to be burnt ; p. 90. The same remark is all the answer made to question 32.

141. Reply : the friars do not sell the mass ; they only freely give it to those who freely give to them. Even if we did sell it, surely the parish-priests receive money for the same ; this is not simony ; pp. 93-5. See note to Ch. C. T., D 1749 ; vol. v. p. 333.

149. Reply : we write down the names only to help our own memories ; for special prayers are very profitable for souls ; pp. 99, 100. See note to Ch. C. T., D 1741 ; vol. v. p. 332.

153. berest god in honde, accusest Christ. Reply: Christ was lord of all spiritually; but, as a man, he was needy. David says of Him, 'I am poor and needy, yet the Lord thinketh upon me'; Ps. xl. 17. I refer you to Matt. viii. 20; pp. 95-8.

156. No special answer is given to questions 36-9.

187. Reply: you expect your servant to call you 'master.' It is not the being called 'master,' but ambition, that Christ forbids; pp. 100-1. Cf. note to Ch. C. T., D 2185; vol. v. p. 340.

189. The reply is singular, to the effect that pope John XXIV wrote against this matter, and the friars Minors (Franciscans) against him. 'Examyne her actis, and loke who hath the beter; and knowe noon other ordre this perfitnesse approveth'; p. 101.

208. There is no reply to question 42.

211. Reply; going two and two together is a scriptural custom. Barnabas and Paul did so. So did Paul and Timothy. Besides, there were two tables in the law, two cherubim in the temple, and two in the tabernacle. It was not good for Adam to be alone; pp. 101-3. Cf. note to P. Plowman, C. xi. 8; and to Chaucer, C. T., C 1740.

213. There seems to be no reply to questions 44-8.

246. As regards question 49, the friar replies to ll. 249-51, saying that, according to this, no one could pray for any one; for we cannot tell his future destiny; p. 103. Cf. note to Ch. C. T., D 2126; vol. v. p. 339.

258. Questions 50 and 51 do not seem to be noticed. Question 52 is partly answered in the reply to question 22. See l. 105.

277. Reply: you admit (l. 283) that God made all things according to weight, number, and measure. But a friar is something; ergo, God made friars according to weight, &c. Why are priests so numerous? As to a man's hand (l. 287), the number of fingers is fixed, and an extra finger is monstrous. But neither God nor holy church have fixed the number of priests or friars. 'Many hondis togider maken light werk'; pp. 105-6. Cf. note to P. Plowman, C. xxiii. 270.

At this point the friar introduces a subject not discussed in the copy of Jack Upland here printed, viz. the subject of transubstantiation. He says that Jack accuses the friars of saying that the bread is not Christ's body, but mere roundness and whiteness, and accident without subject; and Wyclif is adduced as saying that it remains material bread, and only Christ's body in a figurative sense; pp. 106-10. The rest of the friar's reply (which goes but little further) is inapplicable to our text, so that the latter part of the treatise, ll. 294-end, is left unanswered. Perhaps sections 54-64 were, at first, a somewhat later addition.

296. This has been partly said before; see l. 77 above.

310. It was thought that to die in a friar's habit increased a man's chance of salvation; see l. 100 above.

320. Cf. note to P. Plowman, C. xiii. 21. See l. 246 above.

336. Cf. P. Plowman, C. xxiii. 323-72.

368. This enquiry takes up a large portion of the Ploughman's Crede. The jealousy of one order against the other was very remarkable. See note to l. 100 above.

399. See James, i. 27; cf. l. 36 above.

411. See Matt. xi. 30. Wyclif has—'For my yok is softe, and my charge light.'

421. The Franciscans claimed that St. Francis sat in heaven above the Seraphim, upon the throne from which Lucifer fell; see note to P. Plowman, C. ii. 105 (B. i. 105).

424-7. Evidently intended for four alliterative lines, but the third is too long; read—'And whan ye han soiled that I saide,' &c. Again, the first is too short; read—'Go, frere, now forth,' &c.

430. even-Christen, fellow-Christian; see Gloss. to P. Plowman.

433. 'Benefac humili, et non dederis impio: prohibe panes illi dari, ne in ipsis potentior te sit'; Ecclus. xii. 6.

IV. GOWER: THE PRAISE OF PEACE.

This piece has no English title except that printed at p. 205; for the Latin title, see p. 216. See the Introduction.

12, 13. Henry founded his title on conquest, hereditary right, and election. The first of these is referred to in ll. 9, 10; the second, in l. 12; and the third, in l. 13. See note in vol. i. p. 564, to XIX. 23.

17. boun, ready; better than the reading bounde.

21. I note here an unimportant variation. For this is, the MS. has is this.

27. I find that there is no need to insert the. Read requeste, in three syllables, as it really had a final e, being a feminine substantive. Cf. 'Et lor requeste refaison'; Rom. Rose, 4767. Requeste is trisyllabic in Troil. iv. 57; L. Good Wom. 448.

36. According to the romance of Alexander, the god Serapis, appearing in a dream, told him that his great deeds would be remembered for ever. Before this, Alexander had told his men that he hoped to conquer all the earth—'with the graunt of my god.' See Wars of Alexander, ed. Skeat, ll. 990, 1095.

57. This obviously refers to Bolingbroke's invasion, when he came, as he said, to claim his inheritance; cf. l. 65.

81. Of pestilence, out of pestilence, to free him from pestilence.

86. lyf, person, man; lit. 'living soul.' Common in P. Plowman.

174, 179. Matt. v. 9; John, xiv. 27.

185. out of herre, out of (off) the hinge; like mod. E. 'out of joint.' A favourite phrase of Gower's; see his Conf. Amant. ii. 139; iii. 43, 52, 203, 211.

197. Knights were expected to defend the faith; see note to P. Plowman, C. ix. 26. Cf. ll. 243-5.

202. I supply alday (i. e. continually) to complete the line.

204. wayted, watched, carefully guarded ; in contrast to l. 207.

211. For any perhaps read a ; the line runs badly.

218. 'It is easier to keep a thing than acquire it.'

236. assysed, appointed ; as in Conf. Amant. i. 181 ; iii. 228.

251. 'Let men be armed to fight against the Saracens.'

253. Three points ; stated in ll. 254, 261-2, and 268 ; i. e. the church is divided ; Christian nations are at variance ; and the heathen threaten us.

281-3. These are the nine worthies ; of whom three were heathen (281), three Jewish (282), and three Christian (283) ; as noted in Reliquiæ Antiquæ, i. 287. Sometimes they varied ; thus Shakespeare introduces Hercules and Pompey among the number ; L. L. L. v. 2. 538. Machabeus, Judas Maccabeus. Godfray, Godfrey of Bouillon. Arthus, King Arthur.

294. For men, MS. T. has pes=pees ; which perhaps is better.

295. For tennes, as in Thynne, the Trentham MS. has the older spelling tenetz, which gives the etymology of 'tennis.' Tenetz is the imperative plural of the verb tenir, and must have been a cry frequently used in the jeu de paume ; probably it was used to call attention, like the modern 'play !' This is the earliest passage in which the word occurs. 'No one can tell whether he will win or lose a "chace" at tennis, till the ball has run its course.' Chace is a term 'applied to the second impact on the floor (or in a gallery of a ball which the opponent has failed or declined to return ; the value of which is determined by the nearness of the spot of impact to the end wall. If the opponent, on both sides being changed, can "better" this stroke (i. e. cause his ball to rebound nearer the wall) he wins and scores it ; if not, it is scored by the first player ; until it is so decided, the "chace" is a stroke in abeyance' ; New E. Dict.

306. be gete, be gotten, be obtained ; begete gives no sense.

323. lyf, life ; not as in l. 86. See 1 Cor. xiii. 1.

330. Cassodore, Cassiodorus. Magnus Aurelius Cassiodorus, born about A. D. 468, was a statesman and author ; his chief work being his Variarum Epistolarum Libri XII, which is six times quoted in Chaucer's Tale of Melibeus. Gower, in his Conf. Amantis, iii. 191, quotes this very passage again ; thus—

'Cassidore in his aprise telleth,
The regne is sauf, where pitè dwelleth.'

I find : 'Pietas est quae regit et celos' ; Cass. Var. xi. 40.

332. assysed, fixed, set ; cf. l. 236. Unless it means assessed, rated ; a sense which is also found in Gower, viz. in his Conf. Amant. i. 5 ; see the New E. Dict. The passage is a little obscure.

336. 'On account of which mercy should turn aside.'

339. Constantyn, Constantine the Great, Roman emperor from A. D. 306 to 337. Eusebius wrote a life of him in four books, which is rather a panegyric than a biography. The story here told is hardly consistent with the facts, as Constantine caused the death of his own son Crispus and of young Licinius ; as to which Gibbon (c. xviii) remarks that 'the courtly bishop, who has celebrated in an elaborate work the virtues and pieties of his hero, observes a prudent silence on the subject of these tragic events.' In his Conf. Amantis, iii. 192, Gower again says :—

* * * *

'Thus saide whylom Constantyn :—
What emperour that is enclyn
To pitè for to be servaunt,
Of al the worldes remenaunt
He is worthy to ben a lord.'

But the particular story about the 'yonge children' to which Gower here alludes is given at length in the Conf. Amantis, bk. ii. vol. i. pp. 266–77. Very briefly, it comes to this. Constantine, while still a heathen, was afflicted with leprosy. The physicians said he could only be healed by bathing in the blood of young children. On due reflection, he preferred to retain his leprosy ; whereupon, he was directed in a vision to apply to pope Sylvester, who converted him and baptised him ; and he was cured of his leprosy when immersed in the baptismal font. The whole city followed the emperor's example, and was converted to Christianity. This explains ll. 354–5 :—'so that the dear ones, (converted) from being the hateful ones who had formerly been at enmity with Christ,' &c.

363. For debated, MS. T. has deleated, for delated, i. e. deferred ; see Dilate in the New E. Dict.

380. 'these other Christian princes' ; viz. in particular, Charles VI, king of France, and Robert III, king of Scotland.

393. These interesting lines tell us that blindness befell the poet in the first year of Henry IV (Sept. 30, 1399—Sept. 29, 1400) ; and we gather that the present poem was meant to be his last. As a matter of fact, he wrote a still later couplet in the following words :—

'Henrici regis annus fuit ille secundus
Scribere dum cesso, sum quia cecus ego.'

These lines occur in MSS. of his Vox Clamantis ; see Morley, Eng. Writers, iv. 157. Notwithstanding his infirmity, Gower survived till the autumn of 1408 ; and was interred, as is well known, in the church of St. Mary Overies—now St. Saviour's—in Southwark, towards the rebuilding of which he had liberally contributed.

It appears that negotiations for peace, both with Scotland and France, were being prosecuted in the latter part of 1399 ; see Wylie, History of Henry IV, i. 82, 86. It is also probable that Gower must have written the 'Praise of Peace' before the death of Richard II in Feb. 1400, as he makes no allusion to that event, nor to the dangerous conspiracy against Henry's life in the early part of January. For these reasons, we may safely date the poem in the end of the year 1399.

V. THOMAS HOCCELEVE: THE LETTER OF CUPID.

This poem is imitated, rather than translated, from the French poem entitled L'Epistre au Dieu d'Amours, written by Christine de Pisan in May, 1399; printed in Œuvres Poétiques de Christine de Pisan, publiées par Maurice Roy, ii. 1-27; Société des Anciens Textes Français, 1891. Hoccleve even rearranges some of the material; and Dr. Furnivall has printed all the lines of the original of which the English poet has made use, in the Notes to his edition of Hoccleve's Works, published for the Early English Text Society, in 1892. It thus appears that the lines of Christine's poem are to be taken in the following order: 1-116, 537-54, 126-30, 531-4, 131-96, 721-5, 259-520, 321-5, 271-4, 387-460, 643-77, 608-23, 559-75, 759-800. The following stanzas, on the other hand, are wholly Hoccleve's own: 71-7, 92-8, 127-33, 141-7, 162-8, 176-89, 267-73, 316-29, 379-434. The last set extends to 56 lines.

Cupid, god of Love, is supposed to write a letter to all lovers, who are his subjects, reproving men for their slander and ill-treatment of women, and defending women against all that is alleged against them. In fact, it is a reply, by Christine de Pisan, to the numerous severe things that Jean de Meun had said about women in the famous Roman de la Rose. He is expressly mentioned by name in l. 281.

I here quote, as a specimen, the first 7 lines of the original, answering to Hoccleve's first stanza—

‘ Cupido, roy par la grace de lui,
Dieu des amans, sans aide de nullui,
Regnant en l'air du ciel tres reluisant,
Filz de Venus la deesse poissant,
Sire d'amours et de tous ses obgiez,
A tous vos vrais loiaux servans subgiez,
Salut, Amour, Familiarite ! ’

5. ‘ Son of the goddess Cithera,’ i.e. Venus. Cithera is an alternative spelling of Citherea, occurring in the Cambridge and Petworth MSS. of the Cant. Tales, A 2215. For the construction, see note to Ch. C. T., F 209.

16. Albion. Of course Hoccleve has adapted the poem for English readers. The original has:—‘ Sur tous païs se complaignent de France.’

28. I read mot for the sake of the grammar and scansion; the MSS. have most, bad spelling for most-e, the past tense. But moot occurs, correctly, as the emphatic form of mot, in l. 35. Cf. l. 410.

30. As doth, pray, do; a common idiom; see note to C. T., E 7.

37. man, i.e. ‘ human being ’; used generally, and including women.

38. ‘ When no word can proceed out of his mouth but such as may reasonably please any one, it apparently comes from the heart.’

50. 'Has the pot by the handle'; i. e. holds it securely.

54. Note the accentuation: 'Aný womán.' This accentuation of words on the latter syllable in rather unlikely cases, is a marked peculiarity of Hoccleve's verse. Cf. womán in l. 79, journéy in l. 106; axing in l. 122, purpós in l. 130. Cf. wommán in l. 170 with wómmán in l. 174.

71. To here? to her? Dr. Furnivall notes that Hoccleve frequently makes here dissyllabic, when it represents the personal pronoun. Cf. l. 70; and see his Preface, p. xli. The reading 'To hir name yet was yt no reprefe,' given in Dr. Furnivall's edition from one MS. only, affords no sense, and will not scan, as name is properly dissyllabic.

90. souneth in-to, tends to; cf. note to C. T., B 3157.

95. 'They procure such assistants as have a double face.' The accentuation of prócuren on the o was at this time common; we even find the form proker (see Stratmann).

120-2. wolde . . . Men wiste, would like men to know.

131. 'Unless he be so far advanced in madness as to spoil all with open coarseness; for that, as I suppose, women do not like.'

145. 'Reason follows it so slowly and leisurely.'

184. dishonest, unworthy of honour, blameworthy. Ray gives the proverb—'it's an ill bird that bewrays its own nest'; and compares the Greek—τὸν οἶκου θησαυρὸν διαβάλλειν.

192. lakken, blame, find fault with; as in Chaucer.

196. bilowen, lied against; pp. of bilēozēn, A. S. bilēogan.

204. Alluding to Ovid's Remedium Amoris. Cf. Ch. C. T., D 688-710.

215. 'They say, it is profitable to consider peril.'

225. Rather close to the original French:—

'Et aucuns sont qui iadis en mes las Furent tenus, mais il sont d'amer las,
Ou par vieillesce ou deffaulte de cuer,
Si ne veulent plus amer a nul fuer,
Et convenant m'ont de tous pòins nyé,
Moy et mon fait guerpy et renié,
Comme mauvais serviteurs et rebelles.'

257. hente, caught; in hir daunger, under their control, within their power.

258. It was thought that one poison would expel another; see P. Plowman, C. xxi. 156-8, and the notes.

272. 'It cannot long abide upon one object.'

281. Jean de Meun, author of the latter and more satirical part of the famous Roman de la Rose; see vol. i.

298. 'They are not so void of constancy.' Read cónstauncè.

302. See Ch. Legend of Good Women, 1580.

305. wold, desired; pp. of willen; see note to C. T., B 2615.

309. See Ch. Legend of Good Women, 924.

316-29. These two stanzas are wholly original. Hoccleve, remembering that the examples of Medea and Dido both occur in Chaucer's Legend of Good Women, here takes occasion to make an express reference to that work, which he here calls 'my Legende of Martres.' My refers to Cupid; Legend, to Chaucer's title; and Martres, to the Latin titles to some of the Legends. Thus the Legend of Hypsipyle and Medea is entitled—'Incipit Legenda Ysiphile et Medee, Martirum.' Instead of Martres, Thynne has the ridiculous reading Natures, which the editions carefully retain.

357. 'And, had it not been for the devil,' &c.

360. her, the serpent. There was a legend that the serpent had the face of a beautiful virgin. See Ch. C. T., B 360, and note; P. Plowman, B. xviii. 335, and note.

379-434. These eight stanzas are all Hoccleve's own.

393. happy to, fortunate for; because it brought about Christ's incarnation. The allusion is to the oft-quoted sentence—'O felix culpa, O necessarium peccatum Ade,' from the Sarum missal. See note to P. Plowman, C. viii. 126. Cf. l. 396.

421. The day of St. Margaret, Virgin and Martyr, was July 20, in the Latin Church. See the edition of Seinte Marherete, by O. Cockayne, E. E. T. S., 1866.

428. I, i. e. Cupid. This stanza is spoken by Cupid, in his own character; cf. l. 431. In l. 464, he assumes the royal style of we. It is, moreover, obvious that this stanza would hardly have been approved of by Christine.

473-6. Imitated from the closing lines of Christine's poem:—

'Donné en l'air, en nostre grant palais,
Le jour de May la solempnée feste
Ou les amans nous font mainte requeste,
L'An de grace Mil trois cens quate vins
Et dix et neuf, present dieux et divins,' &c.

It thus appears that 'the lusty month of May,' in l. 472, is merely copied from the French; but, to the fortunate circumstance that Christine gives the exact date of her poem as 1399, we owe the fact that Hoccleve likewise gives the exact date of his poem as being 1402.

VI. THOMAS HOCCELEVE: TO THE KING; AND TO THE KNIGHTS OF THE GARTER.

These two Balades, each of 32 lines, are written in a highly artificial metre; for, in each case, the four stanzas of which each consists shew the same rimes throughout. The riming syllables in Balade 1 are -esse, -our, and -alle; and in Balade 2, are -ame, -aunce, and -ee. A similar example of metrical arrangement occurs in Chaucer's Balade to Rosemounde.

2. king, Henry V, as we see from the French title.

3. Justinian; emperor of Constantinople, A. D. 527-65, whose fame rests upon the justly celebrated Justinian Code of laws. The reference, fortunately, is explained by Hoccleve himself, in a longer Balade concerning Sir John Oldcastel, printed in Anglia, v. 23; and again in Hoccleve's Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 8. Hoccleve is praising Justinian's orthodoxy, to which (as he tells us) Henry V was heir; and the exact reference is to the following clause in one of Justinian's laws, which is quoted in full in the margin of the Balade above mentioned; see Anglia, v. 28; or Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 14. 'Nemo clericus vel militaris, vel cuiuslibet alterius conditionis de fide Christiana publice turbis coadunatis et audientibus tractare conetur,' &c. So that Justinian's 'devout tenderness in the faith' was exhibited by repressing religious discussion; cf. l. 27. See Gibbon's Roman Empire, ch. 44.

5. the Garter. The noble Order of the Garter was founded by Edward III on St. George's day, Apr. 23, 1349; cf. l. 54.

10. Constantyn. He now proceeds to liken Henry V to Constantine the Great, who was a great supporter of the church; see note above, to Poem no. IV, l. 339. Cf. Anglia, v. 29; or Poems, ed. Furnivall, p. 15; st. 28.

15. do forth, proceed, continue to do as you have done in the past. Not a common expression; see forth in Mätzner.

18. Very characteristic of Hoccleve; the accents required by the verse are thrown upon the weak words your and the. But perhaps your is emphatic. Cf. fully in l. 20, a sharp, 21.

30. Hoccleve is clearly urging the King to repress Lollardry.

37. 'God would have it so; and your allegiance would also have it so.' This is explained in a sidenote in the margin: 'quia Rex illam iustissimam partem tenet.' That is, the lords ought to put down heresy, because their master the king was against it.

41. Your style, your motto; the famous 'Honi soit qui maly pense.' Hence shame here means scandal; but foos to shame is an awkward expression in this connexion.

47. nuisaunce, annoyance; referring to heresy; cf. l. 50.

52. Slepë nat this, be not sleepy about this; a rare construction.

58. norice of distaunce, nurse of debate or strife.

60. 'Variation from the faith would be a damnable thing.'

64. The remark—Cest tout—instead of the usual word explicit, occurs at the end of several poems by Hoccleve; see his Poems, ed. Furnivall, pp. 8, 24, 47, 51, 57, 58, 61, 62, 64, &c.

VII. HENRY SCOGAN: A MORAL BALADE.

For remarks upon the heading of this poem, see the Introduction.

3. Sende; that is, he did not come and recite the poem himself.

8. This reminds us of the Knight's appeal: 'Now late us ryde, and herkneth what I seye'; C. T., A 855.

30. to queme, according to your pleasure. Queme is here a substantive; see Stratmann. Cf. to pay in Chaucer.

49. Tak'th is monosyllabic, as in l. 57. So also Think'th, in l. 59.

51. From James, ii. 17.

56. 'To the honour of your life and the benefit of your soul.'

65. The exclamation shews that Chaucer was then dead.

67. The quotation is inexact; cf. ll. 120, 121 below. The reference is to the Wyf of Bathes Tale, D 1121:—

'Yet may they [our eldres] nat biquethe us, for no-thing,
To noon of us hir virtuous living.'

81. Read Think'th; so also Dryv'th in l. 86; Tak'th in l. 89.

97. Here the quotation, again from the Wyf of Bathes Tale (D 1131), is very close:—

'For of our eldres may we no-thing clayme
But temporel thing, that man may hurte and mayme.'

100. 'Therefore God is the source of virtuous nobleness.' This depends on a passage in Boethius, bk. iii. met. 6. l. 2; see notes to poem XIV, in vol. i. pp. 553-5.

105. See this poem of Chaucer's in vol. i. p. 392.

143. ful rage, very fierce. But I know of no other example of rage as an adjective.

146. kalends, the beginning; as in Troil. v. 1634.

150. The passage in Boethius is in Book i. met. 6. 11-15. Cf. Ch. vol. ii. p. 19.

'Nec quaeras auida manu Vernos stringere palmites,
Vuis si libeat frui: Autumno potius sua
Bacchus munera contulit.'

166. From Chaucer, Wyf of Bathes Tale, D 1165:—

'Thenketh how noble, as seith Valerius,
Was thilke Tullius Hostilius,
That out of povert roos to heigh noblesse.'

And Chaucer found it in Valerius Maximus, iii. 4; see vol. v. p. 320.

168. From Chaucer, Monkes Tale, B 3862. But it may be doubted if Caesar's alleged poverty is an historical fact. Cf. p. 24, l. 128 (above).

174. Read the story of Nero in the Monkes Tale, B 3653; that of Balthasar (Belshazzar) in the same, B 3373; and that of Antiochus in the same, B 3765. Compare the lines in B 3800-1:—

'For he so sore fil out of his char
That it his limes and his skin to-tar.'

187. 'I should be sorry, if ye choose amiss.'

VIII. JOHN LYDGATE; COMPLAINT OF THE BLACK KNIGHT.

There are some excellent notes relative to this poem in Schick's edition of Lydgate's Temple of Glas (E. E. T. S.); I refer to them below as 'Schick, T. G.'

4. Bole, Bull. The sun entered Taurus, in the fifteenth century, just before the middle of April. Hence the phrase Amid the Bole refers, not to the first degree of the sign, but (literally) to the middle of it. The reference must be to May 1, when the sun had just passed a little beyond the middle (or 15th degree) of Taurus.

Even here we trace the influence of Chaucer's translation of the Romaunt of the Rose; for which see notes to ll. 36, 74 below. Chaucer reiterates the mention of May, R. R. 49, 51, 55, 74, 86; and ll. 1 and 2 of the present poem answer to R. R. 53-56:—

'For ther is neither busk ne hay
In May, that it nil shrouded been,
And it with newe leves wreen.'

12. with seint Johan, with St. John for their security or protection; probably suggested by The Complaynt of Mars, l. 9, which opens in a similar strain; cf. note to C. T., F 596; vol. v. p. 385.

15, 16. Compare Rom. Rose (Chaucer's version), ll. 94-5.

21. halt, holds, constrains; the present tense.

22, 23. Compare Rom. Rose (Chaucer's version), ll. 100-1.

28. Lydgate is fond of calling the sun Tytan; Chaucer has the name only once; in Troil. iii. 1464. Lydgate is here thinking of the passage in the Knightes Tale, A 1493-6, about fyry Phebus. Note that he is fond of the word persaunt; see ll. 358, 591, 613; cf. Schick, note to T. G. 328.

33. It is odd that no MS. has the form splayen; yet the final n is required for the metre, or, at any rate, to save an hiatus.

36. Lydgate here copies l. 134 of the English Romaunt of the Rose—'The river-syde costeyng'—and is a witness to the genuineness of Fragment A of that poem; as appears more clearly below; see note to l. 75. The whole passage seems founded upon the Romaunt; for this walk by the river brings him to a park (a garden in the Romaunt) enclosed by a wall that had a small gate in it. It is further obvious that l. 42 is borrowed from l. 122 of the Parliament of Foules—'Right of a park walled with grene stoon.' I may remark here that I have seen a wall constructed of red sandstone so entirely covered with a very minute kind of vegetable growth as to present to the eye a bright green surface.

40. gate smal; usually called a wicket in similar poems; see Rom. Rose, 528, and Schick, note to T. G. 39.

43-49. This stanza answers to Rom. Rose, ll. 105-8, 78-9.

52. celtured, canopied, over-arched (New E. Dict.).

53-6. Cf. Rom. Rose, 1398-1400.

57. attempre, temperate; observe that this word occurs in the Rom. Rose, l. 131 (only three lines above the line quoted in the note to l. 36), where the F. text has atrempee.

62. take, take effect, take hold, become set; an early example of this curious intransitive use of the verb.

63. 'Ready for (men) to shake off the fruit.'

64. Daphne. Cf. Troil. iii. 726:—'O Phebus, thenk whan Dane hirselves shette Under the bark, and laurer wex for drede.' And cf. C. T., A 2062; and Schick, note to T. G. 115.

66. myrre; see Troil. iv. 1138-9.

67. Cf. the mention of laurel, pine, and cedar in Rom. Rose, 1313-4.

68. The resemblance of philbert (Philibert's nut) to Phyllis is accidental, but it was then believed that the connexion was real; merely because Vergil has 'Phyllis amat corylos'; Ecl. vii. 63. Thus Gower has (Conf. Amant. ii. 30):—

'And, after Phillis, philiberd
This tree was called in the yerd'— and he gives the story of Phyllis and Demophon, saying that Phyllis hanged herself on a nut-tree. See the Legend of Good Women, 2557. Pliny alludes to 'the almond-tree whereon ladie Phyllis hanged herself'; Nat. Hist. xvi. 26 (in Holland's translation). See further in Schick, note to T. G. 86.

71. hawethorn; often mentioned in poems of this period; see Schick, note to T. G. 505. Cf. XX. 272, p. 369; XXIV. 1433, p. 447.

74, 75. The list of trees was evidently suggested by the Rom. Rose; see Chaucer's translation, 1379-86. Hence the next thing mentioned is a well; see the same, ll. 1409-11, 109-30. Note that the water was cold, as in R. R. 116; under a hill, as in R. R. 114; and ran over gravel, as in R. R. 127, 1556. And then note the same, 1417-20:—

'About the brinkes of thise welles,
And by the stremes over-al elles
Sprang up the gras, as thikke y-set
And softe as any veluët.'

It is remarkable that the French original merely has 'Poignoit l'erbe freschete et drue,' without any mention of softe or of veluët. It thus becomes clear that Lydgate is actually quoting Chaucer's version.

81. The reading seems to be lustily cam springing; it would be a great improvement to transpose the words, and read cam lustily springing. Cf. 'Abouten it is gras springing'; R. R. 1563.

82. Cf. 'That shadwed was with braunches grene'; R. R. 1511.

87. Narcisus, Narcissus; introduced as a matter of course, because he is here mentioned in the Romaunt; see R. R. 1468—'Here starf the faire Narcisus.'

88. Cupyde; cf. R. R. 1523—'Wel couthe Love him wreke tho. And see the same, 1601-29.

89. Cf. R. R. 1617—'Hath sown there of love the seed.'

92. pitte, i. e. well of Helicon, most likely; which Chaucer mixed up with the Castalian spring on Parnassus; see note to Anelida, 15. And cf. the Pegasee in C. T., F 207; and 'I sleep never on the mount of Pernaso,' F 721.

95. Dyane, Diana; see C. T., A 2065-6.

97. his houndes, his own dogs; not her, as in several MSS. For see C. T., A 2067—'his houndes have him caught.'

102. pensifheed, pensiveness; common in Lydgate; see Schick, note to T. G. 2.

103. Cf. 'To drinke and fresshe him wel withalle'; R. R. 1513.

107-12. Suggested by R. R. 1507-16; especially 1515-6.

127. 'Of gras and floures, inde and pers'; R. R. 67. And compare l. 126 with R. R. 68.

129. hulfere, holly; Icel. hulfr, dogwood. Spelt hulwur, huluyr in the Prompt. Parv. 'The holly is still called in Norfolk hulver, and in Suffolk hulva'; Way. Cotgrave has:—'Houx, the holly, holme, or hulver-tree.' Also 'Petit houx, kneehulver, butchers broom.'

131. MS. P. has of colour; which suggests the reading—'In blakke and whyte, of colour pale and wan'; but this, though a better line, cannot stand, as it makes the words also of his hewe in l. 132 superfluous; indeed l. 132 then becomes unmeaning.

136. accesse, feverish attack; see Schick, note to T. G. 358.

151. ure, destiny; O. F. eur, Lat. augurium; cf. F. mal-heur. See l. 302 below, and Barbour's Bruce, i. 312.

154. among; so in all the copies; among as, whilst.

161. ado, to do; put for at do; a Northern idiom.

168. awhaped, stupefied; see Gloss. in vol. vi. amat, dismayed. Cf. Schick, note to T. G. 401.

169. sitting, suitable; cf. R. R. 986.

172. grounde (dissyllabic) improves the line; but ground is the correct form.

176. Here the Ashmole MS. inserts 'La compleynt du Chiualier'; but wrongly. For see l. 218.

178. Niobe; mentioned in Troil. i. 699. So woful Myrrer, Troil. iv. 1139.

227. cheste, receptacle; 'cheste of every care'; Troil. v. 1368.

229. Cf. Troil. i. 420; also Rom. Rose, 4746-50.

233. fro, from being, after being.

250. Daunger; see Schick, note to T. G. 156.

253. Cf. 'his arwes . . fyle'; Parl. Foules, 212.

260. Male-Bouche, Evil Tongue; cf. R. R. 7357, &c.; where Fragment C has 'Wikkid-Tonge,' the F. original has Male Bouche. Cf. IX. 84 (p. 269). See Schick, note to T. G. 153.

274-6. forjuged and excused only give an assonance, not a rime.

291. through-girt . . . wounde; from C. T., A 1010.

303. purveyaunce, providence; a reminiscence of the argument in Troil. iv. 961, &c.

304. god; for the god; but the article is unnecessary; see Schick, note to T. G. 132.

305. 'And true men have fallen off the wheel'; i.e. the wheel of Fortune; cf. Troil. iv. 6.

330. Palamides, Palamedes. There were two different heroes of this name. One was the son of Nauplius, king of Euboea, who lost his life before Troy, by the artifices of Ulysses. It is said that Ulysses, envious of his fame, forged a letter to him purporting to come from Priam, and then accused him of treachery; whereupon he was condemned to be stoned to death. But the reference is rather to a much later hero, the unsuccessful lover of La bele Isoude. He was defeated by the celebrated knight Sir Tristram, who made him promise to resign his pretensions to the lady; a promise which he did not keep. See Sir T. Malory, Morte Arthure, bk. viii. c. 10, &c.

344. Hercules. See the Monkes Tale, B 3285.

349. Gades, Cadiz; where, according to Guido, Hercules set up some columns or pillars, to shew that he had come to the end of the world. There is an extraordinary confusion as to the locality and maker of these pillars. Lydgate here follows the account in the Alexander romances, viz. that Alexander set up a pillar of marble in the furthest end of India (l. 351); on which was inscribed—'Ego Alexander Philippi Macedonis post obitum Darii usque ad hunc locum expugnando viriliter militauit'; see Alexander and Dindimus, ed. Skeat, p. 42. Lydgate has confused the two accounts.

354. Copied from Troil. i. 518:—'Of hem that Love list feibly for to avaunce'; which is preceded by 'he may goon in the daunce'; see the next line.

358. Phebus. Cf. 'Whan Phebus dwelled here in this erthe adoun'; C. T., H 1. Lydgate is not, however, referring to the story in the Manciples Tale, but rather to the hopeless love of Phoebus for the daughter of Admetus; for which see Troil. i. 659-65. Cf. Schick, note to T. G. 112.

365. Piramus. See Legend of Good Women, 724; and Schick, note to T. G. 80.

366. Tristram. See notes to Parl. Foules, 288, and to Rosamonde, 20; and to Temple of Glas, ed. Schick, l. 77.

367. Achilles fell in love with Polyxena, a daughter of Priam, according to Guido; see note to Book of the Duch. 1070; and Schick, note to T. G. 94. Antonius, Antony; see Legend of Good Women, 588.

368. See the Knights Tale; but it is a little extraordinary that Lydgate should instance Palamon here.

372. Jason; see Legend of Good Women, 1580. For Theseus, see the same, 1945; and for Enee (Aeneas), the same, 924.

379. An interesting allusion, as the story of the false Arcite was of Chaucer's invention; see his Anelida.

380. Demophon; already mentioned above, l. 70.

386. Adon, Adonis; see Troil. iii. 721; C. T., A 2224.

390. chorl, churl; Vulcan; cf. C. T., A 2222, and Compl. of Mars.

393. Ipomenes, Hippomenes, the conqueror of Atalanta in the foot-race; and therefore not 'guerdonles.' He is thinking of Meleager, the unsuccessful lover of the other Atalanta, her of Calydon. Chaucer seems likewise to have confused these stories; see note to Parl. Foules, 286; and cf. C. T., A 2070-2.

412. Cf. Book Duch. 1024, and my note; and Schick, note to T. G. 169.

419. The correction is obvious. The scribes read iupartying as inpartying and then made it into two words. Cf. l. 475. Chaucer has juparten, Troil. iv. 1566.

458. 'So variable is thy chance'; cf. C. T., B 125, and the note.

461. blent, blinded. Evidently the right reading, for which MS. S. has blend. This was turned into blynde, destroying the rime.

462. went, weeneth, weens, supposes, guesses; he shoots by guess. Evidently the right word, for which MS. S. has wend. But it was easily misunderstood, and most MSS. have by wenyng, which preserves the sense, but destroys the rime. Cf. let=lets, in l. 464.

480. This line resembles l. 229 of the Temple of Glas.

484. For references to similar lines, see Schick, note to T. G. 60.

488. Parcas, Parcae, the Fates; the form is copied from Troil. v. 3. Lines 486-9 are reminiscences of Troil. iii. 734 and C. T., A 1566.

491. Nature is the deputy of God; see P. F. 379, and note; C. T., C 20.

512. With the following stanzas compare Chaucer's Complaint to his Lady, and An Amorous Complaint.

525. 'Out of your mercy and womanliñess, charm my sharp wounds.'

554. A stock line of Lydgate's; it occurs twice in the Temple of Glas, ll. 424, 879.

574. Here the Knight's Complaint ends.

590. 'Parfourned hath the sonne his ark diurne'; C. T., E 1795.

596. Cf. 'among yon rowes rede'; Compl. Mars, 2.

597. deaurat, gilded, of a golden colour; see Deaurate in the New E. Dict.

612. Esperus, Hesperus, the evening-star, the planet Venus. See note to Boeth. bk. i. m. 5. 9.

621. Cf. C. T., A 2383, 2389; and Temple of Glas, 126-8.

627. 'Venus I mene, the wel-willy planete'; Troil. iii. 1257. Cf. gude-willy in Burns.

644. 'For thilke love thou haddest to Adoun'; C. T., A 2224.

647. MS. B. has for very wery, meaning 'because I was very weary,' which is a possible expression; see Schick, note to T. G. 632; but verily seems better, as otherwise the line is cumbersome.

663. Jelousye; cf. Parl. Foules, 252.

IX. JOHN LYDGATE: THE FLOUR OF CURTESYE.

I know of no MS. copy of this piece.

4. Valentine's day is Feb. 14; cf. Parl. Foules, 309-11.

8. larke; cf. the song of the bird in Compl. Mars, 13-21.

20. Cipryde, really the same as Venus, but here distinguished; see Parl. Foules, 277.

38. Apparently accented as 'Aúrorà'; Ch. has Auróra, L. G. W. 774.

49. crampessh at must be crampished, i. e. constrained painfully, tortured; see note to Anelida, 171 (vol. i. p. 535).

62. Imitated from Parl. Foules, 379-89.

75. sursanure; a wound healed outwardly only; cf. note to C. T., F 1113.

84. Male-bouche, Evil Tongue, Slander; from the Roman de la Rose. See VIII. 260 above.

96. Boreas, only mentioned by Ch. in his Boethius, bk. i. m. 5, 17, m. 3, 8.

113. somer-sonne; imitated from the Book of the Duch. 821-4.

125. 'To speke of bountè or of gentilles,' &c.; T. G. 287.

140. 'To alle hir werkes vertu is hir gyde'; C. T., B 164.

158. Alluding to the proverb—'He that hews above his head, the chips fall in his eye'; which is a warning to men who attack their betters. See I. i. 9. 20, and the note (p. 462).

190-3. Policene, Polyxena; cf. note to VIII. 367. Helayne, Helen. Dorigene; see Frankleyns Tale, F 815.

195. Cleopatré; see the first legend in the Legend of Good Women. secree, secret, able to keep secrets; a praiseworthy attribute; cf. Parl. of Foules, 395; and Lydgate's Temple of Glas, 294-5:—

'and mirrour eke was she
Of secrenes, of trouth, of faythfulnes.'

It is obvious that the extraordinary word setrone (see the footnote) arose from a desire on the part of the scribe to secure a rime for the name in the next line, which he must have imagined to be An-ti-góne, in three syllables, with a mute final e! This turned secree into secrone, which Thynne probably misread as setrone, since c and t are alike in many MSS. But there are no such words as secrone or setrone; and secree must be restored, because An-ti-go-ne is a word of four syllables. We know whence Lydgate obtained his 'white Antigone'; it was from Troilus, ii. 887, where we find 'fresshe Antigone the whyte.' Antigone was Criseyde's niece, and was so 'secree' that Pandarus considered her to be the most fitting person to accompany Criseyde when she visited Troilus (Troil. ii. 1563), and again when she came to visit Pandarus himself (iii. 597).

197. Hester, Esther; see Book Duch. 987; but especially Legend of Good Women, 250 : 'Ester, lay thou thy mekenesse al adoun.' Judith ; cf. Cant. Tales, B 939, 2289, 3761, E 1366.

198. Alceste, Alcestis ; see L. G. W. 432, 511, 518. Marcia Catoun, Martia, daughter of Cato of Utica ; see note to L. G. W. 252 (vol. iii. p. 298).

199. Grisilde ; the Griselda of the Clerkes Tale. Again mentioned by Lydgate in the Temple of Glas, 75, 405, and elsewhere ; see Schick's note to T. G. I. 75.

200, 201. Ariadne ; see L. G. W. 268, 2078, &c. Lucrece, Lucretia ; see the same, 1680 ; especially l. 1691 :—'this Lucesse, that starf at Rome toun.'

203. Penelope ; see note to L. G. W. 252.

204. Phyllis, Hipsiphilee ; both in L. G. W. ; 2394, 1368.

206. Canacee ; may be either the Canace mentioned in L. G. W. 265, or the heroine of the Squieres Tale ; probably the latter. See Schick, note to l. 137 of the Temple of Glas.

209. naught, not. falle, stoop, droop ; hence, fail.

211-3. Dido slew herself ; see L. G. W. 1351.

214. Medee, Medea ; see L. G. W. 1580. But Chaucer does not there relate how Medea committed any 'outrage.' However, he refers to her murder of her children in the Cant. Tales, B 72.

216. 'That, while goodness and beauty are both under her dominion, she makes goodness have always the upper hand.' See l. 218.

221. Read n'offende, offend not. Probably the MS. had nofende, which Thynne turned into ne fende.

229. It is remarkable how often Lydgate describes his hand as 'quaking' ; see Schick's note to the Temple of Glas, 947. Chaucer's hand quaked but once ; Troil. iv. 14. Cf. note to XXII. 57 (p. 539).

232. suppryse, undertake, endeavour to do. Suppryse is from O. F. sousprendre, for which Godefroy gives the occasional sense 'entreprendre.'

234. lose, praise ; out of lose, out of praise, discreditable.

236. Perhaps this means that Chaucer's decease was a very recent event. Schick proposes to date this piece between 1400 and 1402.

242. Chaucer invokes Clio at the beginning of Troilus, bk. ii. (l. 8) ; and Caliope at the beginning of bk. iii. (l. 45).

251. Cf. Compl. Mars, 13, 14. The metre almost seems to require an accent on the second syllable of Valentyne, with suppressed final e ; but a much more pleasing line, though less regular, can be made by distributing the pauses artificially thus : Upón . the dáy of . saint Válen . týne . sínge. The word saint is altogether unemphatic ; cf. ll. 4, 100.

257. fetheres ynede, blue feathers ; possibly with a reference to blue as being the colour of constancy. Cf. floures inde ; VIII. 127.

261. The woodbine is an emblem of constancy, as it clings to its support ; cf. XX. 485-7.

X. IN COMMENDATION OF OUR LADY.

4, 5. In l. 4, fere is the Kentish form of 'fire.' In l. 5, Thynne again prints fere, but MS. A. has hyre (not a rime), and MS. Sl. has were, which means 'doubt,' and is the right word.

7. For her, we must read his, as in l. 4. The reference is to Love or Cupid; see VIII. 354, and the note.

12. Cf. 'O wind, O wind, the weder ginneth clere,' &c.; Troil. ii. 2. Observe that Chaucer invokes Cleo (Clio) in his next stanza.

22. We may compare this invocation with Chaucer's ABC, and his introduction to the Second Nonnes Tale; but there is not much resemblance. Observe the free use of alliteration throughout ll. 22-141.

24. 'O pleasant ever-living one' seems to be meant; but it is very obscure. Notice that the excellent Sloane MS. has O lusty lemand (= leming), O pleasant shining one. Perhaps we should read leming for living; cf. l. 25.

27. Cf. 'Haven of refut'; ABC, 14. up to ryve, to arrive at; see rive in Halliwell.

28. The five joys of the Virgin are occasionally alluded to. See the poem on this subject in An Old Eng. Miscellany, ed. Morris, p. 87. The five joys were (1) at the Annunciation; (2) when she bore Christ; (3) when Christ rose from the dead; (4) when she saw Him ascend into heaven; (5) at her own Assumption into heaven.

30. 'And cheering course, for one to complain to for pity.' Very obscure.

52. propyne, give to drink; a usage found in the Vulgate version of Jer. xxv. 15: 'Sume calicem . . . et propinabis de illo cunctis gentibus.'

56. Cf. magnificence in Ch. Sec. Nonnes Tale, G 50.

58. put in prescripcion, i. e. prescribed, recommended.

60. Cf. 'I flee for socour to thy tente'; ABC, 41.

64. itinerarie, a description of the way.

65. bravie, prize, especially in an athletic contest; Lat. brauium, Gk. βραβεῖον, in 1 Cor. ix. 24. See note to C. T., D 75.

66. diourn dendrie, daily pay, as of a penny a day; referring to Matt. xx. 2: 'Conventione autem facta cum operariis ex denario diurno.'

68. Laureat crowne, crown of laurel.

69. palestre, a wrestling-match; cf. Troil. v. 304.

70. lake, fine white linen cloth; as in C. T., B 2048.

71. citole, harp; as in C. T., A 1959.

78. 'The wedded turtel, with her herte trewe'; Parl. Foules, 355.

83. Phebus; here used, in an extraordinary manner, of the Holy Spirit, as being the spirit of wisdom; perhaps suggested by the mention of the columbe (or dove) in l. 79.

87. Here Thynne prints dyametre, but the Sloane MS. corrects him.

88. Fewe feres, few companions; i. e. few equals.

92, 93. loupe; cf. F. loupe, an excrescence, fleshy kernel, knot in wood, lens, knob. It was also a term in jewellery. Littré has: 'pierre précieuse que la nature n'a pas achevée. Loupe de saphir, loupe de rubis, certaines parties imparfaites et grossières qui se trouvent quelquefois dans ces pierres.' Hence it is not a very happy epithet, but Lydgate must have meant it in a good sense, as expressing the densest portion of a jewel; hence his 'stable (i. e. firm) as the loupe.' Similarly he explains ewage as being 'freshest of visage,' i. e. clearest in appearance. Ewage was a term applied to a jacinth of the colour of sea-water; see New E. Dict. and P. Plowman, B. ii. 14; but it is here described as blue, and must therefore refer to a stone of the colour of water in a lake.

98. Read hértè for the scansion; but it is a bad line. It runs:—
And hém . recéyvest . with . hértè . ful tréwe.

99. gladded, gladdened; referring to the Annunciation.

102. obumbred, spread like a shadow; 'uirtus Altissimi obumbrabit tibi'; Luke, i. 35. This explains to thee, which answers to tibi.

106. This stanza refers to Christ rather than to Mary; see l. 112. But Mary is referred to as the ground on which He built (l. 111).

107. Cf. Isaiah, xi. 1; Jerem. xxiii. 5.

110. corn, grain; 'suscitabo Dauid germen iustum'; Jer. xxiii. 5. Cf. 'ex semine Dauid uenit Christus; John, vii. 42.

111. ground; the ground upon which it pleased Him to build. Referring to Mary.

113. vytre, glass; Lat. uitreum. The Virgin was often likened to glass; sun-rays pass through it, and leave it pure.

114. Tytan, sun; curiously applied. Christ seems to be meant; see l. 116. But thy in l. 115 again refers to Mary. Hence, in l. 114 (as in 116) we should read his for thy.

118. Sunanyte, Shunammite; Lat. Sunamitis, 2 Kings, iv. 25. She was an emblem of the Virgin, because her son was raised from the dead.

119. Mesure, moderate, assuage. Margaryte, pearl; as an epithet of the Virgin.

121. punical pome, pomegranate; Pliny has Punicum malum in this sense; Nat. Hist. xiii. 19.

122. bouk and boon, body and bone; see Bouk in the New E. Dict.

123. agnelet, little lamb; not in the New E. Dict., because this stanza is now first printed.

126. habounde, abundant; of this adj. the New E. Dict. gives two examples.

128. Cockle, shell; referring to the shell in which the pearl was supposed to be generated by dew. See note to l. ii. 12. 47, p. 475.

129. 'O bush unbrent'; C. T., B 1658; see the note. fyrles, set on fire without any fire (i. e. without visible cause).

132. Referring to Gideon's fleece; Judges, vi. 39.

133. Referring to Aaron's rod that budded; Heb. ix. 4.

134. misty, mystic; cf. 'mysty, misticus,' in Prompt. Parv.

arke, ark; the ark of the covenant.

probatik; certainly the right reading (as in MS. Sl.), instead of probatyf or probatyfe, as in A. and Thynne. The reference is to the O. F. phrase piscine probatique, which Godefroy explains as being a cistern of water, near Solomon's temple, in which the sheep were washed before being sacrificed. The phrase was borrowed immediately from the Vulgate version of John v. 2: 'Est autem Ierosolymis probatica piscina, quae cognominatur hebraice Bethsaida'; i.e. the reference is to the well-known pool of Bethesda. The Greek has: ἐπὶ τῇ προβατικῇ κολυμβήθρα. The etymology is obvious, from Gk. πρόβατον, a sheep. We may translate the phrase by 'sheep-cleansing pool.' Cotgrave explains it very well; he has: 'piscine probatique, a pond for the washing of the sheep that were, by the Law, to be sacrificed.'

135. Aurora, dawn; mentioned in Ch. L. G. W. 774. Cf. 'al the orient laugheth'; C. T., A 1494. And cf. 'Th'olyve of pees'; Parl. Foules, 181.

136. 'Column, with its base, which bears up (or supports) out of the abysmal depth.'

137. 'Why could I not be skilful?'

140. I make up this line as best I can; the readings are all bad.

Note that, at this point, the MS. copies come to an end, and so does the alliteration. Poem no. XI is joined on to no. X in Thynne without any break, but is obviously a different piece, addressed to an earthly mistress.

XI. TO MY SOVERAIN LADY.

1. Imitated from C. T., B 778: 'I ne have noon English digne,' &c. Cf. l. 41. And see the Introduction.

8. 'For if I could sing what I feel in love, I would (gladly do so).'

14. 'I have all my trust in thee.' The scansion is got by grouping the syllables thus: J'áy . en vóus . tóute . má . fiáunce. It is a line of the Lydgate type, in which the first syllable in the normal line, and the first syllable after the cæsure, are alike dropped.

17. thou knette, mayst thou knit; the subj. or optative mood.

21. This quotation is most interesting, being taken from the first line in 'Merciless Beauty'; Ch. Minor Poems; no. XI. Cf. l. 54.

23. it is; pronounced either as it's or 't is. The latter sounds better.

26. The substitution of ginne for beginne much improves the line. on esporaunce, in hope.

44. in o degree, (being) always in one state.

49. 'Weep for me, if a lover pleases you.'

56. 'So much it grieves to be away from my lady.'

59. 'Now my heart has what it wished for.'

* * * *
* * * *

64. were, should be, ought to be (subjunctive).

68. go love, go and love, learn to love. wher, whether.

77. and also, including. The 'fair' Rosamond is mentioned in P. Plowman, B. xii. 48; which shews that her name was proverbial.

98. 'Embrace me closely with a joyful heart.'

100. 'The ardent hope that pricks my heart, is dead; the hope—to gain the love of her whom I desire.'

103. 'And I know well that it is not my fault; (the fault of me) who sing for you, as I may, by way of lament at your departure.' O. F. sai, I know, is a correct form.

107. sad, fixed, resolute, firm, constant.

XII. BALLAD OF GOOD COUNSEL.

7. Cf. Prov. xvii. 20: 'He that hath a perverse tongue falleth into mischief.'

15. equipotent, equal in power; used by Hoccleve (New E. Dict.).

16. peregal, the same as paregal, fully equal; Troil. v. 840.

22. I follow the order of stanzas in MS. H. (Harl. 2251), which is more complete than any other copy, as it alone contains ll. 71–7. Th. and Ff. transpose this stanza and the next one.

23. amorous is evidently used as a term of disparagement, i. e. 'wanton.'

33. this is; pronounced as this, as often elsewhere.

40. deslavee, loose, unchaste; see Gloss. to Chaucer.

45. Accent dévourour on the first syllable.

60. dissolucioun, dissolute behaviour.

71–7. In Harl. 2251 only. In l. 71, read is; the MS. has in.

73. The missing word is obviously mene, i. e. middling; missed because the similar word men happened to follow it.

78. prudent seems here to be used in a bad sense; cf. mod. E. 'knowing.'

86. In the course of ll. 86–103, Lydgate contrives to mention all the Nine Worthies except Godfrey of Bouillon; i. e. he mentions David, Joshua, Judas Maccabaeus, Hector, Julius Caesar, Alexander, Charles (Charlemagne), and King Arthur. His other examples are Solomon, Troilus, Tullius Cicero, Seneca, and Cato; all well known.

96. Thynne has—'With al Alisaundres.' The word al is needless, and probably due to repeating the first syllable of Alisaundre.

107. We now come to examples of famous women. Hestre is Esther, and Griseldes, the Grisiidis of Chaucer's Clerkes Tale. Others are Judith (in the Apocrypha), Polyxena, Penelope, Helen, Medea, Marcia the daughter of Marcus Cato Uticensis (see note to Legend of Good Women, 252), and Alcestis. They are all taken from Chaucer; Esther, Polyxena, Penelope, Helen, 'Marcia Catoun,' are all mentioned in the 'Balade' in Legend of Good Women, Prologue, B-text, 249–69;

XIII. BEWARE OF DOUBLENES. LINES 30-83. 515

and Alcestis is the heroine of the same Prologue. The Legend contains the story of Medea at length; and Judith is celebrated in the Monkes Tale. See the similar list in IX. 190-210.

110. For Policenes, Ff. has Pen'lops (!); but Penelope is mentioned in l. 113. Policenes is right; see IX. 190.

115. For Eleynes, the printed editions have the astonishing reading Holynesse, a strange perversion of Heleynes.

121. kerve, cut; suggested by Chaucer's use of forkerveth in the Manciple's Tale, H 340. This is tolerably certain, as in l. 129 he again refers to the same Tale, H 332-4.

130. Chaucer does not mention Cato; he merely says—'Thus lerne children whan that they ben yonge.' Both Chaucer and Lydgate had no doubt been taught some of the sayings of Dionysius Cato in their youth; for see Troil. iii. 293-4. This particular precept occurs in the third distich in Cato's first book; i. e. almost at the very beginning. See note to C. T., H 332 (vol. v. p. 443).

XIII. BEWARE OF DOUBLENES.

This piece is gently ironical throughout, as, for example, in ll. 15, 23, 31, 39, 47, &c.

30. abit, abideth, abides, remains, is constant.

32 (footnote). The remark in the margin—'Per antifrasi'—simply means that the text is ironical.

48. tache, defect; this is Shakespeare's touch, in the same sense; Troilus and Cressida, iii. 3. 175.

51. sliper, slippery; A. S. slipor; as in XVI. 262. Cf. HF. 2154, and the note.

55. 'Who can (so) guide their sail as to row their boat with craft.' Not clearly put. Is there a reference to Wade's boat? Cf. C. T., E 1424, and the note. The irony seems here to be dropped, as in ll. 71, 79.

75. sys and sink, six and five, a winning throw at hazard; see C. T., B 124, and the note. avaunce, get profit, make gain.

77, 78. Here sette seems to mean 'lay a stake upon,' in the game of hazard; when, if the player throws double aces (ambes as), he loses; see the note on C. T., B 124 as above; and see Ambes-Ace in the New E. Dict. It is amusing to find that Stowe so wholly misunderstood the text as to print lombes, as (see footnote on p. 293); for lombes means 'lambs'!

83. innocence is, I suppose, to be taken ironically; but the constancy of Rosamond and Cleopatra is appealed to as being real. For the ballad of 'Fair Rosamond,' see Percy's Reliques of Ancient Poetry.

'Her chiefest foes did plaine confesse
She was a glorious wight.'

89, 90. sengle, single. oo-fold, one-fold, as distinct from double. See the whimsical praise of 'double' things in Hood's Miss Kilmansegg, in the section entitled 'Her Honeymoon.'

XIV. A BALADE: WARNING MEN, ETC.

6. see at y, see by the outward appearance; cf. C. T., G 964, 1059. This Balade resembles no. XIII. Cf. l. 4 with XIII. 63, 81.

7. et, eateth, eats. This contracted form evidently best suits the scansion. The copy in MS. T. had originally ette, mis-spelt for et, with ettyth written above it, shewing that the old form et was obsolescent. Et (eateth) occurs in P. Plowman, C. vii. 431; and again, in the same, B. xv. 175, the MSS. have eet, eteth, ette, with the same sense. 'The blind eat many flies' is given in Hazlitt's Collection of Proverbs. Skelton has it, Works, ed. Dyce, i. 213; and Hazlitt gives four more references.

9. geson, scarce, rare, seldom found; see note to P. Plowman, B. xiii. 270.

19. Remember to pronounce this is (this 's) as this.

25. A common proverb; see note to C. T., G 962.

26. 'But ay fortune hath in hir hony galle'; C. T., B 3537.

29. The proverbial line quoted in T. is here referred to, viz. 'Fallere, flere, nere, tria sunt hec in muliere.' In the margin of the Corpus MS. of the C. T., opposite D 402, is written—'Fallere, flere, nere, dedit Deus in muliere.' See that passage in the Wife's Preamble.

33. sleight; pronounced (sleit), riming with bait; shewing that the gh was by this time a negligible quantity.

36. The reference is to the proverb quoted in the note to C. T., B 2297 (vol. v. p. 208):—

'Vento quid leuius? fulgur; quid fulgure? flamma.

Flamma quid? mulier. Quid muliere? nichil.'

Hence light in l. 37 should be leit, as it means 'lightning'; which explains 'passeth in a throw,' i.e. passes away instantly. We also see that Lydgate's original varied, and must have run thus:—

'Aëre quid leuius? fulgur; quid fulgure? uentus.

Vento quid? mulier. Quid muliere? nichil.'

43. Curiously imitated in the modern song for children:—

'If all the world were paper, And all the sea were ink,
And all the trees were bread and cheese, What should we do for drink?'

The Baby's Bouquet, p. 26.

XV. THREE SAYINGS.

(A). 2. Honour, i.e. advancement. The Lat. proverb is—‘Honores mutant mores’; on which Ray remarks—‘As poverty depresseth and debaseth a man’s mind, so great place and estate advance and enlarge it, but many times corrupt and puff it up.’ outrage, extravagant self-importance.

XVI. LA BELLE DAME.

1-28. The first four stanzas are original; so also are the four at the end. These stanzas have seven lines; the rest have eight.

10. Read called as call’d; Bell-e and Dam-e are dissyllabic.

11. Aleyn; i.e. Alain Chartier, a French poet and prose writer, born in 1386, who died in 1458. He lived at the court of Charles VI and Charles VII, to whom he acted as secretary. Besides La Belle Dame sans Merci, he wrote several poems; in one of these, called Le Livre de Quatre Dames, four ladies bewail the loss of their lovers in the battle of Agincourt. He also wrote some prose pieces, chiefly satirical; his Curial, directed against the vices of the court, was translated by Caxton. Caxton’s translation was printed by him in 1484, and reprinted by the Early English Text Society in 1888. The best edition of Chartier’s works is that by A. Duchesne (Paris, 1617); a new edition is much wanted.

45. I here quote the original of this stanza, as it settles the right reading of l. 47, where some MSS. have eyen or eyn for pen.

‘Qui voudroit mon vouloir contraindre
A ioyeuses choses escrire,
Ma plume n’y scauroit attaindre,
Non feroit ma langue à les dire.
Ie n’ay bouche qui puisse rire
Que les yeulx ne la desmentissent:
Car le cueur l’en voudroit desdire
Par les lermes qui des yeulx issent.’

53. The original French is clearer:—

‘Je laisse aux amoureux malades,
Qui ont espoir d’allegement,
Faire chansons, ditz, et ballades.’

65, 66. forcer, casket; unshet, opened; sperd, fastened, locked up.

103 (footnote). deedly, inanimate, dull, sleepy; an unusual use of the word. Only in Thynne, who seems to be wrong.

105, 106. som, i.e. some male guests. their juges, (apparently) the ladies who ruled them, whom they wooed; cf. l. 137. demure, serious, grave; an early example of the word; cf. XX. 459, XXI. 82.

105. most fresshest, who had most newly arrived; 'Tels y ot qui à l'heure vinrent.'

137. scole-maister, i. e. his mistress who ruled him; cf. her in l. 139.

145. The right reading is shot, as in Thynne and MS. Ff., which are usually better authorities than MSS. F. and H. The original has:—

'I'apperceu le trait de ses yeulx
Tout empenné d'humbles requestes.'

154, 156. mes, dish or course of meats. entremes, ill-spelt entremass in Barbour's Bruce, xvi. 457; on which my note is: 'it is the O. F. entremes, now spelt entremets, [to mark its connection with F. mettre; but] mets, O. F. mes, is the Lat. missum [accusative of missus], a dish as sent in or served at table (Brachet). An entremes is a delicacy or side-dish (lit. a between-dish)'; and I added a reference to the present passage. It is here used ironically.

166. chase, chose; apparently, a Northern form.

174. apert, as in MS. Ff., is obviously right; pert, as still in use, is due to the loss of the former syllable. prevyn nor apert, neither secretly nor openly, i. e. in no way; just as in Ch. C. T., F 531.

176. frounter; answering here, not to O. F. frontier, forehead, but to O. F. frontiere, front rank of an army, line of battle; whence the phrase faire frontiere a, to make an attack upon (Godefroy). So here, the lady's beauty was exactly calculated to make an attack upon a lover's heart. Sir R. Ros has 'a frounter for'; he should rather have written 'a frounter on.' The original has:—'Pour faire au cuer d'ament frontiere'; also garnison in the preceding line.

182. 'Car ioye triste cuer traueille.' Sir R. Ros actually takes triste with ioye instead of with cueur. There are several other instances in which he does not seem to have understood his original. See below.

184. trayle, trellis-work, or lattice-work, intertwined with pliant thick-leaved branches; Godefroy has O. F. 'treille, traille, treillis, treillage'; cf. l. 195. The original has:—'Si m'assis dessoubz une treille.' A note explains dessoubz as derriere.

198. neer, nearer; as in l. 201. sought, attacked (him).

230. 'Et se par honneur et sans blasme Ie suis vostre.' That is, if I am yours, with honour to myself. But the translator transfers the worship, i. e. the honour, to the lady.

259. 'Which promised utterly to deprive me of my trust.'

265. Other or me, me or some one else. But the French is:—'Se moy ou autre vous regarde,' if I or some one else look at you; which is quite a different thing.

269–72. Obscure, and perhaps wrong; the original is:—

'S'aucun blesse autruy d'aventure
Par coulpe de celuy qui blesse,
Quoi qu'il n'en peult mais par droiture,
Si en a il dueil et tristesse.'

282-3. 'Que peu de chose peult trop plaire
Et vous vous voulez decevoir.'

300. 'It were less harm for one to be sad than two.'

303. Read sory: 'D'ung dolent faire deux joyeux.'

324. rechace, chasing it back, which gives small sense; and the reading richesse is worse, and will not rime. The French has rachatz=mod. F. rachat, redemption, ransom; which has been misunderstood.

340. 'Preuve ses parolles par oeuvre.'

348. their is an error for his (Love's), due to the translator. 'Lors il [Amour] descouure sa fierté.'

351. 'Tant plus aspre en est la pointure,
Et plus desplaisant le deffault.'

357. oon, one; i.e. the same. MS. Ff. has wone, a very early example of the prefixed sound of w, as in modern English. See Zupitza's notes to Guy of Warwick.

393. Something is wrong. The French is:—'La mesure faulx semblant porte'; meaning (I suppose) moderation has a false appearance.

400. As think, i.e. pray think; see As in the Gloss. in vol. vi.

443. 'A constrained reward, and a gift offered by way of thanks, cannot agree'; i.e. are quite different.

449. wanteth, is wanting, is lacking.

468. 'Qui soit donné à autre office.'

469. 'D'assez grant charge se cheuit,' he gets rid of a great responsibility. The translator gives the contrary sense.

506. 'D'en donner à qui les reffuse.'

509. That He, not Who, should begin the line, is certain by comparison with the French:—'Il ne doit pas cuider muser.'

514. me mistook, that I mistook myself, that I made a mistake.

519, 520. prevayl you, benefit you; after, according to.

523-4. after-game, return-match, a second game played by one who has lost the first. I believe l. 524 to mean 'who cannot thoroughly afford to double his stakes.' To set often means to stake. The French is:—

'Et celui pert le ieu d'attente
Qui ne scet faire son point double.'

531. it ar, they are. This use of ar with it is due to the pl. sb. fantasyes (i.e. vain fancies) immediately following; other counsayl is equivalent to 'as for any other counsel,' which implies that there are more alternatives than one.

536. 'Who would like to conduct himself,' i.e. to regulate his conduct. 'Qui la veult conduire et ne peult.'

538. Read sute: 'Desespoir le met de sa suite.'

555. 'Ne de l'apprendre n'ay-ie cure.'

559. 'Et le deuoir d'amours payer Qui franc cuer a, prisé et droit.'

566. That is a mere conjunction; the reading Which alters the sense, and gives a false meaning.

583. let, makes as though he knew not ; French, 'scet celler.'

594, 595. Hath set; 'Mettroit en mes maulx fin et terme.' Line 595 should begin with Then rather than Yet, as there is no contrast.

605. 'De tous soit celuy deguerpiz.'

608. or anything at al, &c.; 'et le bien fait De sa Dame qui l'a reffait Et ramen   de mort a vie'; i.e. and the kindness of his Lady, who has new made him, and brought him back from death to life. The English follows some different reading, and is obscurely expressed.

614. 'A qui l'en puisse recourir'; to whom he could have recourse. But recourir has been read as recovrir, giving no good sense.

627. The reading high is right; 'Que iamais hault honneur ne chiet.'

634. reclaymed, taught to come back; a term in falconry; French, 'bien reclamez.' Opposed to hem to withholde, i.e. to keep themselves from coming back.

635. 'Et si bien aprins qu'ils retiennent
A changer d  s qu'ils ont clamez.'

651. fol, foolish; F. text, 'fol plaisir.'

667. To have better, to get a better lover. But the sense is wrongly given. In the French, this clause goes with what follows:—'D'auoir mieulx ne vous affiez,' i.e. expect to get nothing better.

667. to have better, to get a better lover.

668. 'Et prenez en gr   le reffus.'

673. The original shews that she really refers to Pity, denoted by it in l. 671, not to the Lady herself.

680. 'Et iamais    bout n'en vendrez.'

706. By; French, De; hence By should be Of. Read defame of cruelty, an ill name for cruelty. The mistake is the translator's.

741. Male-bouche, Slander; a name probably taken from the Rom. de la Rose, 2847; called Wikked-Tonge in the English version, 3027.

750. playn, (all equally) flat. 'La terre n'est pas toute unie.'

757. be nought, are naughty, are wicked; as in K. Lear, ii. 4. 136.

788. 'Que si tost mis en obli a.'

814. avantours, boasters; see l. 735. F. text, 'venteus'; cf. 'Vanteux, vaunting'; Cotgrave.

817. Refus, i.e. Denial; personified. 'Reffuz a ses chasteaulx bastiz.'

829. The last four stanzas are original. Note the change from the 8-line to the 7-line stanza.

XVII. THE TESTAMENT OF CRESSEID.

This sequel to Chaucer's 'Troilus,' written by Robert Henryson of Dunfermline, is in the Northern dialect of the Scottish Lowlands. Thynne has not made any special attempt to alter the wording of this piece, but he frequently modifies the spelling; printing so instead of sa (l. 3), whan for quhen (l. 3), right for richt (l. 4), and so on. I follow the Edinburgh edition of 1593. See further in the Introduction.

1. Ane, a ; altered by Thynne to a, throughout.

dooly (Th. doly), doleful, sad ; from the sb. dool, sorrow.

4-6. Here fervent seems to mean 'stormy' or 'severe,' as it obviously does not mean hot. Descend is used transitively ; can descend means 'caused to descend.' This is an earlier example than that from Caxton in the New Eng. Dictionary. Aries clearly means the influence of Aries, and implies that the sun was in that sign, which it entered (at that date) about the 12th of March ; see vol. iii. p. 188 (footnote). Lent is 'spring' ; and the Old Germanic method is here followed, which divided each of the seasons into three months. In this view, the spring-months were March, April, and May, called, respectively, forward Lent, midward Lent, and afterward Lent ; see A Student's Pastime, p. 190. Hence the phrase in middis of the Lent does not mean precisely in the middle of the spring, but refers to the month of April ; indeed, the sun passed out of Aries into Taurus on the 11th of the month. The date indicated is, accordingly, the first week in April, when the sun was still in Aries, and showers of hail, with a stormy north wind, were quite seasonable.

10. sylit under cure, covered up, (as if) under his care. The verb to syle is precisely the mod. E. ceil ; which see in the New E. Dict.

12. unto, i.e. over against. The planet Venus, rising in the east, set her face over against the west, where the sun had set.

20. shill, shrill. Shille occurs as a variant of schrille in C. T., B 4585 ; see schil in Stratmann.

32. douf (spelt doif in the old edition) is the Northern form of 'deaf,' answering to the Icel. dauf ; thus a nut without a kernel is called in the South 'a deaf nut,' but in Scotland 'a douf nit' ; see Jamieson. For deaf in the senses of 'dull' and 'unproductive,' see the New E. Dict.

39. cut, curtail ; illustrated from Lydgate in the New E. Dict.

42. Read lusty, to avoid the repetition of worthy ; cf. l. 41. It should have been stated, in the footnotes, that the readings are : E. worthy ; Th. lusty.

43. Referring to Troil. bk. v. In l. 92, we are told how Diomedes led Criseyde away. Note particularly that, in l. 45, Henryson quotes Chaucer rather closely. Cf. 'For which wel neigh out of my wit I breyde' ; Troil. v. 1262. And cf. ll. 47-9 with—'Betwixen hope and drede his herte lay' ; Troil. v. 1207.

48. Quhill, till. The reading Esperus in E. is comic enough. Even Thynne has misread esperans, and has turned it into esperous. There can be little doubt that esperans here means 'hope,' as it is opposed to wanhope in the line above. The word was known to Henryson, as we find, in st. 8 of his Garment of Gude Ladyis : 'Hir slevis suld be of esperance, To keip hir fra dispair.' Cf. l. 49.

50. behest, promise ; because she had promised to return to Troy within ten days ; Troil. iv. 1595.

65. this narratioun, i.e. the sequel of the story, which he is about to tell. He does not tell us whence he derived it, but intimates that it is a fiction; I suppose he invented it himself.

74. lybel of répudy, Lat. 'libellum repudii,' as in Matt. xix. 7.

77. 'And, as some say, into the common court'; i. e. she became a courtesan.

78. A-per-se, i. e. the first letter of the alphabet, standing alone. A letter that was also a word in itself, as A, or I, or O, was called 'per se,' because it could stand alone. Of these, the A-per-se was a type of excellence. One of Dunbar's Poems (ed. Small, i. 276) begins:—'London, thou art of townes A-per-se.'

79. fortunait, the sport of fortune; oddly used, as it implies that she was 'an unfortunate.' Cf. l. 89.

94. but, without; and Thynne actually prints without in place of it.

97. guhair, where her father Chalcas (was). He was living among the Greeks; Troil. i. 80, 87.

106. In the medieval legend, Calchas was not a priest of Venus, but of Apollo, as Chaucer notes; see Troil. i. 66-70. So also in Lydgate, Siege of Troy, bk. ii. c. 17. Henryson probably altered this intentionally, because it enabled him to represent Criseyde as reproaching her father's god; see ll. 124, 134.

129. outwaill, outcast; one who is chosen out and rejected; from the verb wail, wale, to choose. There seems to be no other example of the word, though Jamieson gives 'outwailins, leavings, things of little value.'

140. forlane can hardly mean 'left alone.' If so, it would be a word invented for the occasion, and improperly formed from lane, which is itself a docked form of alane. In all other passages, forlane or forlain is the pp. of forliggen; and the sense of 'defiled' is quite applicable. And further, it rimes with slane, which means 'slain.'

143. 'And, as it seemed, she heard, where she lay,' &c.

147. The seven planets; which, in the order of the magnitude of their orbits, are Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, the Sun, Venus, Mercury, and the Moon. And to this order the author carefully adheres throughout ll. 151-263.

155. fronsit, wrinkled; frounse is the mod. E. frounce, which formerly meant 'a pleat'; see frounce, frouncen in Stratmann, and the Gloss. to Chaucer. Misprinted frosnit in E.

'His complexion was like lead.' Lead was Saturn's metal; see C. T., G 828, and the note.

164. That gyte is the correct reading, is obvious from ll. 178, 260, where Thynne has preserved it. It is a Chaucerian word; see the Glossary in vol. vi. It seems to mean 'mantle.' The Edinburgh printer altered it to gyis, which is too general a term, at least in l. 260.

182. 'To ward off from us the wrath of his father (Saturn).'

198. Compare Ch. C. T., F 1031—'god and governour Of every plaunte, herbe, tree, and flour.'

205. Alluding to Phaethon's misguidance of the chariot of the sun;

'And that his faders cart amis he dryve'; Troil. v. 665. Laing prints unricht; but omits to say that E. has upricht.

211. soyr, sorrel-coloured, reddish-brown; see Sorrel in my Etym. Dict.

212-6. The names of the four horses are curiously corrupted from the names given in Ovid, Met. ii. 153, viz. Eöus, Æthon, Pyröeis, and Phlegon. As Eous means 'belonging to the dawn,' we may consider the words into the Orient, i. e. in the East, as explanatory of the name Eoy; 'called Eoy, (which signifies) in the East.' As to the name of the last horse, it was obviously meant to take the form Philegoney, in order to rime with sey (sea), and I have therefore restored this form. The two authorities, E. and Th., give it in the amazing form Philologie (Philologiee), which can only mean 'philology'!

231. lauch and weip are infinitives, but appear to be meant for past tenses. If so, the former should be leuch; weip may answer to the strong pt. t. weep in Chaucer (A. S. wēop).

246. He seems to be thinking of Chaucer's Doctor of Phisyk; cf. Ch. ProL. A 425-6, 439.

254. 'The last of all (in order), and swiftest in her orbit.'

256. Thynne has tapere=to appear; this passage is curiously cited, in Richardson's Dictionary, in illustration of the sb. taper!

261. churl, man; this is Chaucer's cherl, in Troil. i. 1024. See the note to that line.

263. na nar, no nearer; the moon's orbit, being the least, was the most remote from the outer heaven that enclosed the primum mobile.

273. shew, shewed; but it is false grammar, for the verb to shew (or show) was weak. Formed by analogy with blew, grew, knew; cf. rew, mew, sew, old strong preterites of row, mow, and sow.

290. As Henryson usually refrains from the addition of a syllable at the cæsura, we should probably read injure, not injury; see Troil. iii. 1018.

297, 298. hyest, i. e. Saturn; lawest (lowest), i. e. Cynthia.

299. modify, determine, specify; not here used in the modern sense.

318. Heat and moisture characterised the sanguine temperament (see vol. v. p. 33); coldness and dryness characterised the melancholy temperament (see P. Plowman, B-text, p. xix). Cf. l. 316.

343. 'With cup and clapper, like a leper.' It was usual for lepers to carry a cup (for their own use), and a clapper or clap-dish, which was used in order to give warning of their approach, and also as a receptacle for alms, to prevent actual contact; cf. l. 479 below. Compare the following:—

'Coppe and claper he bare . . .

As he a mesel [leper] were.'—Sir Tristrem, 3173.

'Than beg her bread with dish and clap' (referring to Criseyde).

Turbervile's Poems: The Lover in utter dispaire.

See further under Clapper in the New Eng. Dict.

lazarous is formed as an adj. in -ous from the sb. lazar, a leper; see l. 531.

350. wa, woful; 'God knows if she was woful enough.'

382. The accent on the second syllable of hospital was not uncommon; hence its frequent contraction to spittal or spittel-house; for which see l. 391 below.

386. Read bevar or bever (Th. has beuer); the reading bawar in E. gives no sense. I see no connection with Lowl. Sc. bevar, 'one who is worn out with age,' according to Jamieson, who merely guesses at the sense, as being perhaps allied to bavard, which he also explains as 'worn out'; although, if from the F. bavard, it rather means talkative, babbling, or idle. I believe that bevar hat simply means 'beaver hat,' formerly used by women as well as by men. Even Dickens alludes to 'farmer's wives in beaver bonnets,' in Martin Chuzzlewit, ch. 5. No doubt a beaver hat was, when new, an expensive luxury, as worn by Chaucer's 'Merchant' (Prol. l. 272); but they wore well and long, and were doubtless gladly used by beggars when cast off by their original owners.

407. The metre, in ll. 407-69, is borrowed from Chaucer's Anelida.

410. blaiknit, is not a derivative of M. E. blak, black, but of M. E. blāk, bleik, bleak, pallid, cheerless. It is here used in the sense of 'rendered cheerless'; and bair means 'bare' or 'barren.' See blākien in Stratmann.

413. 'Thy bale is in the growth,' or is sprouting. See Braird, the first shoots of corn or grass, in the New E. Dict., where two more examples of this phrase are cited from Henryson.

417. 'With goodly bed, and convenient embroidered bench-covers.' Burelie (mod. E. burly, prov. E. bowerly) answers to an A. S. form būr-līc, i. e. suitable for a lady's bower. This explains why it was appropriately used as an epithet for a bed. Cf. 'Quhair ane burely bed was wrocht in that wane'; Rauf Coilyear, 264. Hence 'a burly knight' was one suitable for a lady's bower, and therefore handsome, strong, well-grown, large; and by a degradation of meaning, huge, corpulent. The changes in sense are curious and instructive. In the New E. Dict., the etymology is not given. For bene, see bain in the New E. Dict.; and for bankouris, see banker.

421. saipheroun sals, saffron sauce. Saffron and salt were often used together in medieval cookery; see Two Fifteenth-Century Cookery Books, ed. Austin (E. E. T. S.). The Glossary to that book gives the spellings safroun, saferon, saferoun, and sapheron.

423. This is a very early mention of lawn. It is also mentioned in st. 10 of Lydgate's 'London Lickpeny.'

429. walk, wake. The history of this spelling is not quite clear; but the l was, in any case, mute; another spelling is wauk. I suspect that it originated in the misunderstanding of a symbol. The scribe, who wished to write wakkē, used a symbol resembling lk, where the l was really the first k, indicated by its down-stroke only. For example, the word rokke was (apparently) written rolke. See my article on Ghost-words; Phil. Soc. Trans. 1885, p. 369.

tak the dew, gather May-dew. The old custom of bathing the face with fresh dew on the 1st of May is referred to in Brand's Popular Antiquities. He gives an example as late as 1791. See Pepys' Diary, May 28, 1667, May 11, 1669; where we find that any day in May was then considered suitable for this health-giving operation.

433. I take on every grane to mean 'in every particular'; cf. 'a grain of sense.' We may also note the Fr. teindre en graine, to dye in grain, to dye of a fast colour; and we occasionally find grain in the sense of 'tint.' Godefroy cites 'ung couverteoer d'une graigne vermeille'; and 'une manche vermeille, ne sçay se c'est graine ou autre tainture.' Grane also means 'groan,' and 'groin,' and 'fork of a tree'; but none of these senses suit.

438. 'Take this leper-lodge in place of thy stately bower.'

450. In l. 407, we have sop of sorrow, i.e. sop, or sup, of sorrow. So here sowpit in syte, sopped, or drenched, in sorrow; an expression which Jamieson illustrates from Holland's Houlate, i. 4, and Douglas's Vergil, prologue to Book viii, l. 5.

463. This expression is imitated from Chaucer's Boethius, bk. iii. pr. 6. 3—'O glorie, glorie, thou art nothing elles but a greet sweller of eres!' See note to I. ii. 8. 68 (p. 472).

480. leir (Th. lerne); surely miscopied from l. 479. Read live.

490. lipper seems to be used collectively; so also in l. 494.

492. shuik coppis, shook their cups; it implies that they waved them aloft, to attract attention. They also used their clappers.

501. ply, plight. I know of no other example of ply in this sense; but ply (usually, a fold) and plight (incorrect spelling of M. E. plyte) are closely related; the former represents Lat. plicitum, the latter, Lat. plicita; from plicare, to fold (whence E. ply, verb, to bend).

541. 'With many a sorrowful cry and cold or sad (cry of) O hone!' Here cald=sad; and Ochane is the Irish and Scotch cry of O hone! or Och hone! See O hone in the Century Dict., s.v. O.

543. will of wane, lit. wild of weening, at a loss what to do. See Gloss. to Barbour's Bruce, s. v. Will.

550. 'And climbed so high upon the fickle wheel' (of Fortune). Cf. Troil. iv. 6, 11.

567. 'For they (women) are as constant as a weathercock in the wind.' Cf. 'unsad . . and chaunging as a vane'; Ch. C. T., E 995.

588. wellis, streams, rills; as in Book Duch. 160.

589. broche and belt; Criseyde gave Diomedes the brooch she had received from Troilus; see Troil. v. 1661, 1669, 1688. The belt is Henryson's addition.

600. 'His heart was ready to burst.'

XVIII. THE CUCKOO AND THE NIGHTINGALE.

In this piece, the final -e is much used as forming a distinct syllable; indeed, more freely than in Chaucer.

1, 2. Quoted from the Knichtes Tale, A 1785-6.

4. The word of is inserted in Th., Ff. and S., and seems to be right; but as hy-e should be two syllables, perhaps the words And of were rapidly pronounced, in the time of a single syllable. Or omit And.

11-5. The lines of this stanza are wrongly arranged in Thynne, and in every printed edition except the present one; i.e. the lines 12 and 13 are transposed. But as the rime-formula is aabba, it is easy to see that suffyse, devyse, agryse rime together on the one hand, and nyce, vyce, on the other. The pronunciation suffice is comparatively modern; in Chaucer, the suffix -yse was pronounced with a voiced s, i.e. as z. Note the rimes devyse, suffyse in the Book of the Duch. 901-2; suffyse, wyse, devyse, in the C. T., B 3648-9; &c. The MSS. Ff., F., and B. all give the right arrangement.

18. whom him lyketh, him whom it pleases him (to gladden or sadden).

20, 23. May; cf. Troil. ii. 50-63; Rom. Rose, 51-2, 74-6, 85-6; Legend of Good Women, 108; C. T., A 1500-2.

36. of feling, from experience. Spek-e is dissyllabic.

39. hoot, hot, i.e. hopeful; cold, full of despair; accēs, feverish attack, as in Troil. ii. 1315, 1543, 1578.

41. fevers whyte, feverish attacks (of love) that turn men pale; the same as blaunchē fevere in Troil. i. 916; see note to that line.

48. a comune tale, a common saying. As a fact, one would expect to hear the cuckoo first. Prof. Newton, in his Dict. of Birds, says of the cuckoo, that it 'crosses the Mediterranean from its winter-quarters in Africa at the end of March or beginning of April. Its arrival is at once proclaimed by the peculiar . . . cry of the cock.' Of the nightingale he says—'if the appearance of truth is to be regarded, it is dangerous to introduce a nightingale as singing in England before the 15th of April or after the 15th of June.'

As the change of style makes a difference of 12 days, this 15th of April corresponds to the 3rd of April in the time of Chaucer. It is remarkable that Hazlitt, in his Proverbs, p. 305, gives the following:—'On the third of April, comes in the cuckoo and the nightingale'; which may once have been correct as regards the latter. Hazlitt also says that, in Sussex, the 14th of April is supposed to be 'first cuckoo-day'; whereas it would better apply to the nightingale. And again, another proverb says (p. 380)—'The nightingale and the cuckoo sing both in one month.' It is clear that, whatever the facts may be, our ancestors had a notion that these birds arrived nearly at the same time, and attached some importance, by way of augury, to the possibility of hearing the nightingale first. They must frequently have been disappointed. See Milton's sonnet, as quoted in the Introduction.

54. of, during; exactly as in l. 42.

62. Read inne, the adverbial form; for the sake of the grammar and scansion. See Inne in the Gloss. in vol. vi. p. 135. been gives a false rime to gren-e and sen-e; shewing that grene and sene are here monosyllabic (really green and seen), instead of being dissyllabic, as in Chaucer. Sene is the adj., meaning visible, not the pp., which then took the form seyn.

70. For began, which is singular, substitute the pl. form begonne. to don hir houres, to sing their matins, &c.; referring to the canonical hours of church-service. Bell has the reading to don honoures, for which there is no early authority. Morris unluckily adopts the meaningless reading found in MSS. F. and B.

71. 'They knew that service all by rote,' i.e. by heart. Bell actually explains rote as a hurdy-gurdy; as to which see Rote (in senses 2 and 3) in the Gloss. in vol. vi. p. 218.

80. Feverere seems to have been pronounced Fev'rer'. Surely it must be right. Yet all the MSS. (except T.) actually have Marche (written Mars in Ff.), followed by upon, not on. Even Th. and T. have upon, not on; but it ruins the scansion, unless we adopt the reading March. It looks as if the author really did write Marche!

82, 85. ron, mon, for ran, man, are peculiar. As such forms occur in Myrc and Audelay (both Shropshire authors) and in Robert of Gloucester, they are perfectly consistent with the supposition that they are due to Clanvowe's connection with Herefordshire.

87. swow, swoon; cf. Book Duch. 215.

90. As brid is a monosyllable (cf. ll. 212, 260, 270, 271), it is necessary to make lew-ed-e a trisyllable; as also in l. 103. But it becomes lew'de in ll. 50, 94. Chaucer has lew-ëd, P. F. 616, &c.

105. him; the cuckoo is male, but the nightingale, by way of contrast, is supposed to be female.

118. playn, simple, having simple notes; cf. 'the plain-song cuckoo,' Mids. Nt. Dr. iii. 1. 134.

119. crakel, 'trill or quaver in singing; used in contempt'; New E. Dict.

124. I seems to be strongly accented. It is a pity that there is no authority for inserting For before it. Otherwise, read I hav-ë.

In Old French, oci oci, represented the cry of the nightingale; Godefroy gives examples from Raoul de Houdenc, Froissart, and Deschamps. Moreover, oci was also the imperative of the O.F. verb ccire, to kill; with which it is here intentionally confused. Accordingly, the nightingale retorts that oci means 'kill! kill!' with reference to the enemies of love.

135. grede, exclaim, cry out. Not used by Chaucer, though found in most dialects of Middle-English. Clanvowe may have heard it in Herefordshire, as it occurs in Langland, Layamon, Robert of Gloucester, and in the Coventry Mysteries, and must have been known in the west. But it was once a very common word. From A.S. grædan.

137. to-drawe, drawn asunder; cf. Havelok, 2001; Will. of Palerne, 1564.

140. yok, yoke; cf. Ch. C. T., E 113, 1285.

142. unthryve, become unsuccessful, meet with ill luck. A very rare word; but it also occurs in the Cursor Mundi (Fairfax MS.), l. 9450, where it is said of Adam that 'his wyf made him to unthryve.'

146. The first syllable of the line is deficient. Accent What strongly. Cf. 153-8 below.

151. The sentiment that love teaches all goodness, is common at this time; see Schick's note to Lydgate's Temple of Glas, l. 450.

152. The true reading is doubtful.

153-8. Here the author produces a considerable metrical effect, by beginning all of these lines with a strong accent. There are three such consecutive lines in the Wyf of Bathes Tale, D 869-71. Cf. ll. 161, 232, 242, 252, 261, 265, 268, 270, 278.

180. Bell and Morris read haire, without authority, and Bell explains it by 'he may full soon have the hair (!) which belongs to age, scil., grey hair, said to be produced by anxiety.' But the M. E. form of 'hair' is heer, which will not give a true rime; and the word heyr represents the mod. E. heir. As the h was not sounded, it is also written eir (as in MS. T.) and air (as in MS. S.). The sense is—'For he who gets a little bliss of love may very soon find that his heir has come of age, unless he is always devoted to it.' This is a mild joke, signifying that he will soon find himself insecure, like one whose heir or successor has come of age, and whose inheritance is threatened. On the other hand, 'to have one's hair of age' is wholly without sense. Compare the next note.

185. 'And then you shall be called as I am.' I.e. your loved one will forsake you, and you will be called a cuckold. This remark is founded on the fact that the O. F. coucoun or cocu had the double sense of cuckoo and cuckold. See cocu in Littré. This explains l. 186.

201-5. Bell, by an oversight, omits this stanza.

203. This reading (from the best MS., viz. Ff.) is much the best. The sense is—'And whom he hits he knows not, or whom he misses'; because he is blind.

216-25. All the early printed editions crush these two stanzas into one, by omitting ll. 217-9, and 224-5, and altering thoughte me (l. 223) to me aloon. This is much inferior to the text.

237. leve, believe; yet all the authorities but S. have the reading loue! Cf. l. 238.

243. dayesye, daisy. Cf. Legend of Good Women, 182-7, 201-2, 211.

266. Ye witen is the right reading; turned into ye knowe in F. and B. The old printed editions actually read The cuckowe!

267. A syllable seems lacking after I; such lines are common in

XX. THE FLOWER AND THE LEAF. LL. 1-30. 529

Lydgate. The reading y-chid would render the line complete; or we may read hav-ë, as perhaps in l. 124.

275. An obvious allusion to Chaucer's Parlement of Foules, in which he gives 'the royal egle' the first place (l. 330).

284. The quene; queen Joan of Navarre, second wife of Henry IV, who received the manor of Woodstock as part of her dower.

285. lay, lea; not a common word in M. E. poetry, though occurring in P. Plowman. The parliament of birds required a large open space.

389. Terme: during the whole term of my life; cf. C. T., G 1479.

XIX. ENVOY TO ALISON.

1. lewde book, unlearned book. It is not known to what book this refers. It has nothing to do with the preceding poem. My guess, in vol. i. p. 40, that this piece might be Hoccleve's, is quite untenable. His pieces are all known, and the metrical form is of later date. See the next note.

11. Too long; perhaps servant should be struck out. So in l. 13 we could spare the word als. But ll. 17, 18, 19, 20, are all of an unconscionable length.

22-7. I believe I was the first to detect the obvious acrostic on the name of Alison; see vol. i. p. 40. The sense of ll. 25-6 (which are forced and poor) is—'I beseech (you) of your grace, let your writing (in reply) alleviate the sighs which I pour out in silence.'

XX. THE FLOWER AND THE LEAF.

I give numerous references below to 'A. L.', i.e. the Assembly of Ladies, printed at p. 380. The two poems have much in common.

1-2. Imitated from C. T., F 671; see note in vol. v. p. 386.

3. Bole, Bull, Taurus. The sun then entered Taurus about the middle of April; hence the allusion to April showers in l. 4. Compare the opening lines of Chaucer's Prologue. But we learn, from l. 437, that it was already May. Hence the sun had really run half its course in Taurus. certainly; used at the end of the line, as in A. L. 85.

10. very good; this adverbial use of very is noticeable; cf. ll. 35, 315, 409, and A. L. 479. I believe Chaucer never uses very to qualify an adjective. It occurs, however, in Lydgate.

20. Cf. 'more at herles ese'; A. L. 672.

25. Cf. 'at springing of the day'; A. L. 218.

26. Cf. 'That ye wold help me on with myn aray'; A. L. 241.

27-8. This rime of passee with was occurs again below (114-6); and in A. L. 436-8.

30. Chaucer has hew-ë, new-ë; but here hew, new rime with the pt. t. grew. So, in A. L. 65-8, hew, new rime with the pt. t. knew.

M m

31-2. Copied from the Book of the Duch. 419-20 :—

‘And every tree stood by him-selve
Fro other wel ten foot or twelve.’

35. ‘The young leaves of the oak, when they first burst from the bud, are of a red, cinereous colour’; Bell.

37. Cf. ‘this proces for to here’; A. L. 27. And again, ‘pitous for to here’; A. L. 718.

39-42. This seems to be a direct allusion to the Cuckoo and the Nightingale, ll. 52-4 :—

‘I wolde go som whider to assay
If that I might a nightingale here;
For yet had I non herd of al this yere.’

43-5. From the Book of the Duch. 398-401 :—

‘Doun by a floury grene wente
Ful thikke of gras, ful softe and swete, . . .
And litel used, it semed thus.’

Cf. A. L. 47; ‘into a strait passage,’ and the context.

47. parde; a petty oath (being in French), such as a female writer might use; so in A. L. 753.

49, 50. For the herber and benches, see A. L. 48-9; also L. G. W. 203-4. For the phrase wel y-wrought, see A. L. 165.

53. Bell and Morris read wool, which is obviously right; but neither of them mention the fact that both Speght’s editions have wel; and there is no other authority! Clearly, Speght’s MS. had wol, which he misread as wel.

56. eglantere, eglantine, sweet-briar. Entered under eglatere in the New E. Dict., though the earlier quotations, in 1387 and 1459, have eglentere. I find no authority for the form eglatere except Speght’s misprint in this line, which he corrects in l. 80 below. Tennyson’s eglatere (Dirge, 23) is clearly borrowed from this very line.

58. by mesure; a tag which reappears in A. L. 81.

59. by and by; another tag, for which see A. L. 87, 717.

60. I you ensure; yet another tag; see l. 457, and A. L. 52, 199, 495, 517.

62. The final e in peyn-e is suppressed; so in A. L. 359, 416.

68. Cf. ‘And as they sought hem-self thus to and fro’; A. L. 43.

75. Here espyed rimes with syde, wyde; in A. L. 193, it rimes with asyde and gyde.

89. The goldfinch is afterwards opposed to the nightingale. Hence he replaces the cuckoo in the poem of the Cuckoo and Nightingale. Just as the Cuckoo and Nightingale represent the faithless and the constant, so the goldfinch and the nightingale are attached, respectively, to the bright Flower and the long-lasting Leaf. This is explicitly said below; see ll. 439, 444.

XX. THE FLOWER AND THE LEAF. LL. 31-163. 531

98. in this wyse; appears also at the end of a line in A. L. 589; cf. in her gyse, A. L. 603; in ful pitous wyse, A. L. 584; in no maner wyse, A. L. 605.

99, 100. These lines correspond to the Cuckoo and Nightingale, 98-100.

113. inly greet, extremely great; cf. inly fair, A. L. 515.

115. 'Ye wold it thinke a very paradyse'; A. L. 168.

118. Better I set me down, as in A. L. 77.

121. 'Withouten sleep, withouten mete or drinke'; L. G. W. 177 (note the context).

134. Here begins the description of the adherents of the Leaf, extending to l. 322, including the Nine Worthies, ll. 239-94. The reader must carefully bear in mind that the followers of the Leaf are clad in white (not in green, as we should now expect), though the nine Worthies are crowned with green laurel, and all the company gather under a huge Laurel-tree (l. 304). On the other hand the followers of the Flower, shortly described in ll. 323-50, are clad in green, though wearing chaplets of white and red flowers; for green was formerly an emblem of inconstancy.

137. Cf. 'to say you very right'; A. L. 750.

144. oon and oon, every one of them. This phrase is rare in Chaucer; it seems only to occur once, in C. T., A 679; but see A. L. 368, 543, 710.

146. purfil occurs in A. L. 87, in the same line with by and by; and in A. L. 522-4, we find colour, sleves, and purfyl close together.

148. Cf. 'With grete perles, ful fyne and orient'; A. L. 528. For diamonds, see A. L. 530.

150. Borrowed from Chaucer, Parl. Foules, 287: 'of whiche the name I wante.' Hence wante, i. e. lack, is the right reading. The rime is imperfect.

155. The missing word is not branches, as suggested by Sir H. Nicolas, nor floures, as suggested by Morris, but leves; as the company of the Leaf is being described; cf. l. 259. The epithets fresh and grene are very suitable. The leaves were of laurel, woodbine, and agnus-castus.

160. For were read ware; see ll. 267, 329, 335, 340; the sense is wore. Chaucer's form is wered, as the verb was originally weak; Gower and Lydgate also use the form wered. The present is perhaps one of the earliest examples of the strong form of this preterite.

agnus-castus; 'from Gk. ἄγρος, the name of the tree, confused with ἄγρός, chaste, whence the second word Lat. castus, chaste. A tree, species of Vitex (V. Agnus Castus), once believed to be a preservative of chastity, called also Chaste-tree and Abraham's Balm'; New E. Dict. The same Dict. quotes from Trevisa: 'The herbe agnus-castus is alwaye grene, and the flowre therof is namly callyd Agnus Castus, for wyth smelle and vse it makyth men chaste as a lombe.'

163. For But Morris reads And, which is simpler.

164. oon, one. She was the goddess Diana (see l. 472), or the Lady of the Leaf.

171. Cf. 'That to beholde it was a greet plesaunce'; A. L. 59.

172. Cf. 'though it were for a king'; A. L. 158.

177-8. Speght has Suse le foyle de vert moy in l. 177, and Seen et mon joly cuer en dormy in l. 178. I see little good in guessing what it ought to be; so I leave it alone, merely correcting Suse and foyle to Sus and foyl; as the O. F. foil was masculine.

Bell alters de vert to devers, and for Seen puts Son; and supplies est after cuer; but it all gives no sense when it is done. We should have to read Sus le foyl devers moy sied, et mon joli cuer est endormi; sit down upon the foliage before me, and my merry heart has gone to sleep. Which can hardly be right. The Assembly of Ladies has the same peculiarity, of presenting unintelligible scraps of French to the bewildered reader.

180. smal, high, treble; chiefly valuable for explaining the same word in Chaucer's Balade to Rosemounde.

188-9. A parallel passage occurs in A. L. 384-5.

201. the large wones, the spacious dwellings; cf. Ch. C. T., D 2105.

202. Speght has Pretir, an obvious error for Prester. The authoress may easily have obtained her knowledge of Prester John from a MS. of Mandeville's Travels; see cap. 27 of that work. And see Yule's edition of Marco Polo. He was, according to Mandeville, one of the greatest potentates of Asia, next to the Great Khan.

209. cereal; borrowed from Chaucer:—'A coroune of a grene ook cerial'; C. T., A 2290. And Chaucer took it from Boccaccio; see note in vol. v. p. 87.

210. trumpets, i.e. trumpeters; as several times in Shakespeare. Cf. l. 213.

212. tartarium, thin silk from Tartary. Fully explained in my note to P. Plowman, C. xvii. 299 (B. xv. 163), and in the Glossary to the same. bete, lit. beaten; hence, adorned with beaten gold; see note to C. T., A 978 (vol. v. p. 64). were, (all of which) were; hence the plural.

213. Read bere, as in l. 223; A. S. bæron, pt. t. pl.

220. kinges of armes, kings-at-arms; who presided over colleges of heralds. Sir David Lyndsay was Lord Lion king-at-arms.

224. Cf. 'Set with saphyrs'; A. L. 480.

233. vel-u-et is trisyllabic; as in The Black Knight, 80.

234. 'And certainly, they had nothing to learn as to how they should place the armour upon them.'

238. in sute, in their master's livery.

240. The celebrated Nine Worthies; see notes to IV. 281, XII. 86.

243. Cf. 'and furred wel with gray'; A. L. 305.

252. henshmen, youths mounted on horseback, who attended their lords. See numerous quotations for this word in A Student's Pastime, §§ 264, 272, 415-8. Each of them is called a child, l. 259.

253. For every on, it is absolutely necessary to read the first upon;

for the sense. Each of the nine worthies had three henchmen ; of these three, the first bore his helmet, the second his shield, and the third his spear.

257. Bell and Morris alter nekke to bakke ; but wrongly. The shields were carried by help of a strap which passed round the neck and over the shoulders ; called in Old French a guige. The convenience of this arrangement is obvious. See note to C. T., A 2504 (vol. v. p. 88).

272. In Lydgate's Temple of Glas, 508, we are told that hawthorn-leaves do not fade ; see ll. 551-3 below.

274. Read hors, not horses ; hors is the true plural ; see l. 293.

275. Cf. 'trompes, that . . . blowen blody sounes' ; C. T., A 2511-2.

286-7. 'That to beholde it was a greet plesauce' ; A. L. 59. And again—'I you ensure' ; A. L. 52.

289. I. e. the Nine Worthies ; see ll. 240, 249.

293. The reading ninth (as in Speght) is an absurd error for nine ; yet no one has hitherto corrected it. How could the ninth man alight from their horses ? The 'remnant' were the twenty-seven henchmen and the other knights.

295. Cf. 'See how they come togider, twain and twain' ; A. L. 350.

302. Cf. 'Ful womanly she gave me,' &c. ; A. L. 196.

305. 'Laden with leaves, with boughs of great breadth.'

323. Here begins the description of the company of the Flower. They were clad in green.

330. Cf. 'Her gown was wel embrouded' ; A. L. 85.

348. bargaret, a pastoral ; a rustic song and dance ; O. F. bergerete, from berger, a shepherd. Godefroy notes that they were in special vogue at Easter.

350. We have here the refrain of a popular French pastoral. Warton suggests it may have been Froissart's ; but the refrain of Froissart's Ballade de la Marguerite happens to be different : 'Sur toutes flours j'aime la margherite' ; see Spec. of O. French, ed. Toynbee, p. 302. In fact, Warton proceeds to remark, that 'it was common in France to give the title of Marguerites to studied panegyrics and flowery compositions of every kind.' It is quite impossible to say if a special compliment is intended ; most likely, the authoress thought of nothing of the kind. She again mentions margarettes in A. L. 57.

351. in-fere, together ; very common at the end of a line, as in ll. 384, 450 ; A. L. 407, 469, 546, 602, 719.

369. withouten fail ; this tag recurs in A. L. 567, 646, in the form withouten any fail ; and, unaltered, in A. L. 188, 537.

373. Those in white, the party of the Leaf.

379. oon, one of those in green ; this was queen Flora ; see l. 534.

403. Bell thinks this corrupt. I think it means, that, before engaging with them in jousts in a friendly manner, they procured some logs of wood and thoroughly dried them. Hence To make hir justës=in order to joust with them afterwards.

410. 'Quickly anointing the sick, wherever they went.'

417. for any thing, in any case, whatever might happen; cf. C. T., A 276, and the note (vol. v. p. 30).

427. 'For nothing was lacking that ought to belong to him.'

450. Here the story ends, and the telling of the moral begins.

457. The meeting with a 'fair lady' was convenient, as she wanted information. In the Assembly of Ladies, this simple device is resorted to repeatedly; see ll. 79, 191, 260, 400.

459. We find ful demure at the end of A. L. 82.

462, 467. My daughter; this assumes that the author was a female; so in ll. 500, 547; and in A. L. throughout.

475. Referring to l. 173; so l. 477 refers to l. 160; l. 479, to l. 158.

493. some maner way, some kind of way; cf. what maner way, A. L. 234.

502. Refers to ll. 240, 249. With l. 510, cf. C. T., A 1027.

512. Speght prints bowes for boughes; but the meaning is certain, as the reference is to ll. 270-1. Bows are not made of laurel; yet Dryden fell into the trap, and actually wrote as follows:—

'Who bear the bows were knights in Arthur's reign;
Twelve they, and twelve the peers of Charlemagne;
For bows the strength of brawny arms imply,
Emblems of valour and of victory.'

This is probably the only instance, even in poetry, of knights being armed with bows and arrows.

515. For the knights of Arthur's round table, see Malory's Morte Arthure.

516. Douseperes; les douze pers, the twelve peers of Charlemagne, including Roland, Oliver, Ogier the Dane, Otuel, Ferumbras, the traitor Ganelon, and others. The names vary.

520. in hir tyme, formerly, in their day; shewing that the institution of the Knights of the Garter on April 23, 1349, by Edward III, was anything but a recent event.

530. I.e. 'Witness him of Rome, who was the founder of knight-hood.' Alluding to Julius Cæsar, to whom was decreed by the senate the right of wearing a laurel-crown; Dryden mentions him by name.

550. Cf. 'De mieulx en mieulx'; Temple of Glas, 310.

551-6. Apparently imitated from The Temple of Glas, 503-16.

567. Cf. 'We thanked her in our most humble wyse'; A. L. 729.

580. Male-Bouche, Slander; borrowed from the Rom. de la Rose. See note above, to VIII. 260.

589. Cf. 'to put it in wryting'; A. L. 664; 'she put it in wryting'; A. L. 629.

590. I.e. in the hope that it will be patronised.

591. Cf. 'As for this book'; A. L. (last stanza).

592. 'How darest thou thrust thyself among the throng?' i.e. enter into contest. Cf. 'In such materys to putte mysylff in prees'; Lydgate, Secrees of Philosophers, ed. Steele, l. 555.

XXI. THE ASSEMBLY OF LADIES.

For numerous references to this poem, see Notes to the preceding poem.

Though apparently written by the authoress of the Flower and the Leaf, it is of later date, and much less use is made of the final e. That the author was a woman, is asserted in ll. 7, 18, 259, 284, 370, 379-85, 407, 450, 625.

17. the mase. They amused themselves by trying to find a way into a maze, similar to that at Hampton Court. Cf. l. 32.

29. Ll. 1-28 are introductory. The story of the dream now begins, but is likewise preceded by an introduction, down to l. 77.

34. The word went is repeated; the second time, it is an error for wend, weened. 'Some went (really) inwards, and imagined that they had gone outwards.' Which shews that the maze was well constructed. So, in l. 36, those who thought they were far behind, found themselves as far forward as the best of them.

42. That is, they cheated the deviser of the maze, by stepping over the rail put to strengthen the hedge. That was because they lost their temper.

44. The authoress got ahead of the rest; although sorely tired, she had gained a great advantage, and found the last narrow passage which led straight to the harbour in the centre. This was provided with benches (doubtless of turf, Flower and Leaf, l. 51) and well enclosed, having stone walls and a paved floor with a fountain in the middle of it.

54. There were stairs leading downwards, with a 'turning-wheel.' I do not think that turning-wheel here means a turn-stile, or what was formerly called a turn-pike. It simply means that the stair-case was of spiral form. Jamieson tells us that, in Lowland Scotch, the term turn-pike was applied (1) to the winding stair of a castle, and (2) to any set of stairs of spiral form; and quotes from Arnot to shew that a spiral stair-case was called a turnpike stair, whereas a straight one was called a scale stair. The pot of marjoram may have been placed on a support rising from the newel.

It may be noted that arbours, which varied greatly in size and construction, were often set upon a small 'mount' or mound; in which case it would be easy to make a small spiral stair-case in the centre. In the present case, it could hardly have been very large, as it occupied a space in the centre of a maze. For further illustration, see A History of Gardening in England, by the Hon. Alicia Amherst, pp. 33, 52, 78, 116, 118, 314.

60. 'And how they (the daisies) were accompanied with other flowers besides, viz. forget-me-nots and remember-mes; and the poor pansies were not ousted from the place.'

61. Ne-m'oubliez-mies; from O. F. ne m'oublie-mie, a forget-me-not. Littré, s. v. ne m'oubliez pas, quotes, from Charles d'Orléans, 'Des fleurs de ne m'oubliez mie'; and again, from a later source, 'Un diamant taillé en fleur de ne m'oblie mie.' The recovery of this true reading (by the help of MS. A.) is very interesting; as all the editions, who follow Thynne, are hopelessly wrong. Thynne, misreading the word, printed Ne momblsynesse; whence arose the following extraordinary entry in Bailey's Dictionary:—'Momblishness, talk, muttering; Old Word.' This ghost-word is carefully preserved in the Century Dictionary in the form:—'Momblishness, muttering talk'; Bailey (1731).

sovenez doubtless corresponds to the name remember-me, given in Yorkshire and Scotland to the Veronica chamædrys, more commonly called the germander speedwell, and in some counties forget-me-not. But we should rather, in this passage, take forget-me-not (above) to refer, as is most usual, to the Myosotis; as Littré also explains it. Here Thynne was once more at a loss, and printed the word as souenesse, which was 'improved' by Stowe into sonenesse. Hence another ghost-word, recorded by Bailey in the entry:—'Sonenesse, noise.' Cf. l. 86.

62. pensees, pansies; alluding, of course, to the Viola tricolor. The spelling is correct, as it represents the O. F. pensee, thought; and it seems to have been named, as Littré remarks, in a similar way to the forget-me-not, and (I may add) to the remember-me.

68. stremes, jets of water; there was a little fountain in the middle.

73. The authoress had to wait till the other ladies also arrived in the centre of the maze. Cf. note to l. 736.

82. sad, settled, staid. demure, sober; lit. mature.

83. blewe, blue; which was the colour of constancy; see note to C. T., F 644 (vol. v. p. 386). For the lady's name was Perseverance. It is convenient to enumerate here the officers who are mentioned. They are: Perseverance, usher (91); Diligence (133, 198, 728); Countenance, porter (177, 277, 295); Discretion, purveyor (263); Acquaintance, herbergeour (269); Largesse, steward (318); Belchere, marshall (322); Remembrance, chamberlain (336); Avyseness, or Advisedness, secretary (343); and Attemperance, chancellor (508). The chief Lady is Loyalty (98), dwelling in the mansion of Pleasant Regard (170).

87. Here word means 'motto.' I here collect the French mottoes mentioned, viz. Bien et loyalement (88); Tant que je puis (208); A moi que je voy (308); Plus ne purroy (364); A endurer (489). Afterwards, four ladies are introduced, with the mottoes Sans que jamais (583); Une sanz chaungier (590); Oncques puis lever (598); and Entierment vostre (616). These ladies afterwards present petitions, on which were written, respectively, the phrases Cest sanz dire (627); En dieu est (645); Soyez en sure (666); and Bien moneste (675). The words, or mottoes, were embroidered on the sleeves of the ladies (119). See Lydgate's Temple of Glas, 308-10.

224. They said a pater-noster for the benefit of St. Julian, because he was the patron-saint of wayfarers. 'Of this saynt Julyen somme saye that this is he that pylgryms and wey-faryng men calle and requyre for good herberowe, by-cause our lord was lodgyd in his hows'; Caxton's Golden Legend. The story occurs in the Gesta Romanorum, c. xviii., and in the Aurea Legenda. The following extract from an old translation of Boccaccio, Decam. Day 2. Nov. 2, explains the point of the allusion. 'Nevertheless, at all times, when I am thus in journey, in the morning before I depart my chamber, I say a pater-noster and an Ave-Maria for the souls of the father and mother of St. Julian; and after that, I pray God and St. Julian to send me a good lodging at night'; &c. Dunlop, in his Hist. of Fiction, discussing this Novella, says: 'This saint was originally a knight, and, as was prophecied to him by a stag, he had the singular hap to kill his father and mother by mistake. As an atonement for his carelessness, he afterwards founded a sumptuous hospital for the accommodation of travellers, who, in return for their entertainment, were required to repeat pater-nosters for the souls of his unfortunate parents.'

241. Because she was to change her dress, and put on blue; see ll. 258-9, 313-4, 413.

457. The reference is to the Legend of Good Women, which contains the story of Phyllis, Thisbe, and 'Cleopataras.' Cf. l. 465.

463. Hawes, probably the same name as Huvisse, which occurs in the old story of Fulke Fitzwarine. But it is remarkable that MS. A. has the reading:—'That other syde was, how Enclusene'; and this looks like an error for Melusene, variant of Melusine. This would agree with the next line, which means 'was untruly deceived in her bath.' The story of Melusine is given in the Romance of Partenay. She was a fairy who married Raymound, son of the Earl of Forest, on the understanding that he was never to watch what she did on a Saturday. This he at last attempts to do, and discovers, through a hole in the door, that she was in a bath, and that her lower half was changed into a serpent. He tries to keep the knowledge of the secret, but one day, in a fit of anger, calls her a serpent. She reproaches him, and vanishes from his sight. See the Romans of Partenay, ed. Skeat (E. E. T. S.).

465. From Chaucer's poem of Anelida and the false Arcite; vol. i. p. 365; for her Complaint, see the same, p. 373.

471. umple (MS. T. umpylle), smooth gauze; from O. F. omple, smooth, used as an epithet of cloth, satin, or other stuff (Godefroy). Here evidently applied to something of a very thin texture, as gauze; see l. 473.

477. stages, steps. The chair or throne was set on a platform accessible by five steps, which were made of cassidony. Cotgrave explains O. F. cassidonie as meaning not only chaledony, but also a kind of marble; and this latter sense may be here intended.

488. Her word, her motto; her must refer to the great lady (l. 501) to whom the throne belonged.

499. tapet, a hanging cloth (Halliwell); here a portion of the hangings that could be lifted up, to give entrance.

526. After a sort, of one kind, alike. vent, slit in front of a gown. 'Vente, the opening at the neck of the tunic or gown, as worn by both sexes during the Norman period, and which was closed by a brooch'; Gloss. to Fairholt's Costume in England. O.F. fente, a slit, cleft; from Lat. findere. The collar and slit were alike bordered with ermine, covered with large pearls, and sprinkled with diamonds. Cf. also: 'Wyth armyntes powdred bordred at the vent'; Hawes, Pastime of Pleasure, ed. Wright, p. 80.

536. balays, a balas-ruby; 'a delicate rose-red variety of the spinel ruby'; New E. Dict. of entail, lit. 'of cutting,' i.e. carefully cut; the usual phrase; see New E. Dict.

539. a world, worth a world; cf. a world (great quantity) of ladies; Flower and the Leaf, 137.

576-8. Alluding to the proverb: 'first come, first served'; cf. C. T., D 389, and the note (vol. v. p. 301).

581. We find that the 'bills' are petitions made by the four ladies regarding their ill success in love-affairs.

592. I. e. yet not so much as she ought to have been, as she had all the trouble; she refers to the lady herself.

598. Oncques, ever; Lat. unquam. 'I can ever rise' seems at first sight to be meant; but ne must be understood; the true sense is, 'I can never rise'; i. e. never succeed. See the context, ll. 605-9.

645. 'I trust in God'; see l. 655.

675. 'Admonish well'; from O.F. monester, to admonish, warn.

680. Here, and in l. 689, the speaker is the lady of the castle. In l. 682 (as in l. 690), the speaker appears to be the fourth lady; it is none too clear.

689. I hate you, I command you. Hate should rather be written hote; perhaps it was confused with the related pt. t. hatte, was called. The reference to Saint James of Compostella is noteworthy.

693. it, i. e. the bill, or petition; it takes the form of a Complaint.

697-8. And, if. ye wolde, i. e. ye wolde seme, (see l. 696), ye would think so. Seem is still common in Devonshire in the sense of think or suppose; usually pronounced zim.

699. her refers to the lady of the castle; at least, it would appear so from l. 705. Else, it refers to Fortune.

736. the water, water thrown in her face by one of her companions, who had by this time entered the arbour.

752. A headless line; accent the first syllable.

754-5. The Flower and the Leaf has a similar ending (ll. 582-3).

XXII. A GOODLY BALADE.

Obviously Lydgate's. See the Introduction.

1. Moder of norture, model of good breeding. The poem is evidently addressed to a lady named Margaret.

2. flour, daisy (for Margaret); see ll. 22, 23.

4. Al be I, although I am; common in Lydgate.

9. Thing, i. e. anything, everything, whatever thing.

15. Mieulx un, one (is) better; evidently cited from a motto or device. The meaning seems to be: it is better to have but one lover, and you have found one in a heart that will never shrink. In the Temple of Glas, 310, Lydgate uses the motto de mieulx en mieulx.

22-3. 'Daisy (born) of light; you are called the daughter of the sun.' Alluding to the name day's eye, which was also applied by Lydgate to the sun; see note in vol. iii. p. 291 (l. 43). Imitated from Legend of Good Women, 60-4.

29. 'When the day dawns, (repairing) to its natural place (in the east), then your father Phœbus adorns the morrow.'

34. 'Were it not for the comfort in the day-time, when (the sun's) clear eyes make the daisy unclosed.' Awkward and involved; cf. Legend of Good Women, 48-50, 64-5.

43. Je wouldray, I should like; purposely left incomplete.

44. casuel, uncertain; see New E. Dict.

48-9. god saith; implying that it is in the Bible. I do not find the words; cf. Prov. xxi. 3; 1 Pet. ii. 20.

50. Cautels, artifices, deceits; a word not used by Chaucer, but found in Lydgate; see New E. Dict.

57. Quaketh my penne, my pen quakes; an expression used once by Chaucer, Troil. iv. 13, but pounced upon by Lydgate, who employs it repeatedly. See more than twenty examples in Schick's note to the Temple of Glas, 947. Cf. IX. 229.

59. Read roseth, grows rosy, grows red, as opposed to welkeneth, withers, fades. We find the pp. rosed twice in Shakespeare; 'a maid yet rosed over,' Henry V, v. 2. 423; and 'thy rosed lips'; Titus And. ii. 4. 24. The emendation seems a safe one, for it restores the sense as well as the rhyme.

welkeneth should probably be welketh; I find no other example of the verb welkenen, though welwen occurs in a like sense; and welketh suits the rhythm.

60. eft, once again hot. These sudden transitions from cold to heat are common; see Temple of Glas, 356:—'For thoughe I brenne with feruence and with hete.'

64. Lydgate is always deploring his lack of eloquence; cf. notes to Temple of Glas, ed. Schick, ll. 1393, 1400.

69. I can find no such word as jouesse, so I alter it to jonesse, i. e. youth. For the spelling jonesce in the 14th century, see Littré, s. v.

jeunesse. The expression have more yet implies that the phrase or motto je serve jeunesse is added as a postscript, and that there was some special point in it; but the application of it is now lost to us. Cf. 'Princes of youth, and flour of gentillesse,' Temple of Glas, 970.

XXIII. GO FORTH, KING.

This poem really consists of twelve precepts, intended to redress twelve abuses. The twelve abuses are given by the Latin lines above, which should be compared throughout. The whole poem is thus easily understood.

The accent is on the first syllable of the line in most of the lines. In l. 3, the word Lord stands alone in the first foot. The lines are somewhat unsteady, quite in Lydgate's usual manner. In l. 6, jug -e is probably dissyllabic. See further in the Introduction.

XXIV. THE COURT OF LOVE.

This late piece abounds with imitations of Lydgate, especially of his Temple of Glas; many of the resemblances are pointed out in Schick's edition of that poem, which I refer to by the contraction 'T. G.'

1. Cf. 'With quaking hert[e] of myn inward drede'; T. G. 978.

'Another feature characteristic of Lydgate is his self-deprec[i]atory vein'; T. G., Introd. p. cxl. We have here an instance of an imitation of it.

6. Cf. 'Save that he wol conveyen his matere'; C. T., E 55.

8. He refers to Cicero's flowers of rhetoric. He may have found the name in Chaucer, P. F. 31. But he probably took the whole idea from a line of Lydgate's:—'Of rethoriques Tullius fond the floures'; Minor Poems, p. 87.

9. borne, burnish, adorn; it rimes (as here) with sojorne in Troil. i. 327.

11. Galfrid, Geoffrey de Vinsauf; his 'craft' refers to his treatise on the art of poetry, entitled 'Nova Poetria'; see note to C. T., B 4537 (vol. v. p. 257). [I once thought (see vol. i. p. 43) that Galfrid here means Chaucer himself, as he also is twice called Galfrid in Lydgate's Troy-book. But I find that Dr. Schick thinks otherwise, and the use of the word craft is on his side. At the same time, this renders it impossible for Chaucer to have written 'The Court of Love'; his opinion of his namesake was the reverse of reverential.] With ll. 4–11 compare the opening lines of Benedict Burgh's Poem in Praise of Lydgate, pr. at p. xxxi of Steele's edition of Lydgate's Secrees of Philosophers.

19. Calliope; twice mentioned by Chaucer; also by Lydgate, T. G. 1303. Lydgate's Troy-book opens with an invocation to Mars, followed by one to Calliope:—'Helpe me also, o thou Callyope'; and only four lines above there is a mention of 'Helicon the welle' (see l. 22 below).

22. Elicon, mount Helicon in Bœotia, sacred to Apollo and the Muses; confused by Chaucer and his followers with the fountain Hippocrene; see note in vol. i. p. 531. Hence Lydgate's expression 'Helicon the welle' in the last note and in T. G. 706, and the reference in the text to its dropes.

suger-dropes; Lydgate was fond of sugar; he has 'soote sugred armonye,' Minor Poems, p. 182; and 'sugrid melody,' ib., p. 11. Also 'sugred eloquence'; XII. 200 (p. 288); with which cf. l. 933 below. I have observed several other examples.

24. Melpomene; the muse who presided over tragedy.

28. Cf. 'This simpli tretis for to take in gre'; T. G. 1387. 'Taketh at gre the rudness of my style'; Lydgate, Secrees of Philosophers, 21.

30. metriciens, skilful in metre, poets; a word which has a remarkably late air about it. Richardson gives an example of it from Hall's Chronicle.

36. Compare the following, from T. G. 1379-81.

'I purpos here to maken and to write
A litil tretise, and a processe make
In pris of women, oonli for hir sake.'

40. man, servant, one who does her homage; cf. Chaucer, C. T., I 772; La Belle Dame, 244; T. G. 742.

42. Cf. 'So that here-after my ladi may it loke'; T. G. 1392.

45. Cf. 'Ther was enclosed rype and sad corage'; C. T., E 220.

49, 50. Here the mountain of Cithæron, in Bœotia, is confused with the island of Cythera, sacred to Venus, whence her name Cytherea was derived. The mistake arose, of course, from the similarity of the names, and occurs (as said in vol. v. p. 78, note to A 1936), in the Roman de la Rose, where we find:—

'Citeron est une montaigne . . .
Venus, qui les dames espire,
Fist là son principal manoir'; ll. 15865-71.

Hence Chaucer makes the same confusion, but in a different way. Chaucer preserves the right name of the mountain, in the form Citherroun, which he rimes with mencioun (A 1936) and with Adoun (A 2223); but here we have the form Citharee, riming with see. For all this, the scribe corrects it to Citheron in l. 69, where he has no rime to deal with.

56. Cf. 'the winged god, Mercurie'; C. T., A 1385.

58. The MS. has costes that it drewe; Bell alters this to had to it drew, under the impression that drew is the pp. of draw! So again, in l. 78, he alters saphir ind, which is correct, to saphir of Inde; and in general, alters the text at will without the least hint that he has done so.

78. ind, blue; as in The Black Knight, 127.

80. Baleis Turkeis (MS. Bales turkes). Baleis is a better spelling, answering to F. balais in Littré. It also occurs as balai in O. F.; and the word was probably suggested by the mention of it in Rom. de la Rose, 20125:—‘Que saphirs, rubis, ne balai.’ Hence also the mention of it in the King’s Quhair, st. 46, which see; and in the Assembly of Ladies, 536. Turkeis is the A. F. equivalent of O. F. Turkois, i. e. Turkish, as in C. T., A 2895, on which see the note (vol. v. p. 93).

81. shene, a misspelling of shine, intimating that the author has confused the adj. shene with the verb; or rather, that the poem was written at a time when the word shine could be used as riming to been; since we find similar examples in lines 561, 768. So also we find pretily riming with be in The Flower and the Leaf, 89. The pt. t. shoon occurs in l. 83.

82. Cf. ‘As doon the sterres in the frosty night’; C. T., A 268. And again: ‘bryght As sterrys in the wyntyre nyght’; Lydgate, Compleint following T. G., l. 548.

86. Cf. Compl. of Mars, 78–84, 104–5; C. T., A 2388 (and note); and T. G. 126–8.

88. Cf. ‘Long as a mast,’ &c.; C. T., A 3264.

92. Cf. Troil. iii. 8–21: ‘In hevене and helle,’ &c.; from Boccaccio; see note (vol. ii. p. 475).

105. Alceste; evidently borrowed from Ch., Legend of Good Women, 224, 293–9, 432; cf. T. G. 70–4. The queenes flour Alceste=the flower of queen Alcestis; a common idiom; see note to C. T., F 209 (vol. v. p. 376).

107. Admete, Admetus; see Troil. i. 664, and the note; T. G. 72.

108. ninetene; copied from the Legend of Good Women, 283; just as the next line is from the same, 285–9. This is the more remarkable, because Chaucer never finished the poem, but mentions ten ladies only, in nine Legends. Cf. ‘the book of the nynetene Ladies’; C. T., I 1086. Hawes also refers to Chaucer’s ‘tragidyces . . . of the xix. ladyes’; Pastime of Pleasure, ed. Wright, p. 53.

115. ‘So fair was noon in alle Arras’; R. R. 1234.

116. of esier availe, of less value; see Avail in the New E. Dict.

117. saunz faile; thrice in Ch.; HF. 188, 429; C. T., B 501.

119. Helisee, Elysium; ‘the feld . . . That hight Elysos’; Troil. iv. 789.

120. saintes, saints, martyrs for love; cf. V. 316, above (p. 227), and the note. Cf. T. G. 414.

129. ‘The king had Danger standing near him, and the queen had Disdain, who were chief of the council, to treat of affairs of state’; Bell.

138. Cf. T. G. 271, and the note, shewing how common gold hair is in Lydgate.

139, 140. 'Bihinde her bak, a yerde long'; C. T., A 1050.

148. In mewet, in an inaudible voice, to myself; like mod. F. à la muette (Litttré).

167. non erst; false grammar for non er, no sooner; 'no soonest' is nonsense. We find, however, the phrases not erst and never erst elsewhere; see New E. Dict., s.v. Erst, § B. 4.

170. This is the earliest quotation given in the New E. Dict., s.v. Assummon; and the next is from the poet Daniel.

177. Chaucer has the compound for-pamfred; Former Age, 5. I read jolif, joyful, to make sense; the MS. has the absurd word iaylof (sic); and Stowe has ialous, jealous, which is quite out of place here.

181. 'An allusion to the monkish story of the man who brought up a youth ignorant of women, and who, when he first saw them, told him they were geese. The story is in the Promptuarium Exemplorum. It was adopted by Boccaccio, from whom it was taken by Lafontaine, liv. iii. conte 1. See Latin Stories, edited by Mr. [T.] Wright.'—Bell.

194. From C. T., B 466: 'On many a sory meel now may she bayte.'

202. Cf. 'Comfort is noon'; Chaucer's A B C, 17.

207. how, however. Cf. 'that boghten love so dere'; Legend of Good Women, 258.

229. See the Book of the Duchess, 323-34, where the painted glass windows contain subjects from the Romance of the Rose and others: The story of Dido is common enough; but the reference to Chaucer's Anelida and the false Arcite, is remarkable, especially as it occurs also in XXI. 465 above (p. 395). 'The turtel trewe' is from the Parl. Foules, 577. See the parallel passage in T. G. 44-142, where Lydgate's first example is that of Dido, while at the same time he mentions Palamon, Emilie, and Canacee, all from Chaucer.

246. blew, blue, the colour of constancy; see l. 248.

250. 'And why that ye ben clothed thus in blak?' C. T., A 911.

255. grene only gives an assonance with here, not a rhyme. Green was the colour of inconstancy, and was sometimes used for despyt, to use Chaucer's phrase; see note to C. T., F 644 (vol. v. p. 386). White may refer to the White Friars or Carmelites, and russet to the hermits; cf. P. Plowman, C. prol. 3, C. xi. 1.

270. an ho, a proclamation commanding silence; see C. T., 2533. Quite distinct from hue (and cry), with which Bell confuses it. A hue and cry was only raised against fleeing criminals.

280. Clearly suggested by the God of Love's stern question in the Legend of Good Women, 315:—'What dostow heer So nigh myn owne flour, so boldely?' At the same time the phrase fer y-stope in yeres is from Chaucer's somdel stape in age, C. T., B 4011, on which see the note (vol. v. p. 248). See the next note.

288. Similarly the God of Love pardoned Chaucer (L. G. W. 450), but upon a condition (ib. 548).

290. serven, false grammar for serve.

302. Here follow the twenty statutes; ll. 302-504. They are evidently expanded from the similar set of injunctions given by Venus to the Knight in The Temple of Glas, ll. 1152-213; as clearly shewn by Schick in his Introduction, p. cxxxi. The similarity extends to the first, second, third, fifth, sixth, seventh, ninth, tenth, twelfth, fourteenth and eighteenth statutes, which resemble passages found in the Temple of Glas, ll. 1152-213, or elsewhere in the same poem. It is also possible that the author, or Lydgate, or both of them, kept an eye upon Ovid's Art of Love. See also Rom. Rose (Eng. version), 2355-950, which is much to the point.

305. This is also the first injunction in T. G. 1152-3, and is immediately followed by the second, which enjoins secrecy. The reader should compare the passages for himself.

311. MS. synk and flete; which must of course be corrected to 'sink or flete,' as in Anelida, 182; C. T., A 2397.

317. 'Withoutte chaunge in parti or in al'; T. G. 1155.

319. The MS. has brynnde, and Stowe has brinde; so I let the reading stand. Morris has blynde, and Bell blind; neither of them has a note as to the change made. Perhaps brind=brend=burnt, in the sense of 'inflamed by passion'; or it may be an error for brim=breme, furious, applied especially to the desire of the boar for the sow. The sense intended is clear enough; we should now write 'base.'

324-5. From C. T., A 2252-3:—

'And on thyn [Venus] auter, wher I ryde or go,
I wol don sacrifice, and fyres bete.'

329. passe forby, to pass by, i. e. to get out of his way; cf. C. T., B 1759, C 668. an ese, a relief, a way of escape. There is no difficulty, but all the editions have altered it to passe, for thereby, which will not scan.

330. daungerous, grudging, reluctant; see C. T., D 514.

332. of a sight, of what one may see. squeymous (MS. squymouse, Stowe squmous), squeamish, particular; see note to C. T., A 3337 (vol. v. p. 102). It is added that when the lady, on her part, was cruel, it was the lover's duty to toss about in bed and weep; cf. T. G. 12:—'The longe nyght walowing to and fro,' 'To walwe and wepe'; Troil. i. 699. And see Rom. Rose (Eng. version), 2553-62.

338. Cf. 'Him to complein, that he walk [read welk=walked] so sole'; T. G. 552. And cf. Book Duch. 449; Black Knight, 143; Rom. Rose, 2391-6, 2517-9.

340. Cf. 'as though he roughte nought Of life ne deth'; T. G. 939-40.

344. 'Abide awhile,' T. G. 1203; 'patiently t'endure'; T. G. 1267.

347. helden, false grammar for held. The metre shews that it was intentional.

349. 'Fulli to obeye,' T. G. 1151; cf. 1145-50.

360-4. Cf. T. G. 1012-25; especially 'And when I trespas, goodli me correcte'; and 'neuyr yow offende.' And Ovid, Art. Amat. lib. ii. 199-202.

367. yern, earn; so yearne in Spenser, F. Q. vi. i. 40; A. S. ge-carnian.

368-9. 'Of grace and pitè, and nought of rightwisnes'; T. G. 979.

378. a-croke (MS. a croke), awry; see Acrook in the New E. Dict.

379-81. In l. 381, the MS. has shon (shun) distinctly; yet Morris prints showe, and Stowe showe, destroying the sense. All have knowe in l. 379, but it should rather be con, which gives a perfect rime; for con represents A. S. cunnan, to know, and is frequently spelt cun; see Con in the New E. Dict. This statute refers to 'the comfort of Sweet-Looking'; see Rom. Rose, 2893-922; Gower, C. A., iii. 26-7.

390. See T. G. 170-1, 1014.

397. 'Yeve hir giftes, and get hir grace'; Rom. Rose, 2699. 'Auro conciliatur amor'; Ovid, Art. Amat. lib. ii. 278.

403. Cf. Rom. Rose, 2568-85.

412. 'And for no tales thin herte not remue'; T. G. 1182. Cf. C. T., A 3163-4; F 1483-5; and XII. 113-9 above (p. 289).

429. 'For love ne wol nat countrepleted be'; Legend of Good Women, 476. 'Quisquis erit cui favet illa, fave'; Ovid, Art. Amat. lib. i. 146.

431. 'Whyt was this crowe'; C. T., H 133; cf. note to C. T., D 232.

456. Compare the Merchant's Tale; C. T., E 1245.

469. Cf. T. G. 1168-70: 'All trwe louers to relese of her payne,' &c.

475. 'Ai fressh and wel besein'; T. G. 1167. Cf. Rom. Rose, 2279-84. 'Munditiae placeant,' &c.; Ovid, Art. Amat. lib. i. 513.

484. 'Who loveth trewe hath no fatnesse'; Rom. Rose, 2686; 'Arguat et macies animum'; Ovid, Art. Amat. lib. i. 733.

491-504. Cf. Rom. Rose, 2419-39, 2817-20. In particular, ll. 496-7 seem to be actually copied from Rom. Rose, 2819-20: 'or of hir chere That to thee made thy lady dere.' This raises the suspicion that the Court of Love was written after 1532.

499. thou seen would be in Latin tu videatis; another example of false grammar.

523. let been, to let (them) be, to leave off.

526. kepten been (MS. bene); so in all the copies; but kepten is the pt. t. plural, as if we should say in Latin servauerunt sunt. Unless, indeed, the -en is meant for the pp. suffix of a strong verb, as if we should make a Latin form servatiti. The scansion shews that this false grammar came from the author.

529. 'Except God and the devil.'

536-7. Solomon and Samson; the usual stock examples. But probably in this case borrowed from Lydgate's Balade, XIV. 4 (p. 295), which is certainly quoted thrice again below.

542. This line is made up from Lydgate's Balade, XIV. 29-33, and 26; so again l. 544 resembles the same, l. 24. And Lydgate merely versifies the medieval proverb: 'Fallere,' &c.; see note to XIV. 29; p. 516.

547. of kind, by nature; as in XIV. 29 (p. 296).

550. 'An housbond shal nat been inquisitif'; C. T., A 3163.

556. Citherea is right; see l. 50; MS. and Stowe have Cithera.

560. 'You that are provided already with a lady.'—Bell. Cf. l. 561.

561-3. eke, lyke, a permissible rime, at a time when e had gained the mod. E. sound. See note to l. 81 above.

570. See T. G. 143-6. With l. 577, cf. T. G. 50.

580. The reading blisful is certain; it is from T. G. 328:—'O blisful sterre, persant and ful of light.' The author uses persant below, in l. 849.

582. See the second of the interpolated stanzas in T. G., p. 21, ll. 6, 7:—

'Withoute desert; wherefore that ye vouche
To ponysshe hem dewely for here male-bouche.'

586. loves daunce; see references in the Glossary to vol. vi., s. v. Daunce.

589. In T. G. 144, the lovers are only many a thousand; in the Kingis Quair, st. 78, they are 'mony a' million; here they are a thousand million. Such is evolution.

591. 'redresse is elegantly put for redresser';—Bell. Then let the credit of it be Lydgate's; cf. 'Redresse of sorow, O Citheria'; T. G. 701.

592. Bell prints yheried, which is obviously right; but he does not say that both the MS. and Stowe have I hired; see Troil. ii. 973, iii. 7, 1804.

593. loves bond; founded on Boethius, lib. ii. met. 8, but doubtless taken from Troil. iii. 1766; see note in vol. ii. p. 483.

598, 603. 'Make him teschwe euere synne and vice'; T. G. 450.

611-3. Celsitude and pulcriteude are words that savour of the revival of learning. Such words are common in Dunbar, who uses both of them. For celsitude, see Dunbar, ed. Small, p. 271, 76, and p. 325, 25; for pulcriteude, see the same, p. 271, 74; p. 274, 2; p. 279, 5. He even rimes them together; p. 271. Hawes also uses pulchritude; Pastime of Pleasure, ed. Wright, pp. 5, 18.

614. Cf. 'Comparisoun may noon y-maked be'; Legend of Good Women, 122.

623. fere, fire (not fear); as in Troil. iii. 978.

628. Beseech, to beseech; note the anachronism in using the French infin. void-en with a suffix, and the Eng. beseech with none at all.

634. ure, destiny; from O. F. eur, Lat. augurium. A word that first appeared in Northern English; it occurs at least eight times in Barbour's Bruce. And in the Kingis Quair, st. 10, we have the whole phrase—'my fortune and ure.' It is also used by Lydgate; see VIII. 151, 302, 482 (pp. 250, 254, 260).

XXIV. THE COURT OF LOVE. LINES 547-789. 547

641. An exact repetition of l. 633 above.

642. Here, for a wonder, is an example of the final e; the author took the whole phrase 'In thilk-ë place' from some previous author; cf. 'In thilke places' (sic); Rom. Rose, 660 (Thynne). sign, assign.

648. 'Bi god and be my trouthe'; T. G. 1011.

683. 'And holden werre alwey with chastitee'; C. T., A 2236.

684. I kepen; false grammar; equivalent to Lat. ego curamus.

688. yove, gave; but in l. 690 the form is gave. I suspect that in l. 690, gave should be gan, and that image (for images) is to be taken as a genitive case; then the sense is—'And I began anon to ponder and weigh in my heart her image's fresh beauty.'

701. The idea is due to Chaucer's Complaynt to Pity; cf. l. 1324.

702. Cf. 'Him deyneth nat to wreke him on a flye'; Legend of Good Women, 381.

703. eke him, him also; but perhaps read ete him.

704. Cf. 'and tendre herte'; C. T., A 150.

725. springen; false grammar, as it is a plural form.

727. endry, suffer, endure; so again in l. 941. This ridiculous hybrid is rightly excluded from the New E. Dict., which gives, however, several similar formations. It was coined by prefixing the F. prefix en-, with an intensive force, to M. E. drien, variant of dreogan, to endure (A. S. drēogan), Lowl. Sc. dree. No other author uses it.

732. spede, succeed; Stowe's alteration to speke is unnecessary.

749. 'How are you the nearer for loving,' &c.

751. fayn, put for feyn, i. e. feign, tell an untruth.

755. heth, heath. Here, and in l. 757, the author refers to two occasions when he was in great danger of falling in love; but he does not go into details.

768. Here we must read ee (eye) for the rime; in other cases it appears as eye, ye, y, riming with words in -y. This points to a somewhat late date; see note to l. 81 above. As for stremes, it is Lydgate's word for glances of the eye; see T. G. 263, 582. And Lydgate had it from Chaucer, who mostly uses it of sunbeams, but twice applies it to the beams from the eyes of Criseyde; Troil. i. 305, iii. 129.

782. flawe, generally explained as representing Lat. flavus, yellowish, or the O. F. flave, with the same sense. Her hair was gold, so her eyebrows may have been of a similar colour. I suspect that flawe was a Northern form; cf. braw, as a Northern variant of brave.

783. mene disseverance, a moderate distance; evidently meant with reference to Criseyde, whose one demerit was that her eye-brows joined each other; Troil. v. 813.

787. milk-whyth path, the galaxy, or milky way; but surely th's is quite a unique application of it, viz. to the prominent ridge of Rosial's nose.

789. smaragde, emerald. The eyes of Beatrice are called smeraldi; Dante, Purg. xxxi. 116. Juliet's nurse said that an eagle's eye was not so green as that of Paris; Romeo, iii. 5. 222. Eyes in Chaucer are usually 'as gray as glas'; the O. F. vair, an epithet for eyes, meant grayish-blue.

797. basse, kiss, buss; see Buss in the New E. Dict. ben is yet another instance of a false concord; read be, as basse is singular. See next note.

798. Cornelius Maximianus Gallus, a poet of the sixth century, wrote six elegies which have come down to us. The quotation referred to occurs in the first Elegy (ll. 97-8), which is also quoted by Chaucer; see note to C. T., C 727 (vol. v. p. 287). The lines are:—

'Flammea dilexi, modicumque tumentia labra,
Quae mihi gustanti basia plena darent.'

Hence the epithet Flaming in l. 793.

810. bend, a band, sash; see New E. Dict., s. v. Bend (2), sb., I. a.

811. 'With hair in tresses'; like Criseyde's; see Troil. v. 810.

813. Cf. the Assembly of Ladies, 533-4 (p. 397):—

'Aboute her nekke a sort of faire rubyes
In whyte floures of right fyne enamayl.'

See also the Kingis Quair, st. 48.

815-6. See my note to Ch. Minor Poems, XXI. 20 (vol. i. p. 566).

821. Calixto, Callisto; called Calixte in Parl. Foules, 286. The story is in Ovid, Met. ii. 409. Alcmenia, Alcmena, mother of Hercules; see Ovid, Met. ix. 281; cf. Troil. iii. 1428; T. G. 123.

823. Europa, the story is in Ovid, Met. ii. 858. See Legend of Good Women, 113, and the note; T. G. 118.

824. Dane, Danae, mother of Perseus; see Ovid, Met. iv. 610. In Chaucer, C. T., A 2062, Dane means Daphne. Antiopa, mother of Amphion and Zethus; it may be noted that Jupiter's intrigues with Europa, Antiopa, Alcmena, and Danac, are all mentioned together in Ovid, Met. vi. 103-13. It follows that our author had read Ovid.

831. 'There is no lak, saue onli of pitè'; T. G. 749.

841. The word the was probably written like ye, giving, apparently, the reading ye ye; then one of these was dropped. The long passage in ll. 841-903 may be compared with the pleadings of the lover in La Belle Dame sans Merci (p. 307, above); with T. G. 970-1039; and with the Kingis Quair, st. 99. Note the expression 'of beaute rote,' T. G. 972; and 'Princes of youthe,' T. G. 970 (two lines above); see l. 843.

849. persant, piercing; common in Lydgate; T. G. 328, 756, 1341; Black Knight, 28, 358, 591, 613. Cf. 'And with the stremes of your percyng light'; Kingis Quair, 103.

852 3. Cf. T. G. 1038-9; Kingis Quair, st. 103, l. 7.

858. 'Of verrey routhe upon my peynes rewe'; T. G. 1001.

865. 'To love him best ne shal I never repente'; The Complaynt of Venus, 56, 64, 72. See note to l. 875.

XXIV. THE COURT OF LOVE. LINES 797-1049. 549

872-3. Referring to Ch. Troilus, and Legend of Good Women, 580. 'To ben as trewe as was Antonyus To Cleopatre'; T. G. 778.

874. thinks; observe this Northern form.

875. 'And therfore, certes, to myn ending-day'; The Compleynt of Venus, 55. See note to l. 865.

882. expert, experienced; 'expert in love,' Troil. ii. 1367.

891. 'With al my hert I thanke yow of youre profre'; T. G. 1060.

897. Read I; this the scribe must have mistaken for the contraction for 'and.'

901. 'And I beseech you not to be disdainful.'

902. seen my wil, to see what I wish; but surely wil is an error for bill, petition; see l. 916. Then rede means 'read it.'

906. com of, be quick; see Troil. ii. 1738, 1742, 1750; and the numerous examples in Schick's note to T. G. 1272.

911. Stowe, like the MS., ends the line with why. Bell supplied makes thou straunge.

913. Cambrige; this form is not found till after 1400. Chaucer has Cant-e-brigg-e (C. T., A 3921) in four syllables, which appears as Cambrugge in the late Lansdowne MS., after 1420. See Skeat, A Student's Pastime, pp. 397-8.

922. and have, i. e. and have loved. On this construction, see Schick's note to T. G. 1275.

925-7. I . . doon; more false grammar; equivalent to Lat. ego faciamus.

929. 'And, whan I trespace, goodli me correcte'; T. G. 1018.

931-52. Compare the answers of the lady in La Belle Dame sans Merci (p. 309, &c.).

988-9. Cf. Parl. Foules, 90-1; Compl. to his Lady, 47-9.

998. dwale, an opiate, a sleeping-draught; made from the dwale or 'deadly nightshade' (Atropa belladonna). It occurs once in Chaucer; C. T., A 4161. See my note to P. Plowman, C. xxiii. 379.

1000. y-wis afayed, (being) certainly frightened. The use of y-wis in such a position is most unusual.

1016-7. 'Right as the fressh[e] rodi rose nwe Of hir coloure to wexin she bigan'; T. G. 1042-3.

1023. Something is lost here. There is no gap in the MS.; but there was probably one in the MS. from which it was copied. I think six stanzas are lost; see the Introduction.

1032-3. 'And their fellow-furtherer,' i. e. fellow-helper.

1034. Dred is one of the personifications from the Roman de la Rose; see Rom. Rose, 3958; so in T. G. 631.

1040. 'Gall under honey'; see l. 542 above. Cf. T. G. 192.

1042. 'Lay aside your confidence (courage), for all her white (flattering) words'; cf. Troil. iii. 901.

1045. thow wot, false grammar for thou wost.

1049. The ton=thet on, the one; the toder=thet oder, the other.

Oder is a remarkable form ; see Halliwell. So also brodur, in Le Bon Florence of Rome, ed. Ritson, 931.

1053-4. 'Hir kind is fret with doublesnesse'; XIII. 80 (p. 293).

1055. 'So I cast about to get rid of Despair's company'; hence taken, in l. 1056, is in the infin. mood.

1058. bay-window; cf. Assembly of Ladies, 163. The earliest known quotation for bay-window is dated 1428, in a prosaic document.

1060. 'As any ravenes fether it shoon for-blak'; spoken of hair; C. T., A 2144.

1065. 'Ther needeth non autoritee allegge'; C. T., A 3000.

1072. Cf. Troil. ii. 855-61.

1083. were, wear; altered by Bell to ware, which is a form of the past tense.

1087. she seems to be spoken casually of some woman in the company; and prety man, in l. 1088, is used in a similar way.

goth on patens, walks in pattens. A very early example of the word paten. It occurs in Palsgrave (1530). fete, neat, smart; used by Lydgate; see Feat in the New E. Dict.

1095. Here the author comes back again to the Temple of Glas, 143-246, which see; and cf. The Kingis Quair, stanzas 79-93.

1096. black, Dominican friars; white, Carmelites; gray, Franciscans.

1100. From T. G. 196-206; for the nuns, see T. G. 207-8.

1104. 'In wide copis perfeccion to feine'; T. G. 204. See l. 1116.

1106. 'That on hir freendis al the wite they leide'; T. G. 208.

1116. 'In wide copis perfeccion to feine'; T. G. 204.

1134. 'Ther thou were weel, fro thennes artow weyved'; C. T., B 308.

1136. Cf. 'With sobbing teris, and with ful pitous sounce'; T. G. 197.

1139. Cf. 'And other eke, that for pouerte'; T. G. 159.

1150. prang, pang (MS. prange; and so in Stowe); altered to pang by Bell and Morris. 'Pronge, Erumpna' [aerumna]; Prompt. Parv. 'Throwe [throe], womannys pronge, Erumpna'; the same. 'Prange, oppression, or constraint'; Hexham's Dutch Dict. Cf. Gothic: 'in allamma ana-pragganai,' we were troubled on every side, 2 Cor. vii. 5; where gg is written for ng, as in Greek. The mod. E. pang seems to have been made out of it, perhaps by confusion with pank, to pant.

1160, 1164. 'And pitousli on god and kynde pleyne'; T. G. 224. But the context requires the reading god of kind, i.e. God of nature. In l. 1166, leften must be meant for a pp.; if so, it is erroneously formed, just like keþten above; see note to l. 526

1173. werdes, Fates; obviously the right reading; yet the MS., Stowe, and Morris have wordes, and Bell alters the line. The confusion between e and o at this time is endless. See Werdes, Wierdes in the Gloss. to Chaucer.

1177. he, another of the company; cf. she in l. 1087. Both Morris and Bell alter the text. Bell reminds us that the character here described is that of Shakespeare's Benedict. But it is obviously copied from Troilus! see Troil. i. 904-38.

1189. The word post is from Troil. i. 1000: 'That thou shalt be the beste post, I leve, Of al his lay.'

1198. Shamefastness, Bashfulness; borrowed from Honte in the Rom. de la Rose, 2821; called Shame in the E. version, 3034. Hence the reference to roses in l. 1203, though it comes in naturally enough.

1211. were not she, if it had not been for her.

1213. returnith, turns them back again; used transitively.

1218. 'When Bashfulness is dead, Despair will be heir' (will succeed in her place). Too bold lovers would be dismissed.

1219. Avaunter, Boaster; as in Troil. iii. 308-14. The line sounds like an echo of 'Have at thee, Jason! now thyn horn is blowe!' Legend of Good Women, 1383.

1222. wowe, woo; evidently the right reading; so in Morris. Cf. The Letter of Cupid, V. 274-80 (p. 226).

1238. statut, i. e. the sixteenth statute (l. 435).

1242. 'Avauntour and a lyere, al is on'; Troil. iii. 309.

1253. sojoure, sojourn, dwell, used quite wrongly; for O. F. sojur (originally sojorn) is a sb. only, like mod. F. séjour. The O. F. verb was sojorner, sojourner, whence M. E. sojornen, sojournen, correctly used by Chaucer. The sb. sojour occurs in Rom. Rose, 4282, 5150. The mistake is so bad that even the scribe has here written soiorne; but, unluckily, this destroys the rime.

1255. 'Envy is admirably represented as rocking himself to and fro with vexation, as he sits, dark, in a corner.'—Bell. For all this, I suspect the right word is rouketh, i. e. cowers, as in C. T., A 1308. Rokken is properly transitive, as in C. T., A 4157.

1257. For the description of Envy, see Rom. Rose, 247. But the author (in l. 1259) refers us to Ovid, Met. ii. 775-82, q. v.

1259. Methamorphosose; this terrible word is meant for Metamorphoseos, the form used by Chaucer, C. T., B 93. But the true ending is -eōn, gen. pl. The scribe has altered the suffix to -ees, thus carelessly destroying the rime.

1268. Prevvy Thought is taken from Doux-Penseurs in the Rom. de la Rose, 2633, called Swete-Thought in the E. Version, 2799; see the passage.

1288. Cf. 'Hir person he shal afore him sette'; R. R. 2808.

1290. Cf. 'This comfort wol I that thou take'; R. R. 2821.

1295. Cf. 'Awey his anger for to dryve'; R. R. 2800.

1315. Schick refers us, for this fiction, to the Rom. Rose, 939-82, where Cupid has two sets of arrows, one set of gold, and the other set black. Gower, Conf. Amantis (ed. Pauli, i. 336), says that Cupid shot Phœbus with a dart of gold, but Daphne with a dart of lead. In the Kingis Quair, stanzas 94-5, Cupid has three arrows, one of gold, one of silver, and one of steel. But the fact is, that our author, like Gower, simply followed Ovid, Met. i. 470-1. Let Dryden explain it:—

‘One shaft is pointed with refulgent gold
To bribe the love, and make the lover bold;
One blunt, and tipped with lead, whose base alloy
Provokes disdain, and drives desire away.’

1317. There is here a gap in the story. The speaker is Rosial, and she is addressing Philogenet, expressing herself favourably.

1319-20. hight, promised. had, would have.

1324. she, i. e. Pity, as in l. 701.

1328. MS. tender reich; Stowe, tenderiche; which must be wrong; read tender reuth. Confusion between ch and th is common. where I found, where I (formerly) found much lack.

1332. For Pity's golden shrine, see l. 694.

1353. This notion of making the birds sing matins and lauds is hinted at in the Cuckoo and Nightingale—‘That they begonne of May to don hir houres’; l. 70. It is obviously varied from Chaucer's Parl. Foules, where all the birds sing a roundel before departing. Next, we find the idea expanded by Lydgate, in the poem called Devotions of the Fowls; Minor Poems, ed. Halliwell, p. 78; the singers are the popinjay, the pelican, the nightingale, the lark, and the dove. All these reappear here, except the pelican. A chorus of birds, including the mavis, merle, lark, and nightingale, is introduced at the close of Dunbar's Thistle and Rose. The present passage was probably suggested by Lydgate's poem, but is conceived in a lighter vein.

The Latin quotations are easily followed by comparing them with The Prymer, or Lay Folks' Prayer-Book, ed. Littlehales (E. E. T. S.). They all appear in this ‘common medieval Prayer-book’; and, in particular, in the Matins and Lauds of the Hours of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The Matins end at l. 1407. The Matins contain:—the opening, the Venite, a Hymn, three Psalms, an Antiphon, Versicles and Responses, three Lessons (each with Versicles and Responses), and the Te Deum. The Lauds contain:—the opening, eight Psalms (the Benedicite considered as one), Antiphon, Chapter, Hymn, the Benedictus; &c. I point out the correspondences below.

1354. Observe that the nightingale sings in a hawthorn in the Cuckoo and Nightingale, 287 (p. 358).

1356. Domine, labia mea aperies, Lord, open thou my lips; ‘the opening’ of Matins.

1358. bewrye, a variant of bewreye, to bewray; used by Dunbar.

1359. Venite, exultemus, Ps. xcv (Vulgate, xciv); still in use.

1362. ‘The unhappy chorister who comes late skulks in behind the desks and stalls.’—Bell.

1364. Domine, Dominus noster, Ps. viii. The ‘first psalm.’

1366. Celi enarrant, Ps. xix (Vulgate, xviii). The ‘second psalm.’

1370. Domini est terra, Ps. xxiv (Vulgate, xxiii). The ‘third psalm.’ this Laten intent, this Latin signifies; intent is the contracted form of intendeth; by analogy with went for wendeth.

1372. A queer reminiscence of Troil. iii. 690 :—‘There was no more to skippen nor to traunce.’

1373. Jube, Domine, benedicere, ‘Lord, comaunde us to blesse’; versicle preceding the first lesson; which explains l. 1374.

1375. Cf. ‘Legende of Martres’; Letter of Cupid, 316 (p. 227); and the note.

1380. Here follows the second lesson. The lectorn is the mod. E. lectern, which supports the book from which the lessons are read.

1384. ‘The glad month of us who sing.’ Cf. ‘lepten on the spray’; Cuckoo and Nightingale, 77 (p. 350).

1387. Here follows the third lesson, read by the dove.

1390. This looks like an allusion to the endless joke upon cuckolds, who are said, in our dramatists, to ‘wear the horn’; which the offender is said ‘to give.’ If so, it is surely a very early allusion. Here give an horn=to scorn, mock.

1400. Tu autem, domine, miserere nobis, ‘thou, lord, have merci of us,’ said at the conclusion of each lesson; to which all responded Deo gratias, ‘thanke we god!’ See The Prymer, p. 5.

1401. Te deum amoris; substituted for Te deum laudamus, which is still in use; which concludes the matins.

1402. Tuball, who was supposed to have been ‘the first musician.’ As to this error, see note in vol. i. p. 492 (l. 1162).

1408. Dominus regnavit, Ps. xciii (Vulgate, xcii); the ‘first psalm’ at Lauds.

1411. Jubilate deo, Ps. c (Vulgate, xcix); the ‘second psalm.’ The third and fourth psalms are not mentioned.

1413. Benedicite, omnia opera; still in use in our morning service; counted as the ‘fifth psalm.’

1415. Laudate dominum, Ps. cxlviii; the ‘sixth psalm.’ The seventh and eighth are passed over.

1416. O admirabile; the anthem. The E. version is :—‘O thou wonderful chaunge! the makere of mankynde, takynge a bodi with a soule of a maide vouchide sauf be bore [born]; and so, forth-goynge man, with-outen seed, yaf to us his godhede’; Prymer, p. 12. The ‘chapter’ and hymn are omitted.

1422. Benedictus Dominus Deus Israel; still in use in our morning service. This is the last extract from ‘the hours.’

1434. ‘She gadereth floures, party whyte and rede To make a sotil garland’; C. T., A 1053.

1436. This is exactly like ‘the battle of the flowers,’ as seen in Italy.

1437. the gold, the marigold; see C. T., A 1929.

1440. trew-love; a name for herb paris (Paris quadrifolia). But as the ‘true-love’ is described as being plited, i. e. folded, it must rather be supposed to mean a true lover’s knot or love-knot, which was simply a bow of ribbon given as a token of affection, and frequently worn by the lover afterwards. The bestowal of this token nearly made an end of him.

XXV. VIRELAI.

Not a true virelay, as the ending -ing does not reappear in the second stanza; for a correct example, see note to Anelida and Arcite, 256 (vol. i. p. 536). But it is of the nature of a virelay, inasmuch as the rime -ate, which concludes the first stanza, reappears in the second; and similarly, the ending -ure, which concludes the second stanza, reappears in the third; and so on, with the rime-endings -ain and -aunce. Compare the poem by Lord Rivers, in the same metre, alluded to in vol. i. p. 42.

11. ure, destiny; as above, sect. XXIV. 634 (and note, p. 546).

20. The pronunciation of ende as ind is not uncommon in East Anglia, and may have been intended.

XXVI. PROSPERITY.

From John Walton's translation of Boethius, A.D. 1410. See the Introduction.

XXVII. LEAULTE VAULT RICHESSE.

From the same MS. as the last.

7. don but lent, lit. 'done but lent,' i. e. merely lent (you). For this idiom, see note to Ch. C. T., B 171 (vol. v. p. 145).

XXVIII. SAYINGS.

5. Cf. Shak. King Lear, iii. 2. 91; see the Introduction.

XXIX. BALADE.

This Balade, printed by Stowe, seems like a poor imitation of the style of Lydgate.

GLOSSARIAL INDEX.
